Aid Urged For Private Schools

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial government support for busing and library services for children attending private schools was recommended today by a cabinet committee.

The report of the seven-member committee studying provision of basic services to all children in the province does not mention any additional direct financing for independent schools.

It found that public health services and human resources services are already being provided "in varying degrees" to all school children; and makes only two recommendations:

—"That appropriate steps be taken by the government to facilitate the busing of school children requiring such service."

—"That the provincial secretary, through the Library Development Commission, investigate and facilitate supplementary library services to students in the non-public sector."

To implement the recommendation on busing, the cabinet committee said the government should initiate negotiations with local school boards to have them provide transportation facilities for private schools within their districts.

The provincial government, according to the report, would "contribute to any additional costs incurred in providing such transportation."

Textbooks are already provided to independent school students but the report says supplemental reading and learning materials are being used far more extensively in all schools, and these are not now provided to private school libraries.

The report brought an immediate sharp reaction from Mavis DeGirolamo, second vice-president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

"We're extremely disappointed that the NDP is capitulating to a pressure group," said DeGirolamo.

"The principle that we have always stood for as a federation is that the public schools are open to every child," she said.

Although helping financing private school busing would not be a large financial commitment by the government, she said, "it will inevitably lead to greater demands."

HUGE DEFICIT FACES AIRLINE

Air Canada to Cut Fares

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Air Canada, faced with a huge deficit this year, is planning a program of special discount fares to boost traffic, a spokesman for the airline said today.

The airline has projected a growth rate of eight per cent this year, the spokesman said. However, traffic volume in 1975 is actually down by two per cent and summer traffic is down 15 per cent.

Details of the program will be announced in the next few days.

The spokesman refused to confirm or deny a published report that the airline deficit for 1974 may hit $25 million. The lower traffic volume was reported to have cost the airline $70 million to $80 million in passenger revenue.

"There has been no hint within the airline that there will be any layoffs," he said.

The airline has blamed rising operating costs, particularly wages and rising fuel costs, for past losses.

Last year, the crown-owned carrier recorded a loss of $9.2 million, the second time in the last dozen years it has recorded a deficit.

Fare reductions are expected to include lower excursion fares and special weekend rates.

The spokesman denied that Air Canada has plans to sell a significant portion of its fleet. He said two or three of the airline's older DC-8s may be sold, but none of the carrier's newer planes are on the block.

The airline was recently the subject of a three-month inquiry into its financial operations. Chief Justice Willard Z. Estey of Ontario Supreme Court is expected to deliver this report to Transport Minister Jean Marchand this fall.

SHARK-MAULED COUPLE DEAD

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A California man and his wife clinging to the debris of their fishing boat were mauled by sharks and died, the Oregon medical examiner said Thursday.

The bodies of Oliver Conger, 64, and Grace Conger, 62, of Morro Bay, Calif., were recovered from the Pacific Ocean Wednesday and were taken to Astoria, Ore.

Dr. William Brady, the Oregon medical examiner, attributed Mrs. Conger's death primarily to shark bites. He said her husband died of drowning.

An autopsy was conducted Thursday.

Dr. Brady said Conger lost most of his right arm to sharks. He said Mrs. Conger's arms and legs were badly bitten.

Neither Dr. Brady nor the Coast Guard were able to determine what caused the boat to come apart.

"This is the first case like this I've seen in 10 years as medical examiner," Dr. Brady said.

The deadly white shark featured in the movie, "Jaws", is common in the Pacific Ocean north and south of Oregon, but is seldom seen off the Oregon coast, said a spokesman for the Oregon Fish commission in Newport.

Downtown Crowds Warm To Chaplin's 'Ghost'

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

The ghost of Charlie Chaplin and Buster Keaton has been haunting tourist-packed downtown streets this week.

He wears baggy pants, white shirt and bow tie, and a battered felt hat. His props are a twirling wicker cane, a wooden chair and a dilapidated brown satchel.

His face is painted white, like a mime or a silent movie comic.

* * *

Amused tourists watch as he performs a variety of silent comedy stunts, like tripping over his own feet, aping the walk and mannerisms of passersby, stopping surprised matrons and gallantly kissing their hand.

From his satchel he produces a bottle hidden in a bag and begins to "drink", staggering around like a wino and twirling his cane.

The young performer is Richard Brenne, 19, of Portland, Oregon, who travels up and down the Pacific coast performing on city streets and living off donations he gets when he passes his battered hat after a performance.

* * *

"I'm not really a mime. I'm a visual comedian," said Brenne, who speaks with a slight stammer.

"My heroes are Chaplin and Keaton."

He began performing about a year ago after watching many silent movies, and now, does a characterization of Chaplin, the little man who bumbles through life.

While in Victoria Brenne is staying with local performer Jerry Gosley. He said he really admires Gosley and would like to produce a show like the Smile Show when he returns to Portland.

Man Leaps From Blaze

Fire destroyed a two-storey rooming house at 679 Battery this morning forcing five people to flee for their lives, including an elderly woman confined to a wheelchair and a young man who had to jump from a second floor window.

Fire broke out at about 11:15 a.m. in a first floor room occupied by Mrs. J. I. Mckenzie.

By the time Victoria firemen reached the scene, flames were coming out of the doorways and windows in the building, but firemen had the blaze under control in a half hour.

Assistant Chief Robert Cherneff said the fire gutted the first and second floors and spread into the attic and broke through the roof.

He estimated damage at several thousand dollars.

A resident of the rooming house said Mrs. Mckenzie's sister, vacationing from Florida, had attempted to light the gas stove when it exploded into flames.

The two women were forced out of the room, the sister pushing Mrs. Mckenzie in her wheelchair, one of them crying out "Fire!"

The cry alerted other residents in the eight-suite wood frame building.

Mark Shaffer, who has lived in a second-floor apartment for the last year, said he heard a woman yelling that there was a fire in the building, rushed to the back of the building, saw smoke and phoned in the fire alarm.

When he tried to run for the exit the second time, flames forced him back and he was forced to escape through a kitchen building in an adjacent suite, swinging down onto the front porch and falling to the ground.. He was not hurt.

Shaffer said he then banged on the window of the basement suite occupied by David Dressler, a young man who had moved into the building only a month ago.

Dressler said he was asleep and wearing ear plugs at the time but heard the loud knocks and made his escape through the only window in his room.

The rooming house is owned by a Mr. Raeder.

NEWS BRIEFS

Forest Mediator's Term Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Bill King Thursday extended the term of the special mediator in the British Columbia forest industry dispute to Aug. 12. The appointment of Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court was for 21 days and would have expired Saturday.

King said the extension was made at Mr. Justice Hutcheon's request and it was hoped 10 extra days would give the mediator "enough time to bring about a resolution of this very important labor-management dispute."

Gowon Off To Togo

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Deposed Nigerian leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon left Uganda today for the West African country of Togo, reliable sources said. They said Gowon flew in Ugandan President Idi Amin's personal Grumman executive jet.

Pen Strike Still On

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoners at Millhaven institution remained in their cells today on the second day of a proposed 11-day sit-in in support of demands made by British Columbia penitentiary prisoners for a union. The prisoners began the sit-in about 8 a.m. Thursday when they returned to their cells after breakfast and refused to leave them.

Floggings Ordered

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Four men who pleaded guilty to a long series of burglaries and armed robberies were sentenced Thursday to the most severe floggings ever assessed by a Singapore court. The men — who also received stiff prison sentences — were each sentenced to 36 strikes of the rattan cane, unprecedented in Singapore history.

More Jobs In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. unemployment rate dropped 0.2 percentage points to 8.4 per cent in July and the number of people with jobs rose for the first time in seven months, the labor department said today. Labor said 630,000 people were added to the job roles in July, including substantial boosts in work for teen-agers and women. Total employment rose to 85.1 million.

ICBC Talks Break Down

As protesting ICBC employees from Vancouver Island surrounded the legislative building in their cars Thursday, negotiations in Vancouver broke down, again postponing an end to the 10-week dispute.

The negotiating committee of the Office and Technical Employees Union Local 378 Thursday rejected the latest offer from the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and announced that it will recommend that the union apply for the services of a government-appointed industrial inquiry commission.

The rejected offer provided for raises of about 30 per cent over a 27-month contract.

Union president Fred Trotter said the offer was "totally inadequate."

As the negotiation committee was rejecting the offer, about 100 Vancouver Island employees in a 65-car cavalcade converged on the legislature, honking horns and driving slowly past the front steps.

Purpose of the demonstration was to bring the strike to public attention and to protest government interference in the bargaining process and the hiring of strikebreakers, local shop steward Wayne Koski said.

The cavalcade started off early Thursday in Campbell River, and went to Courtenay, Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Duncan and Victoria, picking up cars along the way.

The protest parade got together outside Victoria to make the trek down Douglas Street, but by the time it got to the legislative buildings, many of the protesters had straggled behind, caught by traffic lights on Douglas.

The cavalcade also gained a

Hoffa: Abducted or Dead?

DETROIT (UPI) — Former teamsters president James Hoffa officially was a missing person today, and speculation he was kidnapped or slain swept the union he once ruled with an iron fist. Michigan's governor said he was told Hoffa disappeared after planning to meet a reputed Mafia leader.

"I know the police suspect foul play," said L. Brooks Patterson, prosecutor in Oakland county, where the 62-year old Hoffa lives and where he vanished more than 24 hours before his family notified authorities.

Some union sources said they feared Hoffa's disappearance would intensify rivalries that already have spilled over into beatings and bombings.

Other reports said the Hoffa family feared he was dead.

Hoffa's car was found abandoned in a shopping centre lot outside a fashionable Bloomfield Township restaurant where Hoffa apparently made a luncheon date.

Police were led to the car by an anonymous telephone caller.

Gov. William Milliken said Thursday night he understood Hoffa planned to meet Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a reputed kingpin of the Detroit Mafia.

Milliken did not elabaorate.

One of Hoffa's sons, James P. Hoffa, signed a missing persons report Thursday night and said his father was expected home at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Helsinki Charter Seals Europe Borders

HELSINKI (AP) — Concluding the biggest conclave of world leaders in 160 years, delegates of 35 countries today put their signatures to a charter aimed at guiding their conduct on the European continent and treatment of their own citizens.

One by one, the leaders of Europe and North America signed the 100-page leather-bound document as it was passed along a table on the stage of the ultramodern Finlandia Hall.

The controversial document, hammered out during 30 months of arduous negotiations here and in Geneva, tacitly accepts the post-war map of Europe — including Soviet conquests there — with a clause that says national frontiers shall be "inviolable" unless changed by peaceful means.

This was in exchange for Western-backed clauses pledging the participating countries to further the civil rights and ease the daily lives of their citizens and promote a freer flow of information across the ideological divide.

Before signing the document, U.S. President Ford, warned delegates "peace is not a piece of paper." He urged large cuts in east and west bloc military forces and challenged the Communists to honor the Summit pledge of respect for human rights.

In a 20-minute address near the conclusion of the three-day security summit Ford repeatedly shook his finger for emphasis and warned his colleagues they must carry out the document's grand humanitarian pledges or risk bitter popular backlash at home.

"The people of all Europe and. I assure you, the people of North America are thoroughly tired of having their hopes raised and then shattered by empty words and unfulfilled pledges," Ford said.

"We had better say what we mean and mean what we say, or we will have the anger of our citizens to answer."

The Finlandia hall audience heard Ford out in silence and then gave him a 40-second final ovation—perhaps the longest salute of the three-day conference. Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party chief, clapped heartily even though the thrust and tone of Ford's remarks ran counter to his own call Thursday for each nation to mind its own political business.

A Soviet delegation source said the Russians considered Ford's remarks "positive and realistic."

The president himself told UPI, "I'm glad it's over, but it went very well."

Mindful of criticism that the summit document ratifies Soviet domination of Eastern Europe in return for vague promises of respect for human rights, Ford put heavy stress on the need for practical followup action.

"Peace is not a piece of paper," he said. "detente . . .

must be a two-way street."

He referred specifically to the stalled east-west negotiations on mutual reduction of military forces in central Europe, which have made little headway in two years.

"It is now time to reduce substantially the high levels of military forces stationed in central Europe," Ford said, and he offered to meet the Soviets halfway to break the stalemate.

"The United States stands ready to demonstrate flexibility in moving these negotiations forward, if others will do the same. An agreement that enhances mutual security is feasible — and essential."

He also promised Washington and Moscow would give top priority to further limitation of nuclear armaments.

In a section he addressed directly "to the countries of the east," Ford said the summit's pledge to advance basic human freedoms must be put into practice.

"We must take these words and this work seriously," he said. "It is important that you recognize the deep devotion of the American people and their government to human rights and the fundamental freedoms and thus to the pledges that this conference has made regarding the freer movement of people, ideas and information."

With Brezhnev closely following the interpretation of his words through earphones and scribbling notes, Ford said history would judge this summit "not by the promises we make, but by the promises we keep."

PM, BREZHNEV TALK ON FISH

HELSINKI (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the Soviet Union is anxious to end its fisheries dispute with Canada.

Trudeau made the statement as Canadian and Soviet officials began the first discussions since Canada banned the huge Soviet fishing fleet from Canadian Atlantic ports this month.

The officials held two meetings Thursday, making preliminary arrangements for formal discussions. The talks followed a 10-minute chat between Trudeau and Soviet leader Brezhnev.

Trudeau also held bilateral discussions with West German Chancellor Schmidt, Swedish Prime Minster Palme and Romanian leader Ceausescu.

Today, he is to have a second, more formal meeting with Norwegian Prime Minister Bratteli when fisheries questions and a possible 200-mile fishing limit are expected to be discussed.

At breakfast with Schmidt, the prime minister discussed NATO and nuclear matters.

The prime minister also raised the question of recycling equipment that could be used to turn waste products from a Candu nuclear reactor into plutonium that could be used for nuclear explosions.

Reports have been raised in the House of Commons saying that West Germany and France are attempting to sell such equipment to Argentina and South Korea — two potential customers for Canada's Candu reactor.

Trudeau sought an upgrading of German safeguards as Canada had upgraded her safeguards late last year and called for more international conferences of nuclear suppliers.

He said nothing was decided at the Schmidt meeting — that he was conveying the concerns of the Canadian people — and that there was a willingness on both parts to consider the matter further.

Nuclear matters came up later talks between Trudeau and Ceausescu, who outlined Romania's interest in obtaining Candu-type nuclear reactors.

He expressed hope that negotiations with Atomc Enerpy of Canada Ltd. could be brought to an early conclusion.

Turkey Turns Down $50M in U.S. Aid

HELSINKI (AP) — United States President Ford offered on Thursday to give Turkey $50 million in military aid in exchange for the reopening of U.S. bases but was turned down, according to State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

The offer came during a breakfast meeting between the president and Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel. Kissinger said the president made the offer under provisions of U.S. law that allow him to waive a ban on arms aid to Turkey if it is in the U.S. national interest.

Demirel rejected the offer as contradictory, Kissinger said.

"Turkey takes the position that it is contradictory to give $50 million as a gift when it can't buy arms or take delivery on arms already purchased," he told a news conference.

Nevertheless, he added, "It is our impression that the situation is recoverable. That is, the bases can be substantially restored if the House of Representatives reverses itself."

Kissinger was referring to action by the House of Representatives last week to continue the embargo against arms aid to Turkey because of Turkey's use of U.S. military equipment to invade Cyprus a year ago.

Canada, E. Germany To Exchange Envoys

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada and East Germany ended today almost a year of disagreement on the reunification of families and agreed to exchange ambassadors, Prime Minister Trudeau announced.

The prime minister and East German Premier Erich Honecher put their seal of approval on the agreement in a private talk at the European security summit meeting.

Canada recognized the Communist country in January, 1973. But prolonged negotiations could not overcome Canadian demands that the East Germans allow members of families to cross the Iron Curtain to join other members.

The Canadian objections were overcome in talks between officials of the two countries here and agreement was announced just before 35 European and North American leaders were to sign a document part of which deals with reunification.

Southern regions of B.C. are expected to be at least partly sunny early today but cloud ahead of a weak Pacific disturbance will gradually spread in from the north. Showers looked for along and behind the system should be most numerous in the northern half of the province. Looking ahead an area of high pressure that is forecast to rebuild over B.C. on Saturday will promote a drying trend while the temperature pattern remains near normal.

John LeMay protests on Legislature lawn

Prospector Pickets House

A Kelowna prospector set up a picket sign in front of the legislature Thursday and will stay there for several months unless he gets answers to his questions, he said.

John LeMay, protesting delays in receiving a grant under the Prospectors' Assistance Act, said he has been trying to get money from mines department since January.

He applied for the grant in January, his application was approved in May and on June 2 he was told by Mines Minister Leo Nimsick that money would be available "in the next two or three weeks."

"But I'm still waiting," LeMay said Thursday.

He talked to Nimsick Wednesday, he said, and was told he had applied to prospect in too many places.

"But that's ridiculous because the director (of the grant fund) has the right to choose where you're going to go."

LeMay said he had only about $200 to live on for several months, but said he would keep up his picket until he got an answer.

He said he would sleep at the Salvation Army hostel and when his money runs out "I guess I'll get some of that charity to get some food.

"They preach to us that they're for the people, well, I'm the people," he said.

Second Finlayson Bush Fire

A careless smoker is believed to be the cause of a new fire the second in three days which broke out on Mount Finlayson Thursday afternoon. It was quickly brought under control by forestry firefighters, assisted by two water bombers from Abbotsford.

"We were lucky," said a B.C. Forest Service official. "We caught it just in time."

He advised people who smoke in the woods to butt their cigarettes on a rock—not on a stump or any other combustible material. The butt should also be broken up to ensure that it is out.

The new fire broke out near a trail leading to the summit of Finalyson.

The Finlayson trails are heavily used during the summer months by visitors camping in Goldstream Park.

BCFS also reported all fires which broke out a week ago on southern Vancouver Island were out or in the process of being mopped up.

B.C. To Go To Talks ... Silently

B.C. health department representatives have been instructed to keep silent during talks on medical cost-sharing at an upcoming federal-provincial conference as a protest against federal budget measures.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said B.C. will not participate in any cost-sharing discussions with Ottawa due to the federal government's "unilateral action in forcing provincial governments to assume a higher burden in financing of health programs.

Under the terms of the recent federal budget Ottawa will start contributing a smaller share of increasing medical costs next year.

A meeting of provincial health ministers in Victoria later this month will discuss the entire matter, said Cocke.

few cars—a bewildered-looking driver in his huge motorhome with Quebec licence plates was caught in the middle of the parade as it passed slowly in front of the buildings.

The cars all bore signs proclaiming the employees' discontentment Premier Barrett, Transport Minister Bob Strachan, the strike and ICBC in general.

One of the signs, a take-off on the recent CIA in B.C. allegations, asked: "Is ICBC a CIA plot?"

Another advised motorists to "Demand a rebate for no service," while others read "Curse You, Red Barrett" and "Get us off the road and back to work."

The cars ringed the puildings for about 10 minutes while the blue-suited tour guides urged tourists to stay on the lawns out of the way. One white-haired woman, apparently angered by the disruption of her holiday, had some harsh words for the drivers as she held up her hands and stopped the cars so she could cross the driveway.

One of the car sstalled in front of the steps and had to be pushed out of the driveway.

ICBC has proposed a 15 per cent wage increase or a $100 a month minimum increase retroactive to June 1, 1974, with another seven per cent increase in November, 1975 and a further eight per cent in March, 1976. The contract would expire Aug. 31, 1976.

Trotter said the union would settle for wage increase of eight per cent June 1, 1974, 20 per cent Nov. 1, 1974 and 15 per cent Aug. 1, 1975 with the contract expiring Sept. 30, 1976.

Trotter said the ICBC offer would be conveyed to the members, but would not be voted on. He said he will recommend the appointment of an industrial inquiry commission.

Siedo Tzogoeff, director of labor relations of ICBC, said the union rejection of the wage offer, puts negotiations "back to square one."

He said all other matters except wages and hours of work have been agreed to.

The company proposed a 35-hour, four-day week for claims centre employees and a five-day week for head office staff.

The union wants accumulation of time worked instead of a shorter work week.

Private Schools Bus Aid Planned

"All it can do is fragment the present public school system beyond repair."

Gerry Ensing, executive director of the Federation of Independent School Associations, said he's very pleased with the recommendations.

"It's actually one of the very few positive responses we've had from a B.C. government in the last 20 years," he said.

He saw the report as a response to a growing public demand and sympathy for educational alternatives and for schools "that don't hide the values they teach."

Ensing expressed disappointment that more of FISA's requests weren't included in the report such as access to district and regional resource centres and free access to community recreational facilities for private schools.

He said government-supported busing will affect only 15 to 20 per cent of independent school students.

Premier Barrett announced the formation of the committee in last spring's budget speech and said his government believed it has a responsibility "to provide basic services to all children regardless of where these children are being educated."

The committee said today's report is just its preliminary work and they will continue to meet on further instructions of the government.

According to the report the committee was still operating under the government's policy of not directly financing the operations of independent schools.

During the series of meetings held by the committee, it accepted approximately 1,200 letters and briefs including submissions from B.C. School Trustees' Association and the Federation of Independent School Associations.

Barrett gave the committee an Aug. 1 deadline.

U.S. Arms Expert 'Confident' Israel Has About 10 N-Bombs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A military expert says he's confident Israel has at least 10 nuclear weapons.

Dale R. Tahtinen, a former Defence Intelligence Agency official, was asked Thursday about a report that Israel may have 10 weapons — each with a force comparable to the atom bombs used at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

"They definitely have the weapons," said Tahtinen, who currently is assistant director of foreign and defence policy studies for the American Enterprise Institute, a private research organization.

"Now if you want to get into hairsplitting, whether they have 10 or 12 . . . I'm not sure. But I'm very confident they have them," he said in a telephone interview . . . "at least 10 is a very reasonable estimate of the number they have."

The Boston Globe said Thursday "senior American analysts believe Israel has made more than 10 nuclear weapons, each with an explosive force comparable to the atomic bombs that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

The article by former Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Israel was seeking long-range weapons to attack distant Arab nations that might send troops or weapons to help Syria and Egypt attack Israel.

State department spokesman Robert L. Funseth would not comment on the report. He did note that Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a Dec. 17 Danish television interview said Israel is not a nuclear power and has no nuclear weapons.

If Israel has the weapons, it would be the sixth nuclear power. The United States, Russia, China, Britain and France already have atomic weapons. India has exploded a "peaceful" nuclear device but is not believed to be able to use it as a weapon.

ISRAELIS RAID

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli troops crossed into Lebanon during the night and blew up a house during a search for suspected Arab guerrillas, the military command reported today.

The spokesman said the troops encountered no resistance and suffered no casualties during the mission of several hours. A communique said the house in the village of Kawaza about three miles from the border was suspected "of being used by Arab terrorists."

The incursion followed three gun battles across the border between Israeli and Arab forces during the last week' Israeli troops raided a border village July 23 and brought back seven suspected Arab guerrillas to Israel for questioning.

In Damascus, President Hafez Assad said in an Army Day speech today that Syria "is now able to fight modern wars using the most sophisticated weapons. It is the army of the whole Arab nation."

He said Syria will not end its military buildup "until we liberate our occupied lands."

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt announced a full mobilization last week and said Egyptian armed forces are ready to go to war if current efforts to achieve a Sinai settlement with Israel fail.

Whites Flee Angola

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Portugal will conduct a two-month airlift starting Monday to evacuate 200,000 Portuguese from the war-torn West African colony of Angola, according to the Johannesburg Star.

There was no immediate confirmation by Portuguese officials.

The airlift, organized by the Portuguese airline TAP, will transport 3,000 people daily to Lisbon, the newspaper says in a report from Angola.

It quotes a TAP official in Angola as saying "the last thing we and the Portuguese government are concerned about now is the cost."

TAP officials in Luanda said the airline will withdraw carriers from other overseas services to take part in the airlift, the newspaper says.

Residents of towns and villages in a wide circle around Luanda fled their homes today to avoid fighting for control of the Angolan capital.

More than 6,000 refugees poured into Nova Lisboa, about 400 miles south of Luanda, fleeing the towns of Porto Amboim, Novo Redondo, Gabela and Quibala, all less than 200 miles from the capital, a Portuguese military spokesman said.

The Chinese-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the rival Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola have been battling near the evacuated towns for control of southern access routes to the capital.

Meanwhile, a military mission left Lisbon today for Angola in an attempt to avert civil war.

The three-man mission consists of Gen. Carlos Fabiao, commander-in-chief of the army and a leading political moderate; Vice-Admiral Rosa Coutinho, a leftist who was high commissioner in Angola until January; and Maj. Jose Canto e Castra.

Lisbon Purges Army Brass

LISBON (AP) — Thirteen top military security men have been removed from their posts in a crackdown promised by Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, the Portuguese junta's emerging strongman.

An army communique Thursday said nine officers and four sergeants were removed from their posts on Carvalho's orders for lack of "discipline, efficiency and political conscience." There was no direct accusation of plotting or mutiny.

The Associated Press had reported erroneously that the 13 men were arrested. The communique did not say they were arrested.

Copcon, the national security force Carvalho heads, refused to say where the men were. An official statement said without elaboration that the men had been transferred to the army chief of staff.

The army said Carvalho "re-affirmed the necessity of reinforcing the alliance of the Armed Forces Movement and the people."

It said action was taken "considering the present political moment."

Carvalho said Wednesday he would crack down on anti-left dissidence and violence. He implied he would do it with mass arrests, perhaps even executions, if necessary.

The ouster of the 13 security men was announced after the military's ruling 30-member Revolutionary Council formally handed over unlimited power to Carvalho, President Francisco da Costa Gomes and Premier Vasco Goncalves.

Later, Costa Gomes, with Goncalves at his side, announced the formation of a new cabinet, the fifth since the Armed Forces Movement deposed the rightist dictatorship in April, 1974. Names of the new cabinet members were not announced.

Costa Gomes is reportedly leading a strong moderate move in the ruling Armed Forces Movement to ease out Goncalves because he represents a radical political and military "minority" which has antagonized and frightened the majority of the Portuguese people as well as the Western world.

Former Jet Set Beauty Latest Gandhi Arrest

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Indian government Thursday announced the arrest of the Maharani of Jaipur, one of the great beauties of all time and a darling of the international jet set — an immensely popular woman who is also an opposition member of parliament.

The specific charges were not announced but were thought to stem from the discovery early this year of more than $17 million in gold, silver, jewels and cash in some of the family's great palaces in New Delhi and in Jaipur, once the capital of the princely state of Jaipur.

The charges said only that the government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had charged her with violations of the conservation of foreign exchange and prevention of smuggling act. The vast wealth of the former maharajas was theoretically seized when the princely states were abolished years ago.

THE MAHARANI

The Maharani, known as the Rajmata or Queen Mother after the 1970 death of her husband, the Maharaja of Jaipur, is the sister of the Maharajah of Cooch Behar, another of the princely kingdoms of incalculable wealth. She and her husband who was known as "Jai" in the jet set were well known to society from New York to Mayfair, from Southampton to Palm Beach to the Riviera.

HEAD-SHAPED MIKE FOR CBC?

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC is preparing to make radio programs with a new microphone shaped like a human head, says John Reeves, the producer in charge of the project.

Reeves says the microphone may revolutionize the recording industry and make costly quadrophonic systems obsolete because it reproduces all the sound characteristics of a live situation.

He says the kunstokopf, German for artificial head, developed in Berlin for research into human hearing, not only produces the right and left sensations of stereo but also front, back, up and down for an all-around-sound effect.

It is made of hard rubber and has facial features, ears and ear canals. But instead of eardrums is has a pair of condenser microphones which feed the two sides of a stereo tape.

He says scientists have not figured out why it works the way it does.

The broadcasts recorded by the kunstkopf can be heard on mono or stereo radios but for the full effect the listener must wear earphones.

Reeves said the system works better than quadraphonic sound and for less money.

He said that if he is given the budget he may have the first kunstkopf broadcast on the air by November.

The program series will be called The Best Seat in the House.

Cuba Si at Long Last

After 11 years of ostracism Cuba has received an official stamp of approval from the United States dominated Organization of American states. So ends a futile attempt on the part of the U.S. to bring Fidel Castro's government to heel. The political and economic sanctions against the Western Hemisphere's only Marxist state were never more than a serious inconvenience to Cuba. Mexico ignored the blockade and Canada, which is not a member of the O.A.S. increased its trade with Cuba almost ten-fold during the U.S. fit of pique.

The U.S. action in the O.A.S. will undoubtedly be followed by a formalization of diplomatic relations between the two countries, at some future date. It will take years before the Bay of Pigs fiasco or Cuban Missile crisis are forgotten by either side. But normalization of relations, a recognition of reality in effect, can only lead to more understanding and eventual accommodation. As long as Cuba was the black sheep of the Western hemisphere it could act with relative impunity in Latin America, having few channels of communication among its neighbors. Now it will be Castro's turn to be wary. Massive Soviet aid, said to amount to nearly $1 million per day, has given Cuba a measure of tenuous independence from its more traditional trading partners.

With the re-opening of Cuban-U.S. trade, Canada's trading position with Cuba could suffer. During the blockade Canadian exports to Cuba rose from $15 million annually to more than $135 million in 1974. Trade and Commerce officials hope the figure will increase this year. But many of the Canadian manufactured items supplied to Cuba came from the U.S. in earlier days. Castro has publicly said Canada's preferential trading position would not be forgotten in the wake of normal times. Still, the government should work hard to retain what was formerly a captive market.

The O.A.S. resolution is a move in the right direction, yet even this gesture of conciliation showed the organization for what it is: a subservient creature of the U.S. Last year the U.S. abstained on a similar resolution to end Cuban sanctions. The resolution was defeated. This year only Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay predictably voted against the measure. Had Canada been a member of this organization our Cuban policy might have been compromised this decade too. In the mid-seventies Fidel Castro appears to be more interested in exporting sugar than revolution. U.S. President Gerald Ford is willing to let bygones be bygones. New positions may herald more maturity in how the nations of the Western hemisphere deal with their differences. The O.A.S. resolution is at least a welcome portent.

A Question of Leadership

At times, the lack of leadership on the crisis of inflation, the absence of proper examples shown by the people at the top in Ottawa, is enough to make you tear your hair and grind your teeth in impotent frustration.

Such should be the reaction to the latest example. Prime Minister Trudeau says it would be "slightly unfair" for executive-level bureaucrats to conform to the salary guidelines Finance Minister John Turner proposed earlier this year to business and labor, a maximum of $2,400 annual increase.

For the 1,200 civil service executives, the government is proposing a 10 per cent increase in present salaries ranging from $25,000 to $66,000 a year, meaning raises of $2,500 to $6,000.

As if $40,000 a year wasn't enough for Beryl Plumptre of the ineffectual Food Prices Review Board, or $55,000 was insufficient for Marshall Crowe of the National Energy Board, or $60,000 not enough for T. K. Shoyama, new deputy finance minister, to provide food and shelter in Ottawa? Ten per cent on top of these kinds of salaries is more than some people's entire salaries.

The prime minister recently led the celebrating among Liberals at the first anniversary of his re-election in 1974, an election supposedly fought on the issue of leadership. Soon after Canadians voted for "leadership," Trudeau was talking scornfully about people's hunger for the man on the white horse out in front, leading.

Is the issue of leadership only something to be trotted out every four or five years, just for election purposes, then retired to pasture again?

While the federal cabinet may convoke earnestly amid graphs and flow charts and computer projections on the day-to-day and month-to-month fluctuations of the economic indicators, while the machinery is ticking over, Canadians hear nothing from their "leader."

Trudeau may be a shy man, as we are told, someone who jealously guards his private life, who dislikes the corny posturing and the speechifying and the petty demagoguery that goes with politics. In ordinary times, no one would care greatly. Nowadays, he ignores the public at his peril. The country can drift only so long.

W. A. WILSON

Tough Talk Only Romanticizing

OTTAWA — There is an element of unreality about the current clamor for unilateral Canadian action to establish a 200-mile fishing limit around the nation's coasts.

The scheme seems to arouse some excitement in Atlantic Canada but it breaks down against the difficult question of how such a limit could be enforced. Iceland is having exactly the same difficulty with the limit it has proclaimed around its coasts and is finding it essential to fall back on negotiations.

There is ultimately only one way to enforce territorial limits against intruders — to arrest them. It would not be impossible for a Canadian destroyer to "arrest" a Soviet trawler 150 miles off Newfoundland, say, but the international row that would follow would be horrendous. In the eyes of everyone except Canada, it would mean this country's naval units had seized a foreign ship on the high seas, in international waters.

Danger of Humiliation

The Soviet Union might not actually send out a force to recover their vessel, as the Americans did when the Mayaguez was seized by the Cambodians this spring, but they could put on enough pressure to ensure the ship was quickly returned to them. The loss of face and humiliation would quickly kill off the excitement which talk of unilateral action is currently creating.

Compounding the problem would be the fact that the United States, with worldwide concerns over territorial limits, a distaste for unilateral action by other countries and a concern to avoid world crises, would be about at patient with us as the late president Eisenhower was with the British and French when they produced the Suez crisis by invading Egypt in 1956.

The plain fact is that ill-armed middle powers do not go about seizing vessels from super powers. Thus a unilateral declaration of a 200-mile fishing limit would present us with just about the same problem we now face in trying to get the Soviet Union, Spain and Portugal to observe the quotas set by international agreement. The enforcement problem is the main reason why the government is so reluctant to go beyond diplomatic negotiations in its attempt to secure a 200-mile limit.

There unquestionably is a serious fisheries problem off the east coast and there exists a relatively clear and reliable measurement of it. In the 1960s the government encouraged the construction of much larger trawlers than had previously been employed. Their ordinary catches today run about half the capacity for which they were designed and which until a couple of years ago they could fill.

Ocean fisheries have such great regenerative capacities that the government is satisfied that, if adequate international restraint could be shown, the Atlantic fish stocks would be back to normal in no more than five years. The term "adequate restraint," however, would involve some change in fishing methods as well as respect for quotas.

HAKE FISHING
. . . how will we enforce new limit?

The big and extremely efficient Russian trawler fleet tends to swoop through a good fishing area, virtually clearing it out. Canadian officials would like to see the Soviet Union spread its efforts out more, avoiding what is sometimes called here the rape of whole ocean areas. They would like to see a change in the single-minded concentration on cod of the Portuguese and Spanish trawlers in favor of more general catches. As it is, the vessels from those countries simply discard everything else. The fish, however, smother in the nets as they are being boarded, so throwing back the unwanted species is not a conservation measure. Canada does, however, require this country's own trawlers to throw back surpluses but only as a means of enforcing respect for quotas.

Some members of the government believe that the Soviet administration is more sympathetic to Canadian conservation proposals than is generally recognized here but has difficulty controlling its trawlers when they are operating far from home.

However that may be, the Canadian action in barring east coast ports to the Russian fleet has more teeth than its detractors are prepared to concede. The Soviet Union certainly could send out supply ships and tankers to its fishing fleet but that is an expense and an inconvenience. It is not true that the Russians could simply use the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon as supply ports to substitute for the Canadian facilities now denied them. There is a good reason for this St. Pierre and Miquelon get their entire gasoline and oil supply from Canada. There is no refinery on either island. Thus this country is in an effective position to ensure that the Soviet trawlers are not refuelled there.

One More Tooth

The government clearly hopes, and apparently believes, that the United States can be persuaded to co-operate with the Canadian action and, if this proves to be true, the Soviet trawlers really will have been inconvenienced. There is, however, one more tooth in this particular action.

The Soviet Union is involved in some bilateral negotiations with the third world countries over fishing rights. The government will not say so but, nonetheless, it clearly hopes that its action in barring our ports to Russian trawlers will be noted in these other countries as a sign that the Soviet Union is unco-operative in fisheries managment.

In themselves, none of these factors would be decisive, but there is considerable hope here that there will be encouragements towards a negotiated solution, which the government regards as the only realistic way of approaching the problem. Talk of "getting tough with the Russians" must be dismissed as romanticizing.

Humane Trapping

The Canadian Association for Humane Trapping notes with great interest the numerous articles and letters appearing in your newspaper during the past few months concerning the issue of humane trapping. We feel that your readers might be interested to learn of our association.

The Canadian Association for Humane Trapping has been working for humane trapping methods for over 30 years. Our purpose, as stated in our bylaws, is to foster the lessening and eventual elimination of the suffering imposed on wild animals by the steel leg-hold trap or by any other device used for the taking of wild animals. CAHT now has approximately 7000 members throughout the world.

CAHT is not against trapping. We are against the cruelties involved in much trapping activity, caused largely by the use of painful devices such as the leg-hold, and lack of proper training and skills among many trappers. To make trapping humane we need humane traps for all species (the modified Conibear is very good for beaver, raccoon, marten, and fisher) and the assurance that each trapper is both conscious of the need for humaneness in his treatment of wild animals and skilled in implementing humane methods.

The work of CAHT has entailed such positive programs as the free exchange of leg-hold traps for Conibear quick-kill traps (we spent over $40,000 on this program) and extensive financial assistance to inventors of potential humane traps. In conjunction with the Canadian Federation of Humane Societies and the Association for the Protection of Fur-bearing Animals, CAHT was involved in a five-year trap testing and development program at two Ontario universities. This program, in fact, received financial support from the government of British Columbia.

If your readers have any questions about humane trapping and the work of CAHT please have them write to us. Their support in our urgent work is greatly appreciated. Membership in CAHT is $2 a year. Donations, which are tax deductible, are gratefully received. Members receive our bulletin informing them of activities of the association and the progress being made toward humane trapping. The address of the Canadian Association for Humane Trapping is: Box 934, Station F, Toronto M4Y 2N9.— Pamela Margles, Executive Secretary.

Simple Arithmetic

At this time I would like to do a simple exercise in arithmetic for Finance Minister John Turner, his colleagues and the working class of our country.

Turner stated he will make a $1 billion dollar cut in planned expenditures to quote, "set an example to business and labor."

At these times of inflation this is indeed quite a cut, is it not? But wait a minute, let us first look at the example our federal and provincial leaders have set for us.

	1970	Today	Increase
Federal MPs	$18,000	$34,600	92%
Ontario MPPs	$18,000	$22,500	25%
Quebec MLAs	$18,000	$29,700	65%
British Columbia MLAs	$10,000	$24,000	140%
Newfoundland MLAs	$ 8,700	$12,000	38%
Nova Scotia MLAs	$ 7,500	$14,400	92%
New Brunswick MLAs	$ 7,500	$10,500	40%
Manitoba MLAs	$ 7,200	$14,400	100%
Alberta MLAs	$ 7,200	$13,500	88%
Saskatchewan MLAs	$ 6,000	$12,500	108%
Prince Edward Is. MLAs	$ 4,000	$10,500	163%

These figures include tax free expense allowances but not travel privileges, meals and accommodation payments, or allowances for offices and secretaries.

Now let us look at the so-called $1 billion federal spending cut. Add this up and see for yourself:

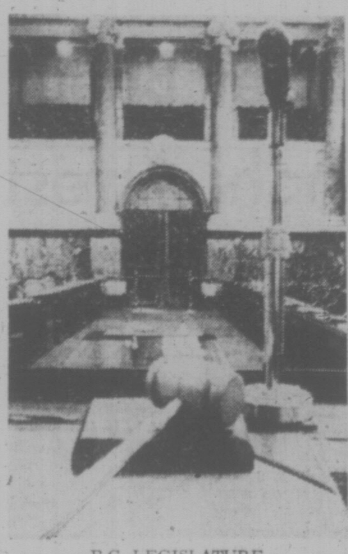
Note: An increase of $40 per week in salary means the government obtains $12 per week or $48 per month in income tax. Now you multiply $48 per month by 12 months and by 5 million workers and you get approximately $3 billion per year more revenue from the average working man of our country and I am sure this is a very conservative figure.

So in fact, Mr. Turner, you are not trying to cut $1 billion from our budget, you are going to have to work hard to waste the $3 billion dollars you squeezed from the working class.

Mind you, we were told not to ask for large wage increases, but you did not put any teeth or direction behind that request. Maybe this is due to the fact that of all people that benefit from salary increases the government receives more than their share without all the inconvenience of strikes, lockouts, etc.

The time has come for people to ask for salary increases in the range of eight to 10 per cent and force the government into increasing our personal exemptions and allowing home and property taxes as deductible.

This, I believe, would bring a slowdown of inflation as the government would then not have an abundance of money with which to create new bureaucracies to squander the people's earnings on.



B.C. LEGISLATURE
. . . 140 per cent in five years

A twofold benefit could arise from this type of thinking:

- would help keep down the price of our exports which are fast pricing themselves out of the world market,
- and this in turn could help our unemployment problem as our products would be in demand once again, creating jobs.

If indeed Turner has to find a way to spend that three or four billion dollars, why not apply it to property taxes of people over 65 on fixed incomes who are having an exceedingly difficult time to not only hold on to their property, but also to feed and clothe themselves.

We need less bureaucratic bungling and mismanagement of our money — repeat OUR money, and a little more feeling and common sense applied to the allotment of the fantastic sums that are allocated for all kinds of useless commissions, boards and agencies. — Anthony R. van de Mortel, 1506 Charlton Road.

Naive Editorial

Your conception of schools, that they should "remain secular institutions teaching (only) skills," free from any "faith-conception" seems to me extremely naive.

Education, by its very nature, can never be conducted on such a neutral basis. Education opens up life itself to the child during the most impressionable, formative years of his life. The child is presented with the schools' subject matter which is necessarily and integrally interwoven with a value-laden frame of reference. How can education, worthy of the name, avoid value judgments on such matters as the origin of man, the existence of God, man's task in the world, the basis of good and evil, morality, the nature of freedom, justice and responsibility, and, indeed, the very ultimates of life which are part and parcel of the student's everyday nurture? Through the educational process the child's experiences are deepened, standards and values are instilled and his life is given a definite direction. By studiously avoiding all references to God as creator, redeemer and upholder of man and the world; the school, ipso facto, effectively promotes the humanist, secularist ideology that serving God is a private matter with no meaningful relevance to broader life. John Dewey, one of the most influential leaders in North American education and advocate of public education, was far from neutral when he said: "The public school is the chief remedy of the ills of organized society."

Value judgments also arise out of the counselling, disciplinary action, and the example of the teachers and administration. Directional value judgments, therefore, permeate, interact, and become determinative in the total life of the academic institution.

Our public schools have not become benignly non-religious or neutral as many would have us believe in their defence of the present monopoly of public education. In the course of the years the educational institution of our province has simply shifted from the Christian philosophy of education to a variety of humanist, secularist philosophies.

In a true democracy and in a multicultural society such as ours there should be room for alternates in education. — Syrt Wolters, Member of the Board of Directors of the National Union of Christian Schools, 4821 Elk Road.

Cruel Picture

I wish to register a protest against the publication of such pictures that of a teenage girl falling to her death in your issue of Thursday, July 24.

This would seem to be unspeakably cruel for the parents of the girl, who are already experiencing a terrible tragedy, and I find myself asking "if this had been the photographer's daughter would he have taken that picture? If she had been your daughter, Mr. Editor, would you have published that picture?" I think the answer to both those questions is 'no'; and I think you would agree that the public deserve that same respect. — 'A parent'.

Quick Action

May I, through your columns, send the thanks of my wife and myself to the people (somebody on Clover Point and an unknown sports-fisherman) who through their quickness of action prevented us from being blown ashore when our engine failed during the blow on Friday, July 25, 1975. — C. E. Sykes, No. 405-2100 Richmond Ave.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of August 1, 1915

From a statement made by the premier, Sir Richard McBride, it seems very unlikely that there will be an election in British Columbia for another year. There are several things that tend against one being held until then. The money stringency brought about by the war appears in the mind of the premier to be the main reason why an election should be put off as far as possible.

The Man Who Wants to Stay President

By HELLA PICK, Manchester Guardian

WASHINGTON — Gerald Ford's announcement that he likes the White House so much that he actually wants to be elected and spend four more years there has not exactly electrified the country. But then he's not, after all, a man to rouse great political passions. He is an old-fashioned conservative, who constantly preaches that the less government there is the better, who believes in the virtues of individual enterprise, but also holds the greatest respect for the business giants.

He does not necessarily reflect views which a majority of American voters, a great many of them young, or black, and eight million of them unemployed, consider particularly relevant. But he possesses excellent political antennae, and what's more, among the blind, the one-eyed man is king.

There is a virtual sense of resignation that the competition is so poor that Gerald Ford with all his shortcomings may stay around for another term. Within the Republican Party there are really no credible challengers. Few suppose that Ronald Reagan, much less John Connally, could successfully challenge him, even if they fought a hard battle. They can only influence his policies and the choice of men surrounding him.

As for the Democrats, they are so leaderless and so demoralized by their search for a charismatic candidate, and their inability to define the great national issues, that it is hard to see, at this stage, how they can upset Ford's quest for the presidency. Ted Kennedy does not look like coming to the rescue. Hubert Humphrey wants the rescue job. But who really wants the old warhorses?

Ironically the Democrats' best hope lies in continuing unemployment perhaps leading to social unrest and loud protest against the Ford Administration's economic policies. So far, however, the signs are that President Ford's decision to concentrate on the fight against inflation rather than unemployment was the right political decision.

The millions of unemployed are seen occasionally, but they are heard only very rarely. They are submerged, leaderless, in America's far more numerous comfortably off middle classes, who are more concerned to keep their grocery bills down than worry about the plight of those who live in the slums.

It is commonplace to hear the unemployed described as people who simply don't want to work and prefer to live off welfare and food stamps. George Meany, the head of the AFL-CIO, from time to time blasts off against the Administration's failure to cope with unemployment. But organized labor only represents a small proportion of the work force here and is, if anything, even more conservative than Mr. Ford.

There is little militancy in the AFL-CIO and Mr. Ford exploits the passivity of the unions. His political acumen may also have been right when he decided simply to grant a pardon to Richard Nixon. Then the decision cost him enormous goodwill and his public opinion ratings plunged dramatically.

He argued that the pardon was necessary so that the country could put Watergate behind and concentrate on present day problems. Few people shared his views then — they wanted Richard Nixon brought into the courts and, at long last, to account for his misdeeds.

Mr. Ford stomped the country for the Republican candidates in last November's Congressional elections. But he failed dismally to stop the tide against the Republicans. The pardon had compounded the general revulsion against the party that had been led by Richard Nixon.

The Democrats won a great victory in November, and came back to the Congress with impressive controlling majorities in both the Senate and the House. There was much bright new blood among them and the young Turks quickly asserted themselves, upsetting the archaic seniority system and helping to elect more aggressive committee chairmen.

The Democratic leadership chuckled at Gerald Ford's discomfiture: the Democratic Congress would solve the country's economic problems, deal with the energy crisis, would teach Henry Kissinger a lesson or two, and generally cash in on the post-Watergate climate to make sure that the next incumbent of the White House would be a Democrat.

What a somersault they and Gerald Ford have tumbled since then. It is not so much that he outwitted them. The Democrats have failed with themselves. Moreover, Ford may just have conceivably been right in believing that grassroots America was tired of Watergate and content to let Richard Nixon smoulder in San Clemente. Those endless Watergate revelations and his struggle against impeachment and resignation not only exhausted Richard Nixon but the American nation.

The unheroic exodus from Vietnam just a few weeks ago placed a further seal on a deeply troubled period. People not so much want to forget but put it all behind them; Gerald Ford has turned out to be the ideal soporific.

Obviously not everybody shares their view. The endless spate of Watergate books are finding a ready market. Nixon himself has been given a big advance to write his memoirs.

The media, deprived of Nixon, have zeroed in on the CIA and other intelligence agencies, and are doing invaluable work demonstrating that invisible governments and subversion of democratic institutions was not just the brainchild of Richard Nixon, but have deeper, more elusive roots. It would be the ultimate irony if it now turns out to be true that Richard Nixon, who put in so much effort spying on his political enemies, was in turn spied on by the CIA.

It is impossible to dislike Ford, but very hard to feel that he is providing the kind of leadership that one would wish from the U.S. today. With all its problems and inconsistencies, and weaknesses, the U.S. is still incomparably better off, economically, and so fundamentally secure in its democratic processes. It contains so many people of an inquiring mind, willing to face the challenges of the modern world, that any outsider who knows and admires America would wish that more of this capital would spill over into the rest of the world.

This should be a good time to cast out the old slogans of "Yankee go home" and instead to hope that the U.S., as it enters its bicentennial year, will indeed find the political energy and imagination to reinvigorate a tired old world and a restive "Third World."

Diplomat's Death Remains an Issue

By DOUGLAS FISHER

NORMAN
. . . essays published

OTTAWA — In April of 1957, Herbert Norman, the Canadian ambassador to Egypt, took his own life, plunging from a Cairo rooftop. He was a few years short of 50 and probably the most brilliant mind who had ever served the department of external affairs.

Lester Pearson was the minister responsible for external affairs. The Cairo post was most important at the time. The year before there had been the British-French-Israeli attack on Egypt over the Suez Canal.

The St. Laurent government had taken unusual initiatives for Canada, one consequence of which was the Nobel Prize won by Pearson.

* * *

Two volumes of the Pearson memoirs have been published. The third is due in a few months. The second volume covered the period from 1948 through 1957. It was unfortunate that Pearson died before he had completed Volume II. Consequently, Volume III will be like Volume II (and unlike Volume I), only partially his as author.

There are several references to Norman and his work in Volume II of the memoirs but there isn't any treatment of the suicide and its causes nor of the harassing of Norman as a public official which emerged in the early 1950s.

From only one short private conversation with Pearson after he left the leadership of the country, I know that he was unusually sensitive to the Norman case and much bothered by it. Just to mention it threw him into an awkward, red-faced gear that was unlike the Pearson I knew.

A reason to reconsider the death of Norman, other than speculation whether the third book of the Pearson memoirs will touch on the case, has emerged with the publication of a new edition of essays by Norman.

The publisher is Pantheon, the price is $5.95 (paperback), the length is 497 pages. The title is Origins of the Modern Japanese state — Selected Writings by E. H. Norman; edited by John W. Dower.

The New York Review of Books for July 17 has a long analysis of recent publications about Japan by a respected British historian, E. B. Hosbawn. It isn't often that a Canadian gets an appreciation such as Norman rates from Hosbawn in the following excerpts.

"Norman was a brilliant historian who committed suicide . . . in Cairo where he was the Canadian ambassador." This, as Dower writes, was "after a period of recurrent pressure emanating from the United States because of his early leftist views and associations."

* * *

" . . . E. H. Norman, that unhappy victim of McCarthyism and a more academic kind of black-listing, may or may not have been 'superceded' by subsequent research. But it is not only his civilized literacy and the feeling that he cares about what the Japanese common people went through — rare qualities in the literature — that makes reading the origins of the modern Japanese state so satisfactory for historians. It is Norman's ability to see social transformation as a whole while losing none of its concreteness and complexity, its unity or its internal tensions. This was Norman's greatest debt to that association with Marxism for which he suffered in life and death."

* * *

There's irony in the endurance of Norman, long after his death, as a fine historian and as a great authority on Japan and Asia. After Senator McCathy dragged his name into the open in the early 1950s, external affairs (headed by Pearson) buried him in the quiet simplicity of New Zealand, only rushing him to Cairo during the Suez crisis. There, almost all authorities agree, he was unusually influential and useful. But his past was dragged up again by American politicians busy with anti-communism. He broke and took his own life.

Pearson, as a shrewd man of affairs and a one-time but not very important scholar and historian, must have known Norman's exceptional abilities. Did he fault himself for the suicide? We may find out in the third volume of his memoirs.

Indira's Opposition a Strange Mix

By LEWIS M. SIMONS

(Simons is the chief Asia correspondent for The Washington Post expelled last month from India in the government crackdown).

BANGKOK — By arresting thousands of her opponents and banning more than a score of political groups, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has given the opposition a nationwide stature it has not earned.

Mrs. Gandhi's claim that the opposition, particularly the rightists, were plotting a grand conspiracy against her is undoubtedly overstated. But there is no doubt that the prime minister's foes were more intent on getting rid of her than in healing India's severe economic and social ills.

The opposition did make one vital contribution to India, though. It kept democracy alive. Democracy is not an efficient system of government. If, as was often the case in India, the opposition does not perform responsibly, it can cause the entire system to bog down.

This had not really happened in India. But Mrs. Gandhi apparently made the judgment that the opposition was causing her to bog down. Through constant sniping, it was effectively reducing her once-looming image. In time, it might have caused her and her Congress party to fall.

This was as true of the more substantial opposition parties as of the 26 extremist organizations and fringe groups she has banned through her emergency powers.

The extremists alone, constantly fanning the never-quite-dormant flames of communal hatred, have long had the potential to topple India's delicately balanced social mechanism over the brink.

That they never quite succeeded says something about the reasonableness of the majority of Indians, the superior intelligence-gathering ability of the government and the limited organization of maniacal fringe groups.

Similarly, the more modern opposition never succeeded in framing a challenge to the ruling Congress party. There were some signs that they were slowly beginning to reach agreement among themselves. This was basically what drove Mrs. Gandhi to launch her crackdown.

In fact, they were still a long way from unity, even if Mrs. Gandhi had not thrown all possible contenders for national leadership into jail.

Over the years, the opposition failed to gain national power largely because it dissipated its forces in attacks on Mrs. Gandhi and her two predecessors as prime minister.

The one notable exception to the predominately negative approach by the opposition is Jalaypranash Narayan, who has become a symbol of moral idealism. But even he allowed himself to be used in the past year by a strange phalanx of rightwing interests.

Narayan, a long-time colleague of Mahatma Gandhi, the father of modern India, re-emerged into prominence recently at the head of a campaign against corruption in government. He began the drive in his home state, Bihar.

But as Narayan's movement built up steam, two forces began eating into his reformist zeal. First, Mrs. Gandhi and her followers drummed up demands for Narayan to offer the public a viable program of specific political alternatives; second, more pedestrian opposition leaders began jumping on his bandwagon.

A number of Narayan's supporters were pleased by these twin developments. They believed that Narayan's charismatic appeal and idealistic goal of clean government, plus a new political and economic program backed by a combined opposition, could become the first serious challenge to Congress party rule in 28 years.

They were enormously encouraged when this package seemed to deliver the goods in mid-June. A six-party People's Front, with Narayan as the shield-bearer, soundly defeated the Congress party in the Gujarat state elections.

Just as his mentor, Gandhi, attained virtual sainthood with his drive to get the British to "quit India," Narayan was best suited to awakening the Indian masses to the rising corruption, teaching them that they held salvation in their own hands.

While the People's Front achieved the desired end of defeating the Congress party in Gujarat, it was anything but well-knit. More than a quarter-century of diversity and petty squabbling kept the individual party leaders from surrendering personal fiefdoms for a greater good.

There are many opposition leaders — some prominent in India; if not in the world outside, many more obscure even within the country. Right now, they're all in confinement. For better or for worse, their voices have been stifled.

The great imponderable surrounding them at the moment is what role, if any, they will play in Mrs. Gandhi's new India. Many of them have spent years in jail, some put there by the British, others by Indian rulers, and they are used to this kind of hardship. But this is the first time so many of them have ever been locked up at once.

This is the first time that India has, for all practical purposes, been without an opposition. If and when they are released, they are certain to want to pick up where they left off, only with renewed vigor. Mrs. Gandhi must be tempted to leave them behind bars.

King of Silver Blades

By COLIN NARBROUGH

KOKKOLA, Finland — "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest (Ecclesiastes 9-10)" is inscribed in Swedish on a granite block in a corner of the Maria Cemetery in this sleepy town on Finland's west coast. The stone marks the unlikely last resting place of Jackson Haines of Chicago, the little-known father of modern figure-skating.

But Haines, who died suddenly of pneumonia while on a visit here 100 years ago, has not been forgotten entirely. A few days ago the United States Ambassador to Finland, Mark Evans Austad, with Aatos Erkko, president of the Finnish figure-skating association, and a host of local dignitaries, took part in a wreath-laying ceremony to mark the centenary of Haines' premature death.

* * *

Jackson Haines was only 30 when he died. He had left his native Chicago originally as a child when his parents brought him to Europe. But at the age of seven he recrossed the Atlantic and later went on to the stage. When he next visited Europe (at the great age of 19) it was as a very professional dancer and highly accomplished ice and roller skater.

At that time the strange combination of skater-dancer did not meet with immediate acclaim in the capitals of Europe and a great deal of fun was made of the young American. But his admirers slowly grew in numbers and his shows began to take him on an every-widening circuit: Paris, London, Vienna, Budapest, Berlin and St. Petersburg—all the grand cities of 19th-century Europe.

Haines' great innovation (just one of many) was the introduction of music to skating. Though it probably seemed about as ridiculous at the time as football to music would appear today, people of the 1870s came to accept it and its popularity has never faded since.

In this television age, figure-skating, despite the generally atrocious reproduction quality of the accompanying music, is one of the biggest audience magnets, ranking not far behind international football.

Apart from adding the musical dimension, Haines also drew on his evidently remarkable talents as a dancer to blend the leaps and whirls of ballet into the then ice-bound movements of the sport. He changed it from merely tracing graceful curves around the rink into the three-dimensional, almost acrobatic exercise it is today.

* * *

It was Haines' three visits to the Grand Duchy of Finland, on his way to and from the Russian imperial capital at St. Petersburg, that first stimulated Finnish interest in the sport. The same year the first Finnish ice-skating club was formed in Helsinki and all over northern Europe skating fans were imitating the volatile skating style of Haines.

Not only did Haines popularize skating in Finland and elsewhere, he also inspired the Finns to become the world leaders in the sport (an honor they held until the 1920s when they were finally overtaken by the development of the indoor rink that terminated the domination of countries with long winters and extended periods of natural ice.)

* * *

Kokkola, a timber-exporting coastal town where little has happened since the British navy raided it during the Crimean War (because Finland was part of the Russian empire), has a modest local museum, like most Finnish provincial towns. There, preserved for posterity, are the skates that Haines last wore.

The skates might look uninspiring to modern eyes, but in their time they too were revolutionary. They were the first skates to have blades fastened to the skater's boots by screws—the principle of skates to this day. Earlier skates were separate attachments entirely, bound over the skater's boots or shoes, and did not give the wearer the same integral contact with his blades.

No relatives could be traced when Haines died, and so his body was laid to rest in a humble Finnish grave. He was rumoured to have been secretly engaged to a local girl (not an unlikely story) but even this failed to create much permanent local interest in him. In 1955 Kokkola Rotary Club started a Haines revival and added a few words in English to the dour Biblical quotation already there. The new addition reads simply: "In remembrance of the American skating king."

The primtry subject of concern in the inflation picture was the pontential impact of Soviet grain purchases and dry weather in some farming areas on food prices.

Chrysler Omits Dividend For Third Straight Time

DETROIT (UPI) — Directors of Chrysler Corp., faced with a fifth straight record deficit this fall, voted Thursday to omit paying stockholders a dividend for the third straight quarter.

The action by the auto manufacturer followed a second quarter financial report that revealed a $58.7 million loss and a projection of an even greater deficit in the fall quarter. The vote to omit the first quarter dividend in February as the first time since 1938 that a shareholder payment had been eliminated.

Despite the Ford turnaround and a $333 million profit at General Motors—up nearly 9 per cent from the previous year — the automakers are expected to continue paying their reduced dividends to provide funds to completely retool for smaller and more fuel-efficient cars.

GM and Ford are spending close to $3 billion apiece to meet the demand for new cars while Chrysler has earmarked $1.5 billion.

Each of the four U.S. auto companies has either cut or eliminated dividends in the wake of poor financial results. GM, trimmed its regular 85 cents dividend to 60 cents for two quarters, Ford cut 20 cents from its regular 80-cent dividend for two quarters and American Motors eliminated its 10-cent semi-annual dividend.

Chrysler and GM announced production plans that will further reduce the industry's long-term layoffs that peaked at nearly 212,000 in March. Layoffs this week are at 109,300, the lowest since before Christmas, and will drop even further next week.

Chrysler said it was resuming a second shift on one assembly line at its small car plant at Hamtramck, Mich., resulting in the callback of 1,800 workers. Its ong-term layoffs, at 16,900 this week, will be at 13,100 by Monday and below 10,000 by September, a spokesman said.

GM, which will have 14 assembly plants closed and 34,250 workers idled during new model changeover next week, said its long-term layoffs will drop from about 75,000 at the end of July to 63,000 by mid-September. In late March, 137,500 of GM's 400,000 hourly workers were on long-term layoffs.

Manitoba Hikes Forest Royalty

WINNIPEG (CP) — Royalty rates paid by Abitibi Paper Co. for softwoods taken from Crown land have been increased sharply under a new five-year agreement with the Manitoba government.

The new agreement boosts royalties on softwoods taken from the east side of Lake Winnipeg to $9 a cord from $1.84, and for other areas to $7.30 a cord from $1.47. It is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975.

The comany now will take wood on a volume basis from designated areas. It will no longer have to pay a fireguard charge of $12.80 per square mile, or a $2 "ground rent" fee.

Harvey Bostrom, Manitoba minister of lands and forests said the two charges have been abandoned because Abitibi will not have exclusive control of the areas. The fireguard costs will be assumed by the provincial government.

The new rate structure is subject to adjustments during the contract, in line with transportation costs borne by the company and with the price Abitibi gets for its pulp mill products.

A six-member committee, responsible for forest-management planning and timber utilization, is to be established. Three members are to be named by Abitibi and three by the government.

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm futures prices closed higher on the Board of Trade today.

A late rally carried the prices above the marginal gains that they had shown through most of the day.

Some of the support came from speculative buying in wheat and short covering and corn.

Much of the trading showed an uneasiness as traders awaited word on the prospects of relief from the serious dry spell in the western corn and soybean belt.

There also was uncertainty about how much grain the Soviet Union ultimately will buy from the United States.

Soybeans were the biggest gainers with advances up to 11 cents at the close. Soybean oil closed 20 to 60 points higher and meal was up slightly.

White Pass and Yukon

The White Pass and Yukon Corp. Ltd. has reported net profits of $871,575 or 36 cents a share for the first six months of 1975, compared with $203,227 or one cent a share for the same period last year.

The improved earnings are a result of increased freight rates for mine customers on company rail lines to Skagway, and Vancouver, the company said in a news release, adding that freight and passenger rates have been increased.

Gross revenue for the six months was $27.6 million, increased 25.6 per cent from comparable period last year.

Finning Tractor

Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd. has announced revenue for the first six months of the year was $88 million, compared to $77.8 million for the same period of 1974, an increase of 13 per cent.

Net income increased 11 per cent to $3.9 million or $1 a share, from $3.5 million or 90 cents a share last year.

Board chairman W. M. Young said results were in line with projections and satisfactory considering the present economic environment.

He said results for the rest of the year will depend on world market prices for lumber, pulp and minerals, and the resolution of current labor problems in the province.

Shell Canada

Shell Canada Ltd. plans to double its exploration and development spending in Canada to $200 million next year, Shell president C. W. Daniel said.

"This will be one of the largest exploration programs we have ever had," he told reporters after a special board meeting in Calgary. "It will cost more than double the 1974-75 program."

Shell's total budget for oil and gas exploration and development in Canada was about $100 million; for 1974-75, he said. The bulk of the spending is and will continue to be in Alberta.

Shell, based in Toronto, was holding the special board meeting in Calgary to salute the city's centennial.

Cornat Industries

Cornat Industries Ltd. reports six-month profit for the period ended June 30 of $2 million or 40 cents a share, compared with profits of $4 million or 85 cents a share for the comparable period last year.

On a fully diluted basis, profits per share amounted to 39 cents, compared with 76 cents in 1974, the Vancouver-based company said.

The company said that no firm reply has been received on its proposal to the Canadian government to acquire the assets of the De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., and Canadair, Ltd.

At the end of May Cornat, in conjunction with Toronto-based Spar Aerospace Products Ltd., made a proposal to acquire the assets of those two companies.

Cyprus Anvil Minning Corp. reported net profit of $13,325,000 or $1.75 per share for the first half of 1975, compared with $17,061,000 or $2.24 per share in the first half of 1974.

Directors have declared a dividend of 15 cents per share payable Aug. 22 to shareholders of record Aug. 7.

John Burk, 44, a Vancouver lawyer who has been serving as chairman of the company, has been appointed president and chief executive officer, the directors announced.

He succeeds Robert E. Thurmond, who announced that he will be taking early retirement from Cyprus Mines Corp., of Los Angeles, the parent company of Cyprus Anvil. He will remain a director of Cyprus Anvil and will become an independent mining consultant.

Kenneth Lieber, president of Cyprus, was appointed chairman of Cyprus Anvil.

Stable Real Estate Force Reflects Local Market

The local real estate market is rated as "spotty" but better than most places in Canada during the recession.

The number of salespersons in this region has held firm at 743, bucking a national trend.

The Canadian Real Estate association says the number of salespersons across the nation has declined 11 per cent during the past year, reflecting a slow real estate market.

Jim Tyler, president of the B.C. Society of Real Estate Salesmen, said there has been no sign of a general decline in real estate sales in Victoria or Vancouver, although there have been difficulties in obtaining mortgage funds in some cases.

The fact there has not been a drop off in the number of salespersons and agents indicates a continuing optimism in the local market.

In Vancouver, Earl Morton, spokesman for the B.C. Real Estate Institute, said the market on the lower mainland was basically firm but with some weak spots.

Houses in the $50,000 to $80,000 range were selling slowly and some price dips have been noticed. This was linked to the difficulties in obtaining mortgages large enough to cover the bulk of the purchase price.

Monthly mortgage payments for houses in that price range were $400 a month or higher, slightly above what the average working person can afford.

Houses selling below $50,000 were moving quickly while markets were normal for the houses at $100,000 and more.

Morton said there were 7,469 salespersons and agents in B.C., virtually unchanged from a year ago.

While real estate markets were firm in the larger centres, they were considerably weaker in smaller communities. Financial institutions were given preference to mortgages on new houses on sewers.

Meawnhile, Tyler said the salesman's association is carrying out a series of meetings to prepare recommendations on whether the number of real estate salespersons should be resricted.

Tyler, who works for D. F. Hanley Agencies Ltd. of Victoria, said the number of salespersons should be limited but not by means of a freeze.

He said his group likely will recommend that the admission standards for salespersons be tightened and hiring practices controlled by a requirement that an agent pay any new salesman a salary of $500 a month for the first six months.

Tyler said he is opposed to salaries as a permanent feature in the real estate market but a salary for th first six months would be a good idea because it would discourage agents from hiring too many salesmen and would assure the new recruits hired are supervised carefully in the early months.

"At the present time there is a tendency to hire too many salesmen and they are not properly supervised in the early months when they are getting started."

Tyler said his group also wanted to see education requirements upgraded. To become a salesman, a person now takes a three-month licencing course (by correspondence for those living in Victoria) and an optional two-week post-licencing course through the B.C. Institute of Technology on office procedures and related topics. This course is compulsory in the Victoria area.

Tyler said the B.C. Society of Real Estate Salesmen wanted to standardize the admission requirements and generally upgrade the standards.

Recommendation from the salesmen are going to Prof. Gideon Rosenbluth of the University of B.C., a one-man commission preparing recommendations for the provincial government. Rosenbluth's report is likely to be turned over to the provincial attorney-general in September.

TSE Reports Small Profit

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange reports a profit of $8,000 for the three months ended June 30, compared with a loss of $207,000 for the same period last year.

Total income increased to $1.18 million from $925,000. In a notice to members, the exchange said the increase in income from bombers' activities was due mainly to a higher volume of daily TSE trading and an increase in transaction fees.

Total expenses rose 3.5 per cent to $1.17 million. The exchange attributed the increase to higher costs for salaries and other services.

Freud Gives Way to Chemicals

WASHINGTON (WP) — Doctors using drugs have drastically changed and improved mental treatment in the past 25 years. In the process they have learned that much mental illness is basically biological in nature, a U.S. federal task force said Thursday.

This "quiet revolution," it said, has given new hope to the mentally ll by looking upon their problem as readily treatable with drugs, rather than one that is deeply psychological and "Freudian," requiring long psychotherapy.

The task force, a 300-member group assembled by the National Institute of Mental Health, reviewed the changes brought about with the help of $1 billion in federally funded research since 1949. They found these dramatic results:

—In treatment of depression, the success rate has gone from less than 30 per cent to 90 per cent, largely as the result of drug treatment.

—In treatment of schizophrenia, the use of chemicals has "helped free a multitude of people from mental institutions" and kept many others out.

Where 25 years ago the main emphasis in federal pscyhiatric research, training and treatment was Freudian and psychological, the main emphasis is now chemical and biological. Dr. Bertram Brown, director of NIMH, said the shift is from "60 per cent psychological, 40 per cent biological, to the other way around."

—The discovery in recent years that various brain chemicals play a role in schizophrenia, depression and manic disease has put scientists "on the brink" of tailoring drugs to specific conditions.

The experts emphasized, however, that the problems of the mentally ill are not solved and that so-called "successful" treatments have to be repeated if a patient relapses.

The experts maintained, at a news conference called to present their 435-page report, that 10 per cent of the U.S. population or more than 20 million people, suffer from some form of mental or emotinal illness. Only one-seventh of the 20 million, it was estimated, get expert treatment.

An individual's environment may still have devastating results on his mental condtion, the experts said. Studies have shown that the incidence of schizophrenia is 3 to 3½ per cent—30 or 35 cases per 1,000 persons—in the worst slums, but only around 1 per cent in the "best" neighborhoods.

Dr. Marion Yarrow, a specialist in infant and child development, said, "we've put too much guilt on parents, particuarly on the mother," in severe psychoses in children. Current knowledge shows that the underlying cause is often biological or chemical, she explained.

"This isn't to say that the parents' role isn't important," she added. "But we've overemphasized it.. there is evidence now of many other influences."

Part of the "new knowledge," Dr. Yarrow said, is that lack of "close parenting" —warm, affectionate holding and care of babies can have severe emotional effects.

"But we're also learning that these effects may be reversible," she said. "That a child's life is determined by age two, which has often been said, is not true."

Drug Misuse Charged

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. justice department said Thursday it has found widespread evidence that institutions housing mental patients, juveniles, and the elderly "have in fact relied upon massive over-drugging" to control their residents.

Louis Thrasher, director of the justice department's civil rights division office of special litigation, which takes on cases involving the constitutional rights of children and the mentally and physically handicapped, made the statement in testimony before the Senate subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency.

Thrasher said investigations arising out of the 17 justice department suits concerning those rights had shown, in every case except one, that patients in public and private institutions were frequently given drugs in excessive amounts and with insufficient medical attention.

The drugs, generally tranquilizers, were administered because the institutions' staffs are too small to provide individual care, Thrasher said.

Joan Little's Diary Disputed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chief prosecutor in the Joan Little murder case says that if the trial judge rules today to suppress books and magazines taken from Miss Little's cell it would be "like excluding the gun left at the scene of the crime."

District-Attorney William Griffin made the remark Thursday as Judge Hamilton Hobgood temporarily barred introduction of the material.

The defence is seeking to suppress what it describes as "personal papers" taken from Miss Little's cell by Beaufort County Deputy Willis Peachey. They contend the evidence was seized illegally by the state and violates Miss Little's privacy.

Special prosecutor John Wilkinson said the evidence was not crucial to the state's case. But he said: "We're trying to build a chain of circumstances."

He said notations made by Miss Little in her note books that she had a "friendly relationship" with the white jailer, Clarence Alligood, 62. Alligood was found dead in Miss Little's cell at the beaufort County jail in Washington, N.C., naked from the waist down.

The state has been laying groundwork for its claim that Miss Little plotted to lure Alligood — the only jailer on duty at the time of the incident — into her cell in order to escape.

Airlines Appeal Rules

WINNIPEG (CP) — A joint appeal has been launched by primary air carriers in eight provinces against federal rules they consider restrict freedom of choice, competition, service and price.

The complicated suit in the Federal Court of Appeal, involving 38 carriers, has been initiated by the Canadian Association of Primary Air Carriers. It attempts to overturn route protection regulations involving both mainline and regional carriers.

Association Secretary W. M. Swystun said Thursday the route protection policy prohibits charter operations between points served by scheduled airlines in Canada, unless scheduled airlines affected approve.

Swystun said the restrictions threated the existence of primary carriers becuase when permission to operate a charter is sought, the scheduled carriers usually insist on the job.

The primary carriers also say when the restrictions were imposed many of them were denied the right to explain; their positions, and those that did were ignored.

CAPAC, with headquarters in Winnipeg, was formed in 1974 and represents 65 primary air carriers across Canada.

New Governors For Nigeria

LAGOS (Reuter) — Nigeria's new head of state, Brig. Murtala Mohammed, said Thursday that governors appointed by former head of state, Gen. Yakubu Gowon, had been running the 12 states of Nigeria as private estates.

Swearing in 10 of 12 new governors, Mohammed said there was widespread dissatisfaction with the conduct of the former ones.

Mohammed said that all over the country there were allegations of graft and misuse of public funds and complaints of ostentatious living, flagrant abuse of office and deprivation of people's rights and properties.

The brigadier said the new governors must create a brighter image of Nigeria's military administration. The interests of the public must be uppermost in their minds at all times, he said.

In a special announcement over Radio Nigeria, the new regime said that borders and entry points will be opeened to nationals of the other 14 member countries of the economic community of West African states.

Internal flights of Nigerian Airways are to resume.

Eye-witness reports from Lagos airport Thursday said soldiers were still preventing entry. The only movement was two planes which flew out carrying military personnel.

Meanwhile, troops already have acted to reduce the cost of living for ordinary Nigerians. Soldiers stopped private transport vehicles, demanding that drivers halve the fares and pay back half the money already taken.

There were several angry incidents and most private transport operators stayed off the roads. Soldiers were stopping private cars and asking drivers to ferry stranded civilians to work.

Esquimalt Team Gets Travel Grant

Esquimalt Junior Girls' Hi-Grade Softball team has been awarded $3,250 from the province's Physical Fitness and Amateur Sport Fund.

The money will help pay travel costs for the team's trip to Moncton, N.B. where they are representing B.C. in Canadian junior women's championship playoffs.

HIROSHIMA RECALLED

Speakers and arts performers will participate in Hiroshima Day Saturday sponsored by the Victoria Survival Committee environmental group.

Federal MP Stuart Legatt (NDP-New Westminster) will speak along with Esquimalt NDP MLA Jim Gorst and a Victoria Labor Council representative.

Later, performers will read poetry, sing and present drama as part of the commemoration of the world's first nuclear bombing 30 years ago when Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, were hit to end the Second World War.

Committee members want to pressure governments to stop the spread of nuclear arms.

Montreal Pours Further $116M Into Olympics

MONTREAL (CP) — City council is to vote Monday on an additional $116 million credit for Olympics construction, bringing to $612 million the city's total spending for the 1976 Games.

The city's executive committee says the money is for preparation of plans, fees for engineers and architects, exterior development, equipment and "other incidental and unforeseen expenses."

It will be the fourth time in two years that council has been asked to vote a credit for the Olympics. Council voted $16 million and $239 million in 1973 and another $250 million last January.

48 B.C. WIRETAPS

Times News Services

OTTAWA — British Columbia authorized 48 wiretaps in the last six months of 1974 and was one of six provinces which together used taps 247 times in that period.

In releasing the figures Thursday, federal Justice Minister Otto Lang said a total of 508 authorized federal wiretaps were also made, almost 300 of them for drug offences.

The Lang report said that 379 residential and 99 commercial locations were tapped.

The result was court action against 90 persons named in the authorizations.

"Some 300 persons not identified in the authorizations were proceeded against, in many cases for offences that were not specified in the authorizations," a news release from Lang's office said.

No convictions had resulted in any of the cases by last Dec. 31 and only Ontario and British Columbia reported cases pending.

"Obviously it is early in the experience with the new law to have a complete picture," Lang said.

Quebec apparently launched and lost a case arising from a wiretap but this was not specified.

Quebec used the wiretap law, which went into effect July 1, 1974, and requires a court order, more than any jurisdiction except the federal government.

The province's 104 applications to use a wiretap were granted and 35 of them were renewals.

Ontario was allowed 48 wiretaps, 28 subject to terms and conditions and 18 of them renewals. Two Ontario applications were refused.

The others: British Columbia, 48 authorizations, 10 of them renewals; Alberta, 30 authorizations, four of them renewals; Saskatchewan, 12 authorizations, eight of them renewals; Nova Scotia, five authorizations, one a renewal.

The offences for which authorizations to use a wiretap were given included murder, attempted murder, robbery, theft, breaking and entering, possession of stolen property, counterfeiting, bookmaking and "conspiracy to commit an indictable offence."

11th Hour Stelco Contract

By The Canadian Press

A strike by 12,000 workers at the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco) Hilton works in Hamilton was averted just hours before the midnight Thursday night deadline when workers voted 52.5 per cent in favor of a new three-year contract.

Meanwhile, in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., picket lines formed shortly after midnight at the Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. plant, Canada's second-largest steel producer after Stelco.

The pickets were set up minutes after the contract between the company and Local 2251, United Steelworkers of America expired.

In Hamilton, a total of 8,656 steelworkers, members of Local 1005, United Steelworkers of America, voted on a contract which will give them an immediate 90-cents-an-hour increase and another 20 cents an hour on both Aug. 1, 1976 and Aug. 1, 1977.

By the end of the contract, the minimum hourly pay rate will rise to $5.65 from $4.06. With fringe benefits, union officials estimate the total package will give workers a $3.10-an-hour increase over three years.

Border Beef Tiff Thaw

WASHINGTON (CP) — A truce seems to be developing in the so-called beef war between the United States and Canada with apparent agreement by both sides to start dismantling some of the barriers to inter-country agricultural trade.

High-level U.S. sources said in a series of interviews Thursday that authorities here have agreed to remove quotas limiting the import of Canadian cattle, hogs and pork in return for a lifting of Canadian barriers against U.S cattle imports.

The new accord, these sources said, needs only the formal approval of President Ford to begin taking effect. They said the Canadians are agreeable to the arrangement, although Canadian embassy officials here made no comment.

It was not entirely clear whether the quotas are to be dropped entirely at once or to be removed in stages. Most of the Canadian quotas are routinely scheduled to expire in mid-August. The general expectation here has been that they will be renewed rather than phased out.

Quotas on Canadian beef and veal will remain until at least the end of this year, sources added, mainly because of difficulties related to a U.S. regulation governing the amounts of foreign meats which can be sold on the American market.

Under this system, the U.S. each year negotiates voluntary restraint agreements with major meat suppliers in order to hold imports to a fixed ceiling. If Canadian meats now were suddenly allowed into the market, officials say, it would disrupt these arrangements.

The sources said they were reasonably confident, however, that the restrictions on meat imports from Canada may start to be phased out in 1976.

But they expressed extreme dissatisfaction with tough Canadian quotas imposed on U.S. egg imports which took effect July 5. At least one high-ranking official said there was mounting pressure on the U.S. administration to take some form of retaliatory action against the egg barriers.

Montreal Boosts Games Payments

MONTREAL (CP) — The executive committee of city council, which awards contracts for Olympic construction projects, this week granted increases of 200 to 400 per cent in three contracts accepted by the city in February.

The contracts for welding, plumbing and electrical work, all awarded without tenders, represented a total expenditure by the city of $2.5 million, but with the increase they now total $5.1 million.

A consulting firm employed by the Olympic organizing committee said a "poor evaulation" of the work involved was the chief reason for increased costs in welding and plumbing contracts.

In the case of electrical work, delays due to strikes and work slowdowns, and the need for extra workers, overtime and salary increases were given by consultants as reason for costs increases.

Yvon Lamarre, vice-chairman of the executive committee, said the committee rarely granted such large increases in Olympic construction contracts.

OTTAWA GIVES GRANT TO AID HOMOSEXUALS

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is paying a local homosexual group to inform the public and social service agencies here about homosexuality.

One female and three male university students, who belong to Gays of Ottawa, received a $4,485 grant from the secretary of state department, it was announced Thursday.

The students will conduct a series of seminars until Sept. 19 with service agencies which help homosexuals find counselling and medical help.

Gays of Ottawa also plans a public forum on homosexuality in the late summer or early fall.

Pickering Given Go Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to go ahead with the controversial international airport at Pickering, Ont., Transport Minister Jean Marchand announced Thursday.

"The need to proceed with the construction of the new airport at Pickering to serve the Toronto area was confirmed by the government this morning," the minister said in a press release. He had told the Commons Wednesday that he would recommend to cabinet that the airport go ahead.

"I am going to recommend that we stick to our decision," he said in the House. And Thursday, following a short cabinet meeting, his announcement made it clear that his cabinet colleagues agreed with his recommendation.

The proposed airport, to relieve international traffic at Malton, has been the centre of controversy since the government's plans were announced three years ago. Protest groups, headed by an organization called "People over planes" have been fighting the proposed airport which, they argue, would create a noisy satellite city in the area.

$80M Pollution Fight Facing Pulp Mill

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pollution control program that could cost $80 million now is required at the Prince Rupert plants of Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd., company officials said Thursday.

They were commenting on the effect of a pollution control permit issued this week by the B.C. Pollution Control Branch for future operations at the mills. The kraft and sulphite plants will have to be brought up to level B conditions within the next four years.

This will require installations approximate to those being installed at the Port Alice sulphite mill of Rayonier Canada which were the subject of a long board hearing two years ago.

Level B requires that the pollution control system reduce basic oxygen demand of the plants to 60 pounds per ton. Board officials said present data shows a demand of from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds per ton.

Donald Best, senior vice-president of CanCel, a public company in which the province of B.C. owns 79 per cent of the stock, said that the conditions imposed looked reasonable.

A spokesman for the Pollution Control Branch said that there are three sides to the permit stipulations. The first governs the operations of the bleach kraft pulp mill. This will require equipment to handle 50,000 tons of effluent per day, including suspended solids and settleable solids. This work must be completed by Dec. 31, 1978.

Additional installations will be necessary in the wood room.

Pollution there results primarily from wood chips and bark residue in the barking operation, and will call for better centrifugal cleaner systems to remove suspended solids.

The major problem, it is reported, will come in upgrading the bleached sulphite mill which has until Dec. 31, 1979, to meet the B level.

Pollution officials said this appeared to call for two-stage installation, as with Rayonier's Port Alice plant, the first to instal a fibre recovery system and handle suspended solids.

The second stage requires advanced chemical recovery boilers. A submerged outfall will have to be installed to replace present onshore discharge of waste.

Best said CanCel has done a good deal of advance work on anticipated changes that might be required and has prepared cost estimates for work over four-, six- and 10-year spans.

Unused Seat Belt Blamed in Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Glen McDonald, city coroner, said Thursday failure to use his seat belt was largely responsible for the death Sunday of Christopher Harold Edwards, 19, of Burnaby.

Edwards was crushed to death by the mail truck he was driving following a collision with a car. He fell through an open door before the truck rolled over him.

McDonald said ventilation in the trucks is adequate and the post office warns drivers each spring to not drive with the doors open.

"The trucks have two windows which open," said McDonald. "I suppose it's cooler with the doors open too, but the drivers are told to wear their seat belts and that's the most important thing.

On July 15, Allen Clarke, 24, of Aldergrove was killed when his mail truck rolled on top of him in Langley

Former Tenants Win Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four former tenants of a downtown hotel were awarded damages of $25 each Thursday against their landlord for failing to provide accommodation fit for human habitation.

The four were part of 36 tenants who took action in small claims court against landlord Wayne Foo for damages of $1,000 each.

Judge Edward O'Donnell adjourned 30 of the cases indefinitely and two were refused damages because they were the wives of tenants and not actual tenants.

Gerald Green, lawyer for the tenants and Bruce Robson, acting for the hotel, indicated an out-of-court settlement will be negotiated for the remaining 30 tenants.

MERIT LACKING ON BOTH SIDES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial Labor Relations Board has dismissed for lack of merit complaints filed by each side in a labor dispute between unions and four Thomson newspapers in B.C.

The decision was made public Thursday after a hearing July 2.

The Labor Relations Board also dismissed a union application for appointment of an arbitrator in the dispute at Nanaimo Free Press.

At the hearing, Rory McDonald, a lawyer representing the International Typographical Union and the International Printing and Graphic Communications Union, withdrew the major complaint of strikebreaking.

The ITU had claimed strikebreakers were used at Penticton Herald, Kamloops Daily Sentinel and Kelowna Courier.

While most boaters will be relaxing on this holiday weekend, the Canadian Yachting Association has two events organized that will keep participants working at full throttle.

On the Island, the CYA's Learn to Sail co-ordinator, Bob Thomson of Ottawa, along with fellow-Ontarian Greg Cockburn and Luke DeKat of Vancouver will be holding a seminar at Schooner Cove in Nanoose.

Open to all CYA instructors and sailing advisers on Vancouver Island, the seminar is one of many planned across the country, designed to promote good teaching skills.

The seminar starts at 9 a.m. Saturday, continuing until 10 p.m., and lasts from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Over at Royal Vancouver Yacht Club 13 crews from Manitoba west will be competing in CYA's Western Canadians, using the club's Flying Juniors. Racing started today in the 16-years-and-under event and ends on Monday. Jeff McBride with Julian Thornton of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club are one of the three crews on the B.C. team.

Local sailors taking part in the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association's annual regatta, will have a combination of fun and good racing for holiday fare.

Tonight at 6:30 p.m. there's the usual long-distance race from Cattle Point to Esquimalt Harbor. Series racing begins at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday for both keel boats and dinghies.

Doug Turnham sailed his Barracutta to top place in the first single-handed race for keel boats organized by the club and also won a second place in regular series racing held Sunday, being beaten out by Fred Douglas' Virtue. Top Sailerette was Don Beaudry's Black Hawk.

Those were the last races of the series, which was won by Ed Haines' Lotte as Paul Jensen's Dania and Virtue placed second and third.

With a break for cruising, RVYC begins its Wednesday night series racing at Cadboro Bay next week. Start time is 6:30 p.m.

You don't have to be a boater to enjoy the fourth annual Sidney rowing review, which runs from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

There will be classes for both sexes in various age groups, ranging from youngsters in seven-foot prams to a four mile-row for the most hardy. In addition to cash prizes, there's a bottle of rum for the oldest competitor. This might very well go to 70-year-old John Newman, who has won the four-miler in the last three reviews.

And, if you've no craft of your own on which to enjoy the holiday weekend there's always the people's boat, the Princess Marguerite.

Some of the best-dressed women in the area will be aboard her when she makes her two runs between here and Port Angeles on Saturday. They will be the gals taking part in the fashion shows to be held on both runs, which begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Inner Harbor, return time being three hours later.

There will be similar shows each Saturday for the following four weeks with various local dress shops lending a hand.

Trabert Man on Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Jimmy Connors play for the United States Davis Cup team?

Not so long as Dennis Ralston was captain, he wouldn't. And, Bill Riordan, Connors' manager, says he won't play for Tony Trabert, either.

Trabert, a Davis Cup player and international singles champion in the 1950s and now a teaching professional in California, has been named captain of the team by the U.S. Tennis Association.

The appointment was an effort to calm the turbulent tennis waters and put the U.S. back into Davis Cup contention after early-round defeats the last two years.

One of the keys was to get Connors to play.

"The USTA came to us four or five months ago saying they wanted to talk, to try to bring all the sides together," said Diordan from his office in Salisbury, Md.

Riordan said Stan Malless, president of the USTA, went over a list of 20 possible candidates for the hob. Perhaps one would please Jimmy.

"The list was endless," said Riordan. "The only one that Jimmy couldn't agree with was Tony Trabert. It's obvious to me they don't want Connors."

Riordan said Connors' objections to Trabert were personal and philosophical. He said Trabert, a teaching professional and sometimes television commentator, made disparaging remarks about Connors during a telecast of the Australian Open championships, verbally abused Connors' mother and then, in Las Vegas during Connors' challenge match with John Newcombe, took Riordan aside.

"He went into a long harangue about how Connors was disgraceful on the court," Riordan said. "He said if he had his way he'd suspend him. He went into the glory days of tennis in the 1940s and 1950s and I told him that things had changed.

"Basically, this is another American tragedy. We lived through Watergate and Vietnam. This tails off in proportion, but it is a sad day in tennis."

Despite Riordan's dire predictions, Trabert plans to meet with Connors and his manager in an effort to iron things out.

"I'd like to talk to Jimmy personally and tell him what I have in mind, clear the air," said Trabert. "I think I can if we can sit down."

A Stimulant To Make Race Horses Functional

The question was: "I see there's a move in Washington to have the racing commissioners there reverse the decision permitting the use of the controversial drug phenylbutazone. What is this drug and what does it do to a horse?"

Being no expert in this field, I went to other sources, and herewith are some if the observations. I found them interesting.

This is the drug commonly known as Bute, is basically a stimulant for horses which race, relives inflammation, enables a horse to run better with pain and to run when it otherwise wouldn't. In other words it is the horsey pill that might make old crocks (think young again, and young ones forget their aches and pains.

It's true there have always been mixed emotions among horsemen and racing officials regarding its use; and no, it is not permitted at Ex-Park.

One of the arguments against its use is that, as pain is nature's built-in defence mechanism, wouldn't horses that use Bute tend to overextend themselves and isn't that unfair to the horse?

This has been one result of an experiment conducted at the Bowie Track in Maryland this year where Bute was legalized on a trial basis.

Racing officials expected big increases in the size of the fields for races, gamblers expected to see big changes in form, trainers thought they would face enormous drug bills.

Running On False Courage

But the new rules didn't make more horses ready to run. The size of the fields weren't increased. There wasn't that much change in form and now trainers and owners are asking themselves if the move to Bute was worth it, because more horses were breaking down.

One trainer at Bowie reported that 30 per cent more horses were breaking down with Bute than before it was legalized. And naturally, when a horse is destroyed, racing commissioners and horsemen alike must be asking themselves the question if the drug was part of the reason.

The gross part of the controversy is that some people really don't care about the horses. All they are interested in is the almighty dollar. And really don't care that the horse who gets hurt may get injured because he is running on false courage.

Some jockeys are against the use of the drug for this very reason, but if they don't take the mount there are 10 other jockeys sitting in the jockey's room ready to accept it. One jockey, Danny Wright, spoke out against Bute in a recent publication. "I'm against it," he said. "I'm concerned whether a horse on Bute is safe. I don't want anybody toying with my life."

Trainers are strapped too. They have to use Bute if they are to survive and win. And if a trainer runs a claimer, which is what most horses are, without Bute, that's like telling everyone his horse is as sound as a dollar. And when that news gets around his horse will be claimed instantly.

About the Next Generation?

There is also another problem that hasn't been fully investigated because of the time factor And that is: what effect will overuse of Bute have on the breeding industry?

The consensus is that nobody really knows what the drug is doing to the horse or what it will do to the stud and the next generation of foals.

Probably the best way to explain Bute to the layman is that it works like a general pain killer a dentist might give a patient after extracting a tooth.

Speaking of horses and drugs there is another name that has cropped up from time to time and that is Lasix. This is different than the pain-killer type and has curried more favor among horsemen. It is described as a diuretic that flushes out a horse, lowers its blood pressure and heart beat rate and helps prevent bleeding from the nostrils. One report says it reduces bleeding by 75 per cent. But the danger is that trainers must be careful to keep their lasixed horses from becoming dehydrated. They do that with an intravenous administering of potasium and sodium to restore a proper electrolyte balance. Or so I am informed.

And I hope that answers your question. At least partly.

Major Franchise Due for Seattle?

SEATTLE (AP) — An existing major league baseball franchise has been offered to an organization seeking a team for Seattle, says Stan Naccarato, spokesman for the group.

Naccarato, executive vice-president and general manager of Tacoma Twins of the Pacific Coast League, said Thursday the franchise would be shifted to Seattle in time for the 1976 season.

"At this point I can't say what club or even what league," Naccarato said. "To do so would be doing a great disservice to the team involved." He also refused to reveal the members of his backing group. But he said Jimmy Zarelli, president of the Tacoma team, is his "financial adviser."

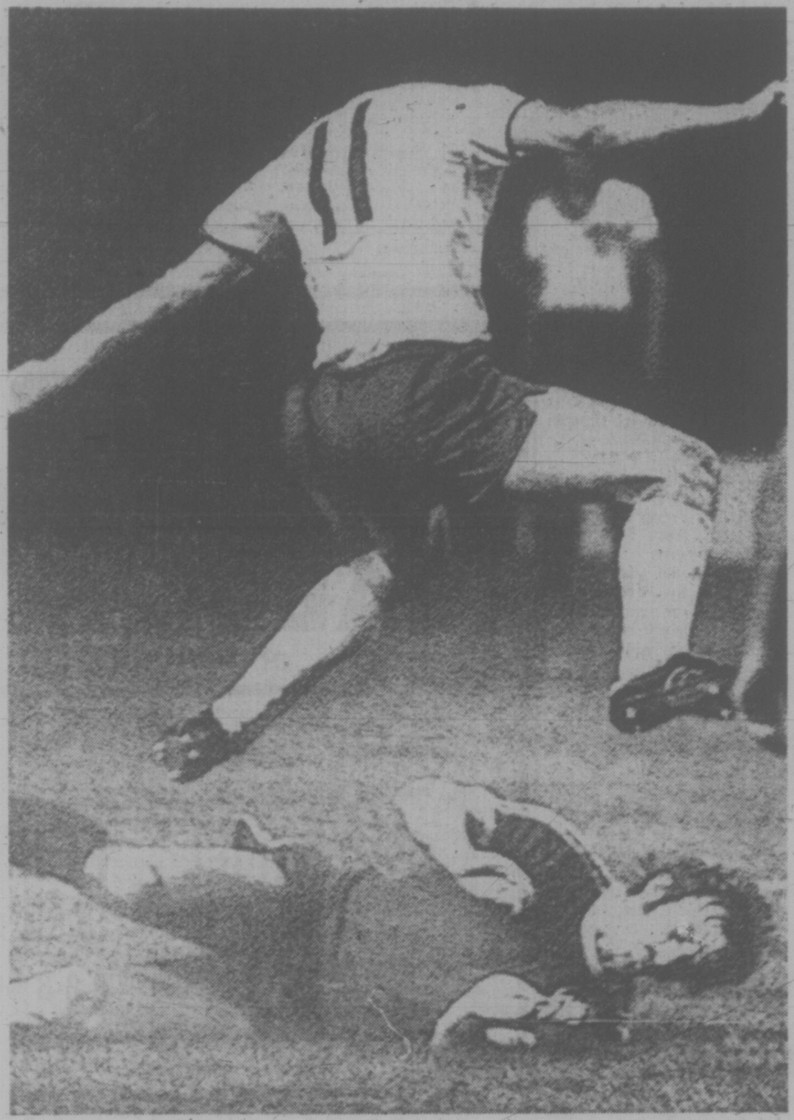
Naccarato said he feels his group is being looked upon favorably because the Twins have been a success at the gate — somewhat of a rarity in minor league baseball. He said he has had discussions with Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner; the presidents of both major leagues and lease discussions with Ted Bowsfield, manager of the King County domed stadium.

Although major league baseball's franchise committee met Wednesday in New York, Naccarato said he had not heard from anyone on the committee. There has been speculation that either San Francisco Giants or Chicago White Sox would be transferred to Seattle.

Savage Rough On Seigfreid

Dutch Savage outlasted Seigfreid Steinke in a bloody coal miner's glove match Thursday in the main event of a professional wrestling card Memorial Arena.

In other matches, Hiro Yagi downed Jim Dimitri, Chief Big Heart whpped Gringo Joe, Guy Mitchell and Dennis Stamp beat Igor Volkoff and Masa Saito and Dorothy Downs defeated Joyce Grable.



HEADLESS HURDLER Eberhard Vogel (11) leaps over fallen Canadian player during Thursday night's exhibition soccer between East Germany and Canada in Ottawa. Canadian was not hurt and Vogel showed his head again after the hurdle as he scored three times to lead East Germany.

Technically Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Displaying superb ball control and better conditioning East Germany, lead by Eberhard Vogel with three goals, dumped Canada 7-1 Thursday in international soccer.

Joachim Streich added two goals for the Germans, who led 3-0 at half-time, with single scores coming from Hans Jurgen Riediger and Jurgen Pommerenche.

Carl Rose scored the lone Canadian goal to the delight of 8,346 fans. The temperature hovered around 33 degrees Celsius 91 F taking its toll on the players.

German coach Georg Buschner told reporters the Canadian team was overtrained in toughness and physical ability but was deficient in the technical aspects of the game. There was little that could be done to improve Canada's hopes for next summer's Olympic Games in Montreal.

Canadian coach Bill McAllister said his squad started training four weeks ago and after playing their hearts out in Toronto, "it's pretty hard to come back two nights later against a machine-like team such as the Germans have."

Cole, Jackson Shine As Hitters Handcuffed

Larry Cole and Randy Jackson made it a pitchers' night Thursday in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League play at Central Park.

Cole allowed just three hits and struck out 12 as he sparked Royal Oak to a 5-2 triumph over Nanaimo A and B.

Jackson gave up only four hits as hurled leading Ingraham Hotel to a 4-0 victory over second-place Seaboard Construction.

Ingraham gave him all the runs he needed in the second inning when the club used two walks and four hits to score all its runs.

In the Heywood Avenue Men's League, Barry Webowski stole home in the seventh inning to give Eagles the winning run in a 3-2 triumph over Tony's Holdings.

The victory put the leading Eagles one game ahead of idle Capital Builders.

In semi-final action in the Sidney Men's Association at Sanscha Park, Roy Corpess slammed a three-run home run in the seventh inning to give Seaboard Properties a 6-5 win over Sidney Hotel in the first game of their best-of-three series.

Giants Toppled As Reds Roll On

By The Associated Press

John Montefusco could have had a steak dinner, but he had to eat his words instead.

The brash San Francisco Giants pitcher vowed to strike out Johnny Bench four times Thursday night and the Cincinnati Reds slugger promised Montefusco a free meal if he did.

As it was, Montefusco wasn't even around long enough to face Bench four times. The Reds bombed out the righthander with a six-run second inning en route to an 11-6 triumph over the Giants.

"I told him before the game that I'd buy him a steak dinner if he struck me out four times," said Bench, who hit a three-run homer in the big second-inning rally. "Nobody's going to strike me out four times in one game."

The Reds' victory, coupled with Los Angeles Dodgers' 11-10 loss to Atlanta Braves, boosted Cincinnati's runaway lead in the NL West Divison to 14½ games.

In other National League baseball action, New York Mets beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2, Montreal Expos defeated Philadelphia Phillies 7-4, Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 and San Diego Padres beat Houston Astros 5-3.

There were only three games in the American League, with Boston Red Sox sweeping a doubleheader from Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 10 innings and 6-1 while Minnesota Twins beat Kansas City Royals 7-2. The two Red Sox wins raised their American League East Division lead to nine games over the idle Baltimore Orioles.

Pete Rose tripled in Cincinnati's three-run sixth, driving in his 50th run of the season and the Reds outhit the Giants 12-11. Von Joshua hit his fourth homer of the year for San Francisco.

Roland Office hit a three-run homer off Los Angeles reliever Mike Marshall, capping a six-run rally in the ninth inning that gave Atlanta the victory over the Dodgers.

Trailing 10-5 going into the ninth, the Braves scored two quick runs on three hits, including an RBI double by Earl Williams that knocked out Rick Rhoden.

Marshall came in and struck out Dusty Baker for the first out before Larvell Blanks singled home the third run of the inning. Office then hit his game-winning homer over the left field fence.

Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer, his second of the night, to lead a four-run rally in the eighth that lifted New York over Pittsburgh. It was the first time the Mets had beaten the Pirates this season after eight losses.

Larry Parrish's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the first inning and Mike Jorgensen's double highlighted a three-run fifth, leading Montreal over Philadelphia.

Pepe Mangual started Montreal's first-inning rally with a single and moved to second on Jim Dwyer's walk. After a sacrifice advanced the runners, Jorgensen was walked to load the bases and set the stage for Larry Biittner's run-scoring single. Parrish then hit his two run single to give the Expos a quick 3-0 lead.

Jerry Morales' run-scoring double in the eighth broke a 3-3 tie and Manny Trillo squeezed home another run, lifting Chicago over St. Louis.

Bobby Tolan scored the tie-breaking run on an error in the eighth inning as San Diego beat Houston.

Old Putter Doing Job for Rik

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — An old, beat-up putter, mallet-headed and wooden-shafted-a gift from his caddy — turned the golf season around for Rik Massengale.

"Just like the last three, four years, I wasn't doing much of anything," Massengale said. "Out in Palm Springs early in the year my caddy, Denny Ferrell, was watching me putting one day and I was complaining about it and he said he had an old putte rI ought to try.

"He brought it out the next day and I've used it ever since. I think that's the biggest change there's been in my season — the putting."

Massengale, armed with that putter, scored eight birdies on his way to a seven-under-par 65 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Massengale, another faceless struggler on the tour for his first five years, broke though to his first triumph in the Tallahassee Open — after he'd gotten the caddy's putter — and, with $53,278 in official earnings, has more than tripled his earnings for the entire 1974 season.

He's going for a $50,000 first prize here, but isn't counting the money yet.

"You can't say I'm about to win the golf tournament 'cause I had a good first round," he said. "I've led golf tournaments in the first round before and wound up making $500 for the week. Anything can happen yet."

He had good reason to be less than over-confident. Lurking just a single shot off his pace with a 66 was Tom Weiskopf, a playoff winner over Jack Nicklaus for the Canadian Open title last weekend.

Jerry Pate, a former national amateur champion who is making his first American start as a pro, Pat Fitzsimons and Tommy Aaron were at 67, two strokes back and five under par on the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course that often yields some of the season's lowest scores.

The group at 68 was made up of British Open champion Tom Watson, veteran Gene Littler, Dick Lotz, Bud Allin and Ron Funseth.

FISHING REPORT

Good Signs Showing Up At Narrows

Waters from Becher Bay to Sooke continue to rate as the most productive, but the sports fishermen keeping an eye on prospects for the B.C. Salmon Derby might detect an encouraging sign from Sansum Narrows.

Fishing seems to be picking up in the Narrows.

With the showing of chinooks in the 30-pound class, Vancouver Island anglers may like their own chances of winning the $25,000 that goes to the winner of the Aug. 9-10 B.C. Derby.

The derby territory from Cowichan Bay, around Separation Point and down to the Narrows is where they'll all be at. Hopefully, big fish, too.

Latest reports from Cowichan Bay marinas offer fishing from "spotty" to "improving." Sue Parmenter at Pier 66 says some 30 pounders have been caught at the narrows and coho in the five to seven-pound class are showing.

Joe Kuttai at Bayshore admits the Bay itself is "spotty." Most of his regulars have been doing better with the evening bite than in the morning.

* * *

If you're going out this weekend, then planning to enter the derby the following weekend, some advice: Don't wait until the last minute to check or re-rig your gear or to buy bait and new equipment.

Don't take chances with rusty hooks or swivels or with frayed leaders.

Give yourself time to run to another outlet if your susual supplier happens to run short of bait.

* * *

Otherwise, regular success continues to prevail in the Lower Island hotspots from Becher Bay to Sooke.

Somewhat embarrassed when his wife brought in a 26-pounder earlier in the week, Bill Fife came back Wednesday with a 33½-pounder, caught off Beechy Head.

Some great fishermen in Victoria softball . . . Herb Bate, Gord Wilkin, the Al Beasleys (Sr and Jr.) and etcetera, but George Wetherell scores a home run with the story of the week.

A 36½-pounder broke his line and took off with leader and flasher. George noticed the fish remain on the surface and gave chase. After 15 minutes, and with the help of another boat, Wetherell was able to net the surface rider.

* * *

An increasing number of pinks are being caught off Secretary Island and Beechy Head. The "light-liners" are anticipating some fun after Martha Jarvie weighed in 13½-pound coho, caught off the "Trap Shack" near Beechy Head.

Albert Brohman brought in an eight-pound coho Thursday.

Gerhardt Hansen limited off Secretary with a 31-pound chinook, a sockeye and two pinks but the catch of the week was a 42-pounder caught by Cliff Sandwith, off Aldridge Point.

* * *

Sidney, James and Coal Island waters are slow, as is the resort stretch from Parksville to Campbell River.

Orm Stevenson of Bates Beach Resort feels fishing will improve all along the "resort stretch" when a big school of coho moves away from Mitlenatch Island.

The run may be on the move now. Stevenson said boats fishing Oyster Bay on Wednesday night averaged two and three fish, and there was another flurry of good fishing reported Thursday morning.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Former City Player Sets Scoring Record

PETERBOROUGH — Former Victoria McDonalds player Phil Green established an Ontario Lacrosse Association scoring record Thursday.

Green had one goal and 13 assists to finish his junior "A" season with 205 points, 55 of them goals, as he sparked Peterborough Gray-Munros to a 35-11 win over Lakeshore Maple Leafs.

Green, who spent two years with the Bakers before joining Peterborough, came into the game holding a share of the record of 191 points, set in 1967 by Gaylord Powless while playing for Oshawa Green Gaels.

Greig Saves England

LONDON (Reuter) — Tony Greig, taking inspiration from his new role as captain, rescued England from the fury of Australian fast bowler Dennis Lillee on the opening day of the second cricket test at Lords Thursday.

Lillee had removed Barry Wood, John Edrich, Dennis Amiss and Graham Gooch to allow England only 49 for four when Greig went in to bat.

Greig's audacious 96 in two hours 40 minutes enabled England to close the day at 313 for nine.

Although it is not an impregnable position, England is better placed to avoid the indignity suffered in the first match of this four-test series when Australia beat them by an inning and 85 runs.

David Steele, playing his first test match at 33, helped Greig get the rally started getting 50 runs before he was retired. Then Allan Knott stepped in to help his captain in a sixth-wicket partnership which produced 77 runs.

Trial with Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions, losers of their first two games in the Canadian Football League season, will give Canadian defensive-back Doug Carlson, 22, a five-day trial.

Carlson, a 196-pound Calgary native, played college football at the University of Colorado.

Seeds tumbled all over the Racquet Club of Victoria courts Thursday, but once again the spotlight was grabbed by a couple of local guys, who tried hard but this time were just out of their class.

Fans poured in to see what they hoped would be the second big upset in a row for Ernie Cockayne and Roger Skillings in the 78th B.C. Open Tennis Championships.

It didn't work out that way.

With the obviously partisan crowd in the balcony wildly applauding every Victoria point, Australian Steve Docherty and New Zealander Peter Langsford broke Cockayne's serve early in both sets to win 6-3, 6-2.

The barracking got so one-sided that on a couple of occasions in the second set, when either he or his partner hit a winning shot, the happy-go-lucky New Zealander smiled at the crowd and raised his arms in mock triumph.

That got a laugh from the fans and from Cockayne and Skillings too, who both said they enjoyed the match immensely.

"It was a great lesson," Cockayne smiled afterward.

They were the last Canadians left in the Open.

Earlier, both Brenda Cameron and Lori Barlow of Victoria bowed out of the women's singles.

Brenda put up a terrific fight before going out 7-6, 4-6, 6-4 to Bev Barger of the University of Oklahoma, and Lori was out of her depth against third-seeded Molly Hannas of Kansas City, Mis., losing 6-2, 6-0.

The six-foot, four-inch Langsford, a provincial tennis instructor from Auckland, had earlier thrilled the crowd with some delicate shots in his 7-5, 5-7, 6-3 victory over fourth-seeded Mark Joffey of Tempe, Ariz.

But that was by no means the day's only shock.

Out went second-seeded Doug King of Berkley, Calif., soundly whipped 6-4, 6-2 by Jerry Van Linge of Venice, Calif. Out went third-ranked Jeff Cowan of Bakersfield, Calif., beaten 6-4, 6-1 by Rich Andrews of Los Angeles. And out, too, went fifth-seeded Kent Crawford of Salt Lake City, Utah, nipped 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 by Stan Franker of Los Angeles.

Even the big-serving six-foot-five-inch top-seeded Docherty had to fight to stay in as he dropped a first set tie-breaker then came back for a 6-7, 6-2, 6-1 win over Tim McNeil of Los Angeles.

One of the best matches of the day was a gruelling three-hour struggle between Stan Pasarell of Puerto Rico and Barr Baynton of Oklahoma City, Okla. Pasarell finally won 7-6, 5-7, 7-6, taking the tiebreaker eight points to six.

There weren't any big surprises in the women's matches, though.

Top-seeded Isa Ortiz of Colombia beat Lili Bell of Denver, Colo., 6-1, 6-2; second-ranked Claire Schmoyer of Arizona State University crushed Karen Reinke of San Diego 6-1, 6-1; and fourth-seeded Karen Kennington of Sandy, Utah, won 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 over Mary Anne Colville of Santa Barbara, Calif.

There's more action today and Saturday with all finals set for Sunday.

When Harper Drives, Forget About Rhoda

When Don Harper of Ashland, Ore., made his first drive at Western Speedway in the Carling super stock open race July 5, word got out that his sister was Valerie Harper, the television actress of Rhoda fame.

By the time the race ended, however, Harper had proven he didn't need his sister's name to gain the spotlight. He had stock car fans buzzing over one of the better driving jobs of the season, one that earned him second place behind winner Rick O'Dell. And he did it with a major handicap — the suspension in his 1975 Camaro was set up for banked turns, something the Western oval does not have.

Although he passed up the International Drivers' Challenge series race at Western July 15, Harper has emerged as one of the top drivers in the Pacific Northwest, winning his last three starts at Portland Speedway, including the IDC windup two weeks ago.

Harper sent word to Western Speedway's Barry Rankin Thursday that he had adjusted the suspension in his car and plans to race here Saturday night in the fourth event of the Carling open class series, the Billy Foster 100.

Despite his infrequent appearances in the series, Harper is ninth in driver points standing with 230 but he has a long way to go to catch leader Roy Haslam, who has two series wins and 575 points.

O'Dell is Haslam's nearest rival with 437 points, most of them coming as a result of his July 5 win which was worth double money and double points. Saturday's 100-lapper pays $1,000 to the winner for a total purse for the night of $5,000.

A couple of other local drivers are within striking range of the lead. Gary Kershaw and George Stuart of Campbell River have 429 points apiece and are tied for third.

Sixth race in the series is at Western Aug. 23, again for a purse of $5,000, and the windup comes with the Canada 200 Sept. 6 with a $7,500 pot at stake. Top 15 drivers in the series also share in a $3,000 points fund.

Saturday's program, meanwhile, begins with time trials at 7 p.m. and racing at 8.

Kelowna Belts Saanich Squad

VANCOUVER — Kelowna hammered Saanich Evening Optimists 11-1 Thursday to force an extra game in the B.C. Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 13-year-olds.

The Interior club scored four runs in both the third and fourth innings and had 10 hits against three Saanich pitchers.

Kelowna's only defeat in the double-knockout event came in the tournament opener when Saanich took a 10-9 decision. The two teams meet in final tonight at 6:30 o'clock at Mahon Park.

Carnarvon Takes Playoff Opener

COQUITLAM—Victoria Carnarvon won its opening game in the B.C. Pony league baseball double-knockout tournament Thursday with a 4-2 decision over Vancouver Capilano.

Tom Martin, who allowed just two hits, earned the win but needed relief help from Tom Adams in the seventh inning after giving up two runs on four walks and an error.

Kevin Harrison sparked the Carnaryon offence with two runs-batted-in on a double and a single while Bob Southey slapped two doubles and scored twice.

In other game, Kamloops and Port Coquitlam beat Richmond Central 8-1.

Wright Champion Of Champs

Vilsie Wright of Vic West captured the Champion of Champions women's singles lawn bowling tournament Thursday at Canadian Pacific Lawn Bowling Club.

Mrs. Wright downed Jessie Kinneard of Burnside 22-13 to take the title and finish undefeated in the four-bowler round-robin event.

Jan Nichols of Victoria and Hazel Hall of Lake Hill decided not to play their third-round game after going winless in the first two rounds.

The tournament was originally slated to have the six Greater Victoria club titleists competing but Ann McKeaver of the host club and Rosa Gilbart of Oak Bay were unable to participate.

Clippers Are Back

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — Directors of the American Hockey League have granted a franchise to Baltimore Clippers under new ownership.

The Clippers dropped out of the league last season when a World Hockey Association team was placed in Baltimore. The WHA club later folded.

League spokesman Gordon Anziano said directors also voted to grant a one-year leave-of-absence to Syracuse, which "suffered great financial losses last year and is trying to get its house in order."

City Juniors Spark Team

SASKATOON (CP) — British Columbia moved into the lead in Thursday's second round of the tri-province junior B golf championship at Riverside Country Club.

Led by Victorians Jim Rutledge and Russ Reynolds, both with par 74, the four-member B.C. team picked up 18 points to take the lead in the 54-hole event. B.C. now has 21½ points, and runnerup Alberta has 19.

The Alberta squad added 13½ points to its opening-day total while the Saskatchewan team could only claim four and one-half points for a total of seven and one-half.

The scoring system was altered slightly from the opening day, when a single point was given to the golfer who had the best front nine, the best back nine or the best total in a threesome. Thursday, two points were given to the golfer with the best nines or total and one point to the second best.

The 74s, both composed of 36-38 nines, helped Rutledge and Reynolds pick up the maximum six points each. Other B.C. points came from 14-year-old Jeff Wylie of Nanaimo and Geoff Nesbitt of Vancouver, each with three.

Instructing at the clinic will be such notables as Dave Dryden, Ron Andruff, and Neil Johnson, head instructor of the clinic. There will also be Ross Valliere, one of the top Vancouver Island officials, along with Larry and Norm McNab and Jimmy Dawes.

Information on the clinic can be obtained from the Fuller Lake Minor Hockey Association president, Robert Clarkson at 246-3647.

Firefighters Present 'Final Demand'

The Victoria firefighters' union presented its final contract demands to city officials at a negotiation meeting Thursday and will find out next week whether the proposals have been accepted.

Victoria firefighters' president Ross Cameron said today the city's personnel committee will consider the proposals at its meeting Thursday.

If the committee approves the proposals, the negotiating committee will recommend ratification of the contract at a membership meeting already scheduled for that night, Cameron said.

But, if the proposals are rejected, the membership will vote either to take a strike vote or to apply for binding arbitration.

The minimum wage proposal by the firefighters, who have been without a contract since last December, is parity with the Lower Mainland firemen.

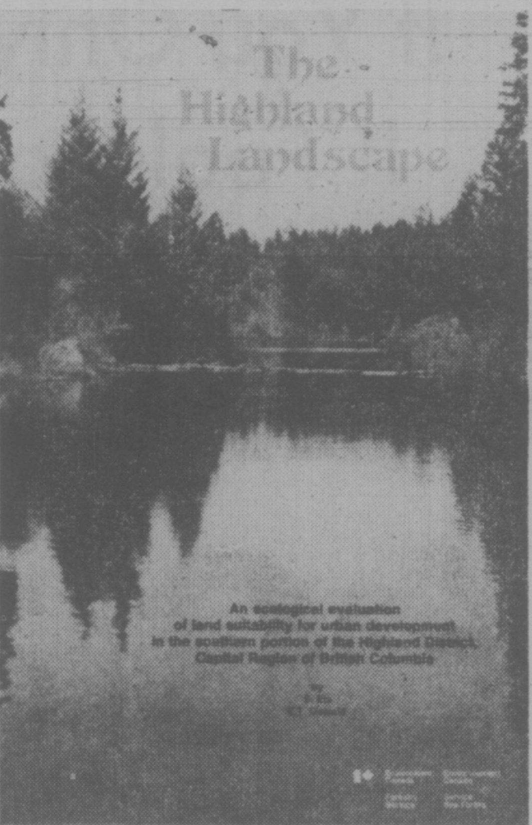
Lower Mainland salaries are based on Vancouver police salaries, plus three per cent. A key classification fireman on the Lower Mainland would receive $16,512, the rate for a first class constable, plus three per cent.

Meanwhile, Victoria police union negotiations, which were thought to have broken off Wednesday, are continuing.

A membership meeting was held Thursday night, and Sgt. Pat Braiden, local president, said today negotiations will be continuing.

"The door is still open," Braiden said.

Victoria police are asking for parity with Vancouver policemen.



The Highland Landscape

An ecological evaluation of land suitability for urban development in the southern portion of the Highland District, Capital Region of British Columbia

Hard look at housing possibilities

60% of Highlands 'Suitable for Houses'

A detailed study of 3,500 acres in the southern Highlands by Environment Canada shows about 60 per cent of it — hillside slopes and flatlands — is suitable for housing.

But, it warns that pockets of fragile land in the area must be protected and notes that fog in the lowlands and fire on the steep slopes are among hazards.

The 35-page report, titled The Highland Landscape, was prepared at the request of the Capital Regional Board to provide the environmental background for planning a future community in the rugged area 10 miles west of Victoria.

The provincial government has already bought about 1,200 acres in the region and is negotiating for more in a housing development plan to unfold over the next few years.

The report, written by Drs. Slavoj Eis and Edward Oswald, research scientists with the Pacific Forest Research Centre, says high and constantly rising land values forecast population growth in the Capital District.

"Uncontrolled growth would assume the same form it has in the past, spreading without discrimination and slowly but surely obliterating the beautiful landscape of the region."

Eight varieties of landscape in the southern Highlands are described by the scientists together with explanations of what each is most suitable for.

They conclude that the deep soil landscape found in flat lowlands and the lower slopes of hills is best suited for housing but it comprises only 9 per cent of the area.

However, shallow soil land on moderate slopes covers more than half the study area and, combined with the flatlands, forms blocks large enough for the proposed development.

In general, the researchers see housing located on the Highland slopes, with roads and services concentrated on the lower flatlands.

Excavations and construction is cheapest on the flat terrain, but this land provides "a rather unattractive environment for permanent living," with poor view, subject to fog and unseasonal frost because cold air from the slopes will settle there.

Channelling and concentration of air currents in the valley may result in wind damage, they say.

Moderate slopes constitute the most common landscape unit in the Highlands and loss of a small area will be insignificant, the report says. This kind of land will provide an esthetic setting for housing, with variable topography and attractive views.

"Ideally, the remaining landscape units, because of their limitations, should form the open space and be excluded from urban development. If located within the development area, they should be used to break up the residential development into smaller clusters."

While human traffic on moss-carpeted slopes will cause erosion . . . "far more serious is the danger of fire.

"Dry mosses and grasses are highly inflammable during the summer and the spread of fire on steep topography is rapid. An accidental fire could cause more damage than heavy trampling over many years."

Wet forest land, bogs and marshes, all subject to periodic flooding, should be exempted from all development. Among their assets: they provide important wildlife habitat.

Close to settlement, marshlands could be flooded to form recreational lakes or partially drained and developed into parks or flower gardens.

Motor-powered boats should be excluded from all lakes in the area.

The report is available free from the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside.

Diesel Hoot Distressing

A complaint to Victoria city council claims that early morning hooting of the E & N Dayliner, with a horn "designed to be heard clear across three prairie townships," is disturbing the sleep of Victoria West residents.

B. G. Brown, a resident of the Princess Patrica apartments on Esquimalt Road, says in a letter to City Hall that noise is to be expected in a commercial area, but the problem is caused by "the unthinking and careless use of this noise."

As an example, he mentions the loudly and frequently hooting locomotives plying the CPR tracks, creating a noise nuisance to hundreds of families.

"There are five street crossings between Viewfield Road and the Roundhouse," he states in his letter. "The daily 5 a.m. freight train is apparently required to hoot 20 times in the space of half a mile in order to cross five empty streets.

"The yard engine starts work as the freight arrives. It hoots its way across these same empty streets with complete unconcern for the multidue of erstwhile sleepers.

"To take a boxcar to, say, Standard Furniture, it must cross these same five streets and return all in 10 minutes. Forty hoots in 10 minutes at 6 a.m!"

When the public works committee considers Brown's letter on Tuesday, it will be informed by city solicitor Jakob de Villiers that the cit's noise abatement bylaw can be amended to ban engine whistles and bells, but that this might involve "a risk to life and property."

De Villiers' report notes that the Railway Act requires any train approaching a highway crossing to sound its engine whistle "at least 80 rods before approaching such crossing," and to ring its bell continuously from the time of the first hoot until the train has crossed.

A municipal bylaw banning such sounds, if approved by the Canadian Transport Commission, would relieve the company of its duty to provide any warnings to road users.

Ferries Jammed For Weekend

If you don't want the hassle of long lineups at B.C. ferry terminals this weekend stay home or be a foot passenger.

This was the advice of a ferry spokesman today as cars had a three-hour wait at Swartz Bay this morning and recreational vehicles, four hours.

There were 100 campers waiting in line for the 6 a.m. sailing. The spokesman said that 50 of them were unable to get aboard the 10 p.m. sailing on Thursday. The remainder kept arriving at the terminal during the night hours.

No extra sailings have been scheduled for the weekend traffic. Final sailings for both the Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen terminals will be 10 p.m. each day.

Pleasure boaters will be faced with brisk winds in both the Gulf of Georgia and the Strait of Jean de Fuca.

Weather conditions are expected to remain sunny with cloudy periods and temperatures around 20.

STUDENTS FLOOD UVIC

Student applications to the University of Victoria for the coming school year have risen some 1,800 over bids made last year, officials of UVic's admissions office said today.

Registration supervisor Fred Bennett and admissions director Esme Ford both said they don't expect to take any more applications beyond the July 31 deadline.

Last week, UVic president Howard Petch said the deadline would be adhered to more strictly than usual because lack of building expansion does not allow much of an increase in over-all enrolment.

An unofficial count today put registration of new students at 3,600, which is about 800 more than last year. Re-registrations and applications were about 960 over last year's figure of 3,919.

"Because there are these increased numbers, we are going to hold fast to the deadline," said Ford. She also said earlier deadlines were observed for students transferring from other colleges and universities.

Some drop in actual registration is expected because some students will not qualify or will have made bids to more than one university.

Forgotten Forebears In Museum Display

British Columbia's forgotten forebears—the women who shaped the province—will be remembered this fall in special museum display to mark International Women's Year.

"Our Hidden Heritage—The Women in B.C.'s History" is a project of Victoria's Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) and will go on display September 1.

Funded by a $5,000 federal grant and a $25,000 provincial donation, the project is designed to portray the half of B.C. history ignored by traditional textbooks.

Linda Gilligan, co-ordinator and only full-time worker on the exhibit, said the display will feature the lives and achievements of various B.C. women in the last 100 years.

Interspersed with the individual displays will be huge photographs of anonymous women throughout history, working and living in nonstereotyped roles.

The modular-style display will be set up on the second floor of the provincial museum but Gilligan hopes the exhibit will travel around the province later in the year.

Featured in the display are seven B.C. women plus the "Flying Seven," a group of women at Vancouver airport who formed the first female flying club in Canada in 1936.

The women flyers were involved in stunt flying and contributed to the war effort through pamphlet distribution and teaching at the airport.

Other figures in the display will be:

—Helen Gregory MacGill, the first woman in Canada to obtain a university degree and the first female provincial court judge, who worked in the field of law reform.

—Mary Ellen Smith, the first woman MLA in B.C.

—Dr. Helen Gordon Stewart, a prominent librarian who promoted open-shelf programs and bookmobiles.

—Alice H. Berry, a widow who became involved in the Vancouver World shortly after the turn of the century and eventually became the first female managing editor of a daily newspaper in Canada.

The exhibit will run until Oct. 10.

50-Cent Hike For Haircut

A haircut in Victoria's union barbershops now costs $4, raised from $3.50 at a meeting of the barbers' union.

Union secretary-treasurer Hugh Ross said the 50-cent increase was ratified by the barbers Thursday.

The $4 rate is the minimum charge for a haircut. A cut involving complicated cutting or styling will cost more, Ross said.

One Man's Journey to Far Cape Scott

JIM WILLIAMS IS A friendly, outgoing man, but when he sets off on one of his extended rambles in the Cape Scott country, he would just as soon travel alone. That way, Jim explains, he's free to wander and observe, to think about what he sees and to linger where he chooses.

On his last trip, he observed that the ancient Singer sewing machine had been toppled from its spot on Fisherman River bank.

"There'd been a house by the river once," says Jim, "and it seemed to me the old foot-pedal sewing machine was a kind of memorial to those people who'd come and gone. If anyone else had been with me, though, I'd have worried about taking the time to put it back where it belonged."

Unencumbered, Jim made a wet job of retrieving the machine from the water. Then he wrung out his socks, swung up his pack-frame, and moseyed on along the Cape Scott trail.

Jim Williams, a 42-year-old family man and pulpmill worker, lives a few miles south of Ladysmith.

In earlier years, he sometimes went hunting with his father. But he has always preferred studying wild creatures to shooting them. He has a feeling for the woods and the wild beaches.

Once, in company, he hiked a considerable stretch of the West Coast trail. The notion of heading north for a look at Vancouver Island's tip-top wasn't sparked overnight. Jim is a methodical man, not inclined to act in haste.

Occasionally in his reading, he came on references to the Cape Scott area. He learned about the Danish settlers who established farms near Hansen's Lagoon soon after the turn of the century, only to be defeated by the distance between their crops and the southern market. What he learned whetted Jim's interest. He decided to go up for a look around. But first, he would add to his information.

In the provincial archives at Victoria, he expanded his file. Then, in August of 1973, he scrambled an outfit together and loaded it in a packsack.

Jim's mother-in-law urged him to take the family dog along for company. So when he set out, he wasn't quite alone. Jocko, a black miniature poodle with the heart of a lion, was with him when he parked his car at the end of a logging road near San Josef Bay and took to the Cape Scott trail.

"I wasn't sure how Jocko would stand up to it," Jim remembers. "In fact, I thought we might end the day with me carrying him. But he did fine — he was out front all the way."

They crossed Fisherman River on a log, and saw the sewing machine which had been a pioneer woman's pride.

They left the mud of the earlier trail behind, though not before Jim's soaked feet were painfully blistered.

They came to abandoned farms, their fences long gone but fence posts still standing, and the earth dykes that shielded them from marshlands still sound.

They arrived at the tip of the Island by a route that took them over three swinging bridges and down 324 steps, to gaze on the open Pacific.

The Cape Scott lightkeeper warned Jim to keep an eye on Jocko. His own dog had almost been nabbed by a cougar a day or two before, and another dog had been less lucky. That night, his camp a plastic tarp spread over a sleeping bag, Jim slept with a hatchet beside him and Jocko secured to his wrist by a yard of rope.

With four days to spend in country that was everything he'd hoped it would be, Jim wandered by trail and beach. He took pictures, sketched maps, and kept a detailed and careful log. In it is recorded the inscription on an eight-foot stone obelisk which he happened on near Nissen Bight.

The stone, raised in 1906, marks the passing of William Christensen, aged 12.

'The sun went down while it was yet day,' the chiselled words run.

Jim copied them, while Jocko squatted beside him.

Jocko is gone now — disappeared without trace on his early-morning run a year ago — and Jim was altogether alone when he returned to Cape Scott for another four-day walkabout last June.

Thanks to birthday and Christmas presents from wife Charlotte and daughters Sherri, Wendy and Jeanene, Jim was better equipped for his second trip. His new pack-frame rode easier than the old packsack of his first venture. He had a lightweight sleeping bag and a compact little trail tent, also a variety of dehydrated foods in wet-proof packages.

Except for the sewing machine tumbled into the river and a wheel missing from the old buggy that sits on an overgrown farm lane, all was as he'd remembered it. Jim saw deer in herds. He watched a bear heave beach rocks aside to feast on little shore crabs. His log records that pioneers Earle Lincoln, 86, and Jim Cordy, 87, were still well and hearty in the neighboring homes they built six miles from Holberg most of 50 years ago.

It was a good trip, even though Jim missed Jocko. But the family's new black miniature poodle may go with him when he next returns to an area that still has much to offer the wide-eyed traveller.

Charge Laid In Hoax Call

Two 17-year-old youths were charged in Victoria provincial court this morning with making a threatening phone call.

Prosecutor Nick Lang alleged Steven Michael Trim of 3702 Duke and Kevin John Cooper of Sooke Road phoned Dunsmuir junior secondary school on March 19 to say they had hidden a bomb in the school. The call proved a hoax.

The pair pleaded not guilty and Judge William Ostler remanded them to Oct. 13 for trial.

Detective's Last Shift

BAKER
. . . retires

Illness has forced the early retirement of one of Saanich police department's best liked and most respected members.

Detective-Sergeant Norman Baker turned in his last shift Thursday, ending a 21-year career with the force.

In an interview the 52-year-old veteran police officer and former professional basketball star said he was retiring on doctor's orders.

Baker had a stroke three-and-a-half years ago which resulted in the temporary loss of speech and paralysis in his right arm. He was off work for nearly a year and tried to make a come-back but other health problems developed.

"Finally my doctor told me to get out while I still could," he said. "But I feel I'm too young to retire."

He will be on disability pension limited to light activities.

Saanich police chief Robert Peterson said he regretted Baker's leaving.

"He has always been well-liked around here and was one of those rare individuals who always bore a smile on his face. We'll miss him."

Born in Victoria in 1923 Baker was raised in Nanaimo. He returned to the capital city in 1938 and started to play basketball.

As a strapping, six-foot, two-inch tall youth he excelled in the sport. He played in the senior amateur division. His team won five Canada titles and he was the youngest player, at age 16, to play on a Canadian championship team.

Following the war, during which he served as an airplane mechanic in Canada, he went to Chicago and then ended up on the west coast playing in the Pacific Coast Basketball league first for Vancouver and later for Portland.

He earned $900 a month, a lot of money in those days but a pittance compared to current professional athlete pay standards.

He was spotted by a scout for the Boston Celtics, signed up and played four years as a guard with the National Basketball League team.

In his second year with the Celtics he was selected to the league's All Star team and went on a 13-country tour of Europe, playing against the Harlem Globetrotters.

"We beat them the odd time," he recalled. "But we weren't supposed to"

He retired from basketball in 1951.

The reason: "I got married and to continue playing would have meant keeping two homes."

He and his wife Nancy, a former Vancouver girl, returned west. After a couple of years doing various jobs Baker joined the Saanich police force.

"I knew some of the fellows on the force and it seemed a good place to work," he said.

Promoted to detective sergeant in 1964 he was the investigator in a number of notable cases. On one—the $250,000 Chateau Victoria fraud case—he worked steadily a full year before it ended successfully in a conviction. Towards the end of the 60s he spent a year on the Greater Victoria drug squad.

During this period he remained active in amateur sport, particularly lacrosse, basketball and soccer.

Retirement poses a difficult adjustment, Baker reflected, for he will be restricted to such activities as fishing and gardening.

But he hopes to be able to spend more time following lacrosse, a sport in which his only son, Norman, 21, has shown considerable promise playing with the Victoria Shamrocks.

Baker said a scout from Philadelphia indicated interest in Norman junior. However, he added, it's unlikely his son will take the bait.

The reason is the same one that brought an abrupt end to his own professional athlete career:

"He's planning to get married this October."

Athletes Receive Awards

Fourteen Victoria youths are among 58 college and university students sharing $34,250 in provincial government athletic awards and scholarships.

The Premier's Athletic Awards of $1,000 go to five B.C. students, including two Victorians;

Margaret Mainwaring, 1908 Beach Dr. and George Richey, 5335 Parker Ave.

Nancy Green Scholarships of $750 went to 20 students including two Victorians:

Deborah Gerrath, of 555 Davida Ave., and Lesley Godfrey, of 1750 Haultain St.

Nine Victorians were among the 24 winners of the $500 B.C. Athletic Awards:

Catherine Auburn, of 2282 Marlene Dr.; Beverly Cox, of 1622 Richardson St.; Rosemary Fuller, of 906 Admirals Rd.; Paul Jeune, of 626 Foul Bay Road; David Kirzinger, of 1892 Prosser Rd.; Robert Parris, of 592 Island Rd.; Diane Pendray, of 4160 Blenkinsop; Lesley Williams and Michele Williams, of 2161 Allenby St.

Nine $250 B.C. Athletic awards were granted and one went to John Dowling, of 3215 Henderson Rd.

The annual awards are made from the B.C. Physical Fitness and Amateur Sports Fund.

Convict On Pass Escapes

Police with a tracking dog are searching the area around Matheson Lake today for a 26-year-old inmate of William Head federal prison who escaped while on a pass to the lake Thursday evening.

Colwood RCMP said Frank Kandrnal was with a group of seven prisoners and failed to show up as escorts rounded up the men at 8:20 p.m. to return them to the prison at William Head spit after an evening's swim.

A search for the missing man was mounted immediately and a tracking dog brought in. But all searchers found was Kandrnal's bathing suit hidden in a bush. Police presume he made off wearing his beige prison clothing.

Kandrnal was sentenced last year to 11 years in prison for a robbery in Kitimat. His probable release date would have been Sept. 23, 1981.

Rentals Hearing Aug. 14

Hearings on the problems of rental accommodation in B.C. will be held in Victoria Aug. 14 at the Newcombe Auditorium.

Both oral and written submissions will be accepted by the members of the provincial committee studying "the cost of rent, rental controls and the availability of rental accommodation in B.C."

The interdepartmental committee, headed by former Toronto alderman Karl Jaffrey, was struck earlier this year and will submit recommendations to the government this fall.

It is holding five public hearings around the province this month, in Kelowna, Prince George, Vancouver, and Burnaby as well as Victoria.

Written submissions should be sent to the Rent Review Commission, PO Box 9600, Vancouver, before Aug. 15.

Film-Makers Focus on 'Unknowns'

EDMONTON (CP) — When two local film-makers set out to make a film on the history of prairie women, they wanted to pay homage to the "thousands of nameless women" who helped settle the west.

"We wanted to focus on the unknowns," said Anne Wheeler, co-producer of Great Grand Mothers.

The film, to be released shortly by the National Film Board (NFB), illuminates a hitherto-neglected area of Canadian history — the contribution of women to western settlement.

"Most of what has been documented so far has been male-oriented," said Miss Wheeler, who produced the film with associate Lorna Rasmussen.

"As a result, little is known about the day-to-day lives of pioneer women, who often faced incredible hardships and deprivation."

The 28-minute film, under executive producer Kathleen Shannon of the NFB, begins at the dawn of settlement on the prairies and ends when women achieved the vote.

It uses still photographs, interspaced with re-enactments of pioneer life and interviews with old-timers, to present what Miss Wheeler terms a "sociological history," rather than a history of chronological events.

The film-makers said unearthing research material for the film was a "frustrating" experience. Few archives contained material about women pioneers, and women themselves left few records because "they did not conceive of themselves as doing anything of historical importance."

Turning instead to personal records, the film-makers spent 1½ years painstakingly uncovering several hundred photographs, diaries, letters and out-of-print books.

In the end, they gathered so much information that the overflow is to be published in book form later this year.

"We discovered a lot of women whose lives should be documented," Miss Wheeler said. "The unknowns in the film include a Ukrainian woman forced to emigrate to Canada to marry a man she had only met once, a fairly common practice then.

"And then there were the frail English women who suddenly found themselves dumped in a sod house on a bald prairie, often left alone for months and months."

Often, women were left to face child-birth virtually unattended, Miss Rasmussen said, recalling the story of one having her first child.

"She was from England and living on a ranch in southern Alberta. The day her child was born, her husband left the house at eight o'clock and didn't return for another 12 hours.

"His concept was that if cows have calves by themselves, his wife could have a baby alone."

So isolated were settlement wives that months would often pass by before they saw anyone outside their immediate families.

"In one diary, a pioneer woman wrote that she had just seen another woman for the first time that year. She said she was so shy she ran to a bush and hid."

Miss Wheeler said such hardships either destroyed these women or made them very strong.

"There seems to be a sense of pride in having survived it all. I think it created a special breed of woman."

Miss Wheeler, who got into films "completely by accident" after studying mathematics at university, has produced 12 films as a shareholder in Filmwest, a film cooperative established here in 1971.

Miss Rasmussen, who has been associated with Filmwest for two years, had experience as a camerawoman before beginning research on Great Grand Mothers.

The film-makers, who spent 1½ years trying to raise money for the film, finally obtained NFB funding for the $42,000 production.

COUNTER CAPS

Athlete's Foot and Ringworm are very common skin infections. They are easily passed from person to person by contact, and in the case of ringworm, the source is often found to be the family cat. Ringworm can appear anywhere on the body, and produces a pink or red appearance of slightly raised spots in circular or irregular shape. Athlete's Foot is commonly found between the toes. Skin appears white and dead and peels.

These infections should be treated promptly and early. Cats should be examined and treated by a veterinarian in order to eliminate the source of infection.

Beware Either-Or

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been a widow for two years and have relocated to a completely different area where I have no close friends and no one to talk to about this.

I met a gentleman last year, and I like him very, very much. He wants to marry me, but I don't want to relinquish my freedom.

I do not want a legal tie with him for one reason. He is addicted to alcohol. He seems to handle it wisely, but I don't want to be his wife. Also, we are both in business and I need some time to myself. I enjoy his company enormously, however, and we are compatible in every way. I am 57 and he is 63.

I've considered suggesting to him the new "living together" arrangement so many younger people now find to their liking. He's pressuring me for an answer.

What do you say?—"57 AND HOLDING"

DEAR "57": Remain holding. Don't marry him feeling as you do. And don't suggest living together, either. Continue to see him as long as you enjoy his company, but if he gives you an "either-or," take the "or."

DEAR ABBY: The problem briefly: Our daughter (a good student at an out-of-town college) recently volunteered the information that she is a lesbian. We were stunned since we had no inkling of this.

After discussions and correspondence on the subject, she flatly refuses any form of counseling and says that she is happy at the present time and sees no need to change.

What more can we as parents do to keep her from ruining her life? We love her. — NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: Why do you assume that her sexual preference will necessarily "ruin" her life? If you love her, accept her as she is and let her know it.

DEAR ABBY: I am highly allergic to dogs. The odor of dogs makes me sick. I can even smell it on people's clothing.

My problem is that my son has married a dog lover, and they have a dog.

I explained to them what my problem was and even offered to buy my daughter-in-law a monkey or any other kind of pet she wanted if only she would get rid of the dog. So far, she still has the dog.

Of course I can't go over to their place, and when they come to see me, the odor of their dog is on them, and I can't tolerate it for long.

It seems to me that my daughter-in-law could live without a dog if she had to choose between having one and seeing me. What do you think?— HURT.

DEAR HURT: Asking a dog lover to get rid of her dog is asking a lot. But I agree, people are more important than dogs. Or they should be.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress with a pet peeve: women who come in with escorts and refuse to speak to me.

When I ask for their order, they ignore me, turn to their escorts and tell THEM what they want. Then the man gives the order to me. This is ridiculous.

Do women think they are too good to talk to a waitress, or what? This happens all the time, and it burns me up. Maybe if you print this, it will have some effect on women who are guilty of this humiliating practice. Thanks a lot. — BURNED

DEAR BURNED: Sorry, but according to the etiquette book, the gentleman should order for both the lady and himself. This is practiced in the more elegant and formal restaurants. But in the interest of common sense and expedience, I think it's time that moth-eaten rule was dropped.

'If You Only Knew How It Feels to Grow Old'

HALIFAX (CP) — Elsie and George are two old people living their last years in homes for the elderly, and their loneliness and longing for independence epitomize a way of life that a Halifax doctor opposes.

Elsie says she feels lonely and neglected, watching life slip by from a seat behind the lace-curtained window of an institution in this old port city.

"If you only knew," she said "how it feels to grow old, especially alone. I've been sitting here and watching that street for seven years since my husband passed on, waiting for my turn."

"I don't get out much. There's really nowhere to go and it costs so much to do anything anyway. On what I get for pension . . . most of it goes for this place."

Elsie's 74-year-old hands offered shaky punctuation of her thoughts. She spoke hesitantly and said she was uncertain of herself at this stage of life.

"The first day here was depressing. I tried to talk with some of the people but some were tired; most were ill or didn't have the will power or strength to do anything much.

"Right then . . . I wanted to go back home but I couldn't . . . I didn't own it anymore."

George was a fisherman for nearly 60 years when he decided he had had enough and entered a senior citizens' home in rural Nova Scotia. Now, after three years of inactivity, he said he would like to turn back the clock.

George, now 72, said he was never ill a day in his life as an active fisherman but living in the relative quiet of the home he has picked up influenza each winter and finds a limitless number of aches and pains.

"I s'pose, boy, it's all the time I got on my hands now. Gives me lots of time to think about what ails me. When I was at sea, there was none of that, my son. Too busy to be sick."

Dr. Peter C. Gordon, head of preventive medicine and the clinical research centre at Dahousie University, has studied aging and the effects of community attempts to help the elderly.

He has a strong dislike for institutionalization of the elderly unless such care is essential.

The penchant for placing senior citizens in homes is nothing more than an extension of the old country poorhouse syndrome — a method of removing a problem from the community, he said in an interview.

To the elderly, there is no place like home and "we must change our priorities and opt for programs and services designed to maintain the independence, dignity and self-respect of the elderly through community care.

"When one hears of new institutions being promoted partly on the basis that they will provide employment and otherwise benefit the economy, one can't help but wonder whose interests are really being served by the construction of more and more of these facilities."

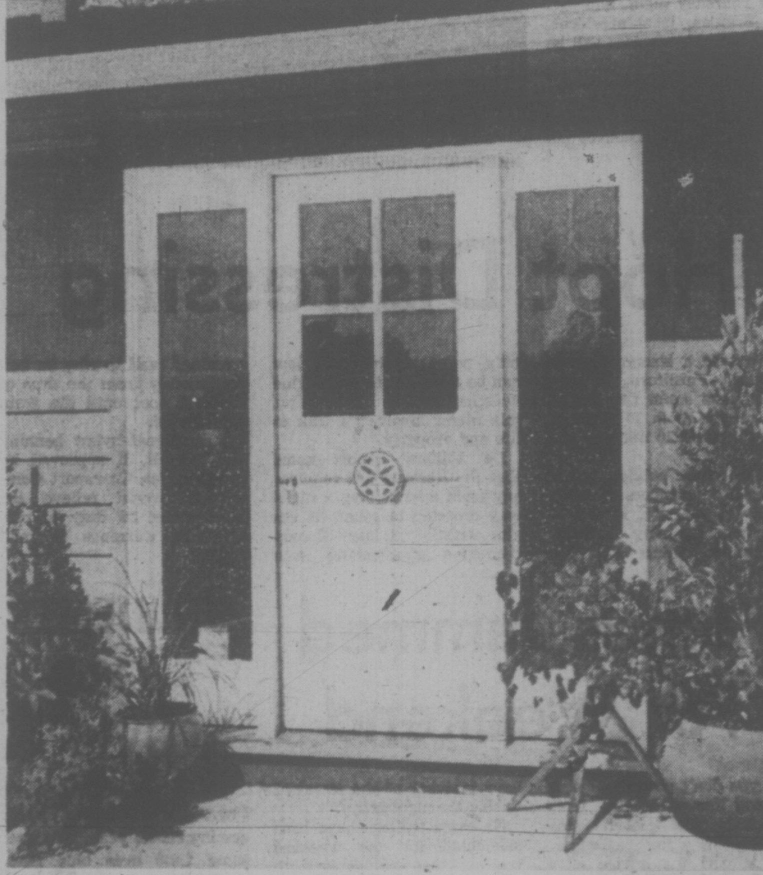
Dr. Gordon said studies have shown that the elderly form the fastest-growing segment of Canadian society at a rate out of proportion to the total growth of the population.

In 1971, there were 1.7 million Canadians aged 65 and over: by 1986 this is projected to reach 2.6 million or 10 per cent of the country's population.

Dr. Gordon said the reaction to the growing population of elderly people is to build more and more institutions and "it is inevitable that this demand for more institutional beds will continue, not because the elderly are increasing in number, but because we still are an institution-oriented society."

He said the answer to the growing numbers of elderly is the provision of high-quality programs and services designed to maintain the independence of the elderly as long as possible and, when institutional care is required, to make it as brief as possible.

"It means the provision of financial, social and other incentives to keep the old folks at home.



Dress-Up Change For Back Door

By PAULINE GRAVES

Do you ever look objectively at any part of your house other than the front? You probably spend time on the entrance, creating a pleasant vista for guests and passers-by, but what about the back! If you live outdoors at all, or entertain informally there, the rear of your house should have as much eye appeal as the front.

Shown here is a remodelled house by owner-designer Carolynn Kinner. The rear was pure utilitarian, a solid door, opening from the service porch onto a concrete stoop. This confined the space so that it looked cramped and uninviting. When a large concrete area replaced the small stoop, the door seemed out of scale, not only with the new outdoor living space, but also with the house.

To give the rear entrance an expansive and welcoming look, a Dutch door with panes in the top half, was installed, and it appears to be twice its width because of the 15-inch wide solid pane windows on each side. This tactic floods the former service porch, now a breakfast area, with light, so that both exterior and interior benefit from the change. Because the rear yard has privacy, there was no need for curtains to detract from the architectural honesty of the door and window design. And although the narrow windows have fixed panes, the upper half of the door can be opened to admit fresh breezes.

ROCKY SHORE serves as background for models Arla Rendle, right, and Junine Oberg who will take part in Social Credit Constituency fashion show and garden party Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. at home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellington, 4071 Hare Street.

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Can there possibly be any medical justification for bowel-conscious North Americans to spend $300 million a year to buy 25,000 varieties of over-the-counter drugs to keep themselves on schedule?

Has Mother Nature goofed so badly that all those overpriced laxatives and stopper-uppers, emetics and antinauseants are really necessary and doing somebody some good?

Doctors have always known the answers to these questions, but now the U.S. Federal Drug Administration has set up a panel of experts to do something about it.

According to their first report, it is not only doubtful that there is any substantial benefit accruing to the bowels of North American men and women from this massive and varied expenditure, but in all likelihood, it is doing a good deal of harm, and certainly only serves to perpetuate the problem it is meant to solve.

In their study of the 101 ingredients which, in various combinations, go into those 25,000 odd laxative, antidiarrheal, emetic and antiemetic over-the-counter preparations, the Federal Drug experts declare that about half of the ingredients should not be there.

They found that although 50 of the ingredients are safe and do more or less what they are credited with, 21 are unsafe or ineffective, and 30 of them need further study before their effectiveness or safety can be commented on one way or the other.

The FDA panel that made the report is one of 17 groups of experts who are studying the hundreds of thousands of ready-made preparations which are marketed in America's drug stores.

The panel was impressed, as observers before them have been, by the welter of misconceptions that seem to plague so many Americans and serve to hook them on nostrums they never needed in the first place.

Among them is the notion that if you don't have a bowel movement on any given day, you must take a laxative to correct the situation. Or, if your bowels move every other day, it is not a normal thing and you should treat yourself with laxatives.

Since the big problem is the use of laxatives, perhaps it would be in order to repeat a few principles in the management of the bowels.

1. Give your bowel a chance to move by itself at a specified period, every day. Be patient. It will find its own rhythm and will take better care of its duty than you will.

2. Your diet should include plenty of roughage (actually smoothage) in the form of vegetables cooked and raw, fruit and fluids. Bran is widely recommended, even by the experts who used to favor bland diets for bowel problems.

Fish Industry Blamed for Own Sales Lag

CAVEAT EMPTOR

By LYNNE GORDON

The high price of beef, the recent tainted meat scandal, our renewed interest in nutrition and even the energy crisis has pushed up sales of fish — particularly frozen fish. But in spite of that, fish comsumption still lags behind that of beef.

A large part of the blame rests squarely on the shoulders of representatives of the fish industry. For a long time, not enough solid, accurate information was available to help the consumer learn how to buy, store and cook perishable fish.

As a result, many of the separable factions in the fishing industry have decided to pool their resources, stop infighting and get together in an all out effort to educate the consumer. The recently formed North Atlantic Seafood Association (NASA) is a group of producers and processors from Canada, Norway, Iceland and Denmark. They provide the Canadian market with cod, ocean perch, flounder, pollock, sole, haddock and other varieties from the North Atlantic. NASA is also supported by Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces.

A controversy has always revolved around the description "fresh fish." Ask someone if the fish is fresh and you get a variety of answers. Fresh can mean "just caught," "fresh frozen" and in the past, it could describe frozen fish that was thawed to sell as fresh.

Now retailers have to label thawed-out fish with a sign explaining "this fish has been previously frozen."

Some industry spokesmen feel that frozen fish is fresher than unfrozen. They point out that processing is done close to the source of supply and fish are usually quick frozen the day of the catch. Sometimes fresh fish can travel two or three days before it reaches the retail outlet.

The biggest problem has been the retailer. The frozen fish may get down the line in excellent condition and then be left standing at the retail level until it is stored in the refrigerated case.

Since frozen food handlers are the lowest on the totem pole, they are usually the least trained and the least familiar with handling problems. This is number one priorit on the NASA schedule to place more emphasis on storage, care and handling at the retail level.

But consumers also have to be alerted. Frozen fish should be bought last and taken home immediately. If frozen fish is thawed and re-frozen, it does deteriorate. It may not be dangerous but is loses moisture, quality and flavor.

Look for solid frozen packages and the absence of frost and ice crystals when the package is opened. The fish should be firm and glossy with no evidence of drying out, discoloration or fading of flesh.

Frozen fish SHOULD NOT be re-frozen. It can be stored in the freezer compartment of your refrigerator in the original moisture-vapor proof package. But it should be used as soon as possible and not kept more than two or three weeks. It can be stored longer in a regular freezer, IF the temperature doesn't fluctuate too much.

There may be nothing mysterious about cooking fish but a hot controversy has raged for years around the proper method.

For a long time, consumers were advised that all they had to do was pop frozen fish in the oven to cook — no fuss, no bother.

Now Canadian representatives insist that this is wrong. They say if the fish is frozen solid, the consumer tends to cook it to death, like meat, at 350 degrees. Fish should be cooked at a high temperature, about 450 degrees, and for a minimum amount of time.

If the fish is frozen, the high heat would overcook the outside and not reach the centre. It's suggested that the fish be thawed for about a half hour, until it's bendable and still has ice crystals. Don't thaw out completely as there will be a terrific loss of natural juices. One hint to retain the natural juices is dip the fish into a bath of lemon juice and then in flour before you do anything with it.

Be sure the fish is placed in the middle rack of the oven for baking.

A good rule of thumb for cooking is to give it 10 minutes for every inch of thickness. That goes for a thin fillet as well as a whole stuffed fish, just measure the thickest part.

For some cooking procedures, such as frying or stuffing, you will have to thaw the fish completely but NEVER TO ROOM TEMPERATURE. Thaw at refrigerator temperature.

Frozen fish has a lot going for it. It represents an economical use of protein to produce protein, since it grows in its natural environment utilizing natural food sources. Fish has less total fat, less saturated fat, less cholestrol and is a good source of minerals and fat, more polyunsaturated vitamins.

Fish can be cooked in many ways — baked, broiled, barbecued, poached, steamed, pan fried or deep fried . . . and it's 85-95 per cent digestible. It's easy on your stomach, your budget and your health.

Daily Activity Goal Of School Program

CALGARY (CP) — The most exercise that many children get these days is flicking the channel button on their television sets.

This fall, separate schools in Calgary plan a physical education program that will give these television-watching, apartment-dwelling children a lot more exercise than they get walking over to the refrigerator during commercial breaks.

The program will be the first in Canada to offer daily physical education co-ordinated from kindergarten through Grade 12 and integrated with other subjects.

Instead of aiming to turn out athletes, the program will try to teach students a positive attitude towards fitness, stressing daily activity and the development of life-long skills.

The department of education only requires elementary students to spend a minimum of one hour a week on physical education—including the time spent on health and guidance. At the junior high level, the required minimum is 75 minutes a week.

"That's not enough," said LeRoy Pelletier, supervisor of physical education for the Roman Catholic system. He said that recent studies in France show that children exposed to daily physical education have better academic performance, are less susceptible to stress, and mature more quickly.

He said that most kids now aren't given a chance to become activity-oriented.

"There's no place for apartment children to do vigorous things. They play in the halls. They have no chance to explore body movement," he said.

"Where can a kid learn what it feels like to hang in an upside down position? Kids used to be able to play in trees and swings in the back yard and jump over fances."

Work began on the program three years ago when teachers began noticing deficiencies in basic physical skills, particularly among younger pupils.

"In the past physical education has been directed to the development of sports skills only, and that should come later," Pelletier said.

"It's useless going to a tennis court until you can hit the ball."

Students will learn basic movements and play modified, lead-up games practising these movements. Gradually they will advance to the full-scale games as they are known to adults.

A basic curriculum will include fitness, leadership skills, personal motor skills, games and dance — with emphasis on the last three.

Physical education will be linked with such subjects as reading (moving the body to illustrate new words or letters), arithmetic (scoring or dividing into groups to convey the idea of fraction), and art (hikes which include sketching).

Good, Old-Fashioned Plumber,s Helper

A good, old-fashioned plumber's helper will generally unplug minor drain stoppages . . . but ever so often a really heroic jam-up proves too much for the plunger on a stick. What to do? Cal in a professional for $50 or $100? Maybe . . . but before you do, try moving that congestion out of the pipes with the homemade rig shown here.

Cut the valve stem (centred on a six-inch-diameter circle of rubber) from an old automobile inner tube. Attach a hand pump, wet the rubber and press the assembly firmly over the troublesome drain while someone else operates the pump. A few solid strokes should clear all but the most tightly wedged stoppages.

Study Links Depression, Heart Ills

TORONTO (CP) — Men prone to periods of depression may also be prone to heart attacks, a study by Toronto doctors has found.

The study, published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, was done by Dr. Terry Kavanagh of the Toronto Rehabilitaiton Centre and Dr. Roy Shepherd of the University of Toronto's school of hygiene.

The study involved 96 heart-attack victims who attended an exercise program at the Toronto Rehabilitation Centre.

The doctors said that in sme instances the degree of depression was "surprising" and "if encountered in normal population would be sufficient to demand psychiatric referral."

They concluded that depression may put a person under more-than-normal stress, thus increasing the possibility of heart attack.

J. A. Tusk, a psychologist who conducted personality tests, found that 38 of the 96 men were not depressed before their heart attacks. But he said men in this group are driving, ambitious individuals

20M Americans Suffer Mentally

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Institute of Mental Health committee reports "no less than 10 per cent of the United States population, or roughly 20 million people, suffer from some form of mental illness" despite $1 billion worth of federal research over the last 25 years.

Only one-seventh of those hwo are mentally ill actually receive psychiatric care, the report said.

The committee, which spent almost three years studying progress in mental health research and recommending new areas for investigation, said mental illness costs at least $21 billion in lost earnigns and treatment expenses.

"This estimate may well be low," the report said. "Other estimates put the economic cost of alcoholism alone at $15 billion annually, and the annual cost of drug abuse at $10 billion."

Few Kindergarten Opponents

NEW YORK (NYT) — After decades of expansion into more than 70 per cent of the United States' school systems, kindergarten is one of the few areas of education that has many champions and almost no opponents.

While many of the traditional kindergarten activities — story-telling, picture-painting and "let's pretend" games, for example — seem to laymen to be mere play, educators stress that they are carefully structured experiences, with concepts that will later be presented to the child in the abstract.

"If a child plays with a train, or pretends he's a train, then when he reads the word 'train' it has meaning for him," said Bernice Fleiss, a professor of graduate education at Hunter College. "A child lacking that first-hand experience will take longer to read."

Kindergarten's historical function as a "socialization" setting, providing the first real group experience outside the family, is assumed by some to be supplanted these days by the growing presence of nursery schools, Head Start and day-care programs for the even younger child.

Not so, according to Dr. Fleiss. In the other programs, they have been in small groups of usually 15 children with two teachers, instead of the average 30 children to one teacher in kindergarten.

The latter experience, she said, gives them a much more realistic entry into their public-school career.

Another early-childhood specialist who has written widely on the subject added that kindergarten's development of "social maturity" was even more important in an environment as intensely urbanized as New York, where young children can find themselves isolated from others their age.

"Most five-year-olds do not have the opportunity to be party of a group, and especially the urban child, living in high-rise apartments, said Dorothy Cohen, a professor at the Bank Street College of Education.

"Add the influence of television, and the give and take among children is lost." This interaction is "basic experience for being a member of a group in the first grade, when he has to learn to read," she added.

BEGGAR 'SAVED' FROM SAVINGS

CHICAGO (AP) — Four months ago, when police tried to arrest Robert Friedman for begging for dimes in front of a downtown bus station, he pleaded:

"Don't take me in. I'm not broke. I didn't know this was a crime." And he opened a brief case that contained $24,087 in small bills.

A few days later, he was committed to a mental institution by a judge who said he was protecting Friedman from thugs who might be after his money.

Today, Friedman, 43, has seen half his life savings eaten away by doctors' bills for treatment ordered by the court and the $800-a-month fee the state charges to keep him at the mental facility he fought to avoid.

He ever was ordered to pay the fees for the lawyer who argued that he be committed.

Lawyer Edward Benett, acting for Friedman for no fee, said he fears the case is a "frighteningly common" one of persons ordered to spend the rest of their lives unheard from because they are eccentric, though sane.

He said it goes beyond a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision which held that mental patients cannot be committed involuntarily without treatment if they pose no threat to society. Benett says that in Friedman's case the treatment itself may be illegal.

"He was committed on the possibility he would be mugged, beaten and robbed and, instead, he's locked up, filled with drugs and his money is taken gradually instead of in one clean sweep."

Hiss Sees No Evidence In Microfilm

NEW YORK — Alger Hiss, whose trial projected Richard Nixon into the national spotlight 25 years ago, says there is nothing in the notorious "Pumpkin Papers" that proves he was a Russian spy.

In 1950, on the basis of two of five rolls of microfilm that reproduce those papers, Hiss was convicted of perjury for stating he never gave the film to Whittaker Chambers, an editor at Time magazine and an admitted Soviet spy.

The papers got their name from Chambers' contention he hid the documents in a hollowed-out pumpkin on Chambers' Maryland farm after he got them from Hiss.

Hiss, a former official with the U.S. state department and now a New York salesman, began a campaign 25 years after his conviction to get a look at the tapes to clear his name. With the help of the National Emergency Civil Liberties Foundation, Hiss finally got that look.

On Thursday, for the first time, Hiss examined the film that then Rep. Richard M. Nixon used to send him to jail for 44 months.

He examined the microfilm at the U.S. attorney's office in Manhattan and told reporters, "They were certainly useless for espionage purposes."

Hiss said the information contained in the "Pumpkin Papers" related to nothing more crucial to national security than fire extinguishers, life rafts and fuel system valves.

Time Running Out In Sailing Attempt

SOMERSET, Mass. (UPI) — Natalie Chadburn refuses to believe time might be running oct for her husband.

It has been 115 days since Allan Chadburn, 29, set out alone in an odd-looking, miniature sailboat to cross 3,000 miles of the Atlantic from Massachusetts to Porto de Leixoes, Portugal.

His intent was to set a record by sailing the smallest craft ever — his eight-foot sailboat The Dream — across the Atlantic.

Chadburn estimated it would take him a minimum of 60 days to make the crossing and a maximum of 120. He stuffed a 120-day supply of food and a radio into the sailboat, leaving barely enough room for his 226-pound, six-foot frame.

The only confirmed sighting of Chadburn was by a New Bedford fishing trawler about 100 miles out and one week from the day he slowly drifted away from Nauset harbor in East Orleans, Mass.

It took Chadburn fi veyears to construct The Dream. The fibreglas craft, which resembles a small submarine, was approved as seaworthy by the U.S. coast guard.

Before leaving he was given a four-hour physical examination and declared in excellent health. The doctor also spent hours with Chadburn, teaching him to care for his body, including performing simple operations, such as setting a fracture.

Colony Doesn't Want Freedom

By GREG CHAMBERLAIN

The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — Britain has run into new difficulties in efforts to get rid of its largest remaining colony. The 130,000 inhabitants of Belize (British Honduras) are again fearing they will awake one morning soon to find troops from neighboring Guatemala in the streets, and that Guatemala's president, General Kjel Laugerud has replaced Queen Elizabeth as their head of state.

The latest round of talks over Guatemala's 150-year claim to the territory collapsed earlier this month after only one day. Britain rejected a Guatemalan compromise proposal to slice the colony, 8,900 square miles, in half, with Guatemala annexing the southern portion.

The Guatemalans, spurred by reports of oil in Belize, have begun a new bout of sabre-rattling and international lobbying. Britain is expected to accuse Guatemala at the UN General Assembly in September of preventing Belize from attaining the independence Britain says she can have whenever she likes.

Apart from this show of protection, there is precious little to comfort the Belizeans, who are a mixture of Spanish-speaking Latins and Indians and English-speaking Africans.

A tightening of border controls and jamming of Radio Belize in country areas has been added recently to the familiar strident anti-British jingoism of Guatemala's press and the declarations of its diplomats on the Belize question.

Guatemala continues to hold without trial a Belizean tanker captain, Huber Eiley and three of his crew, who were arrested four months ago when their ship sank and her cargo of fuel oil fouled the coast of Guatemala. Guatemala is said to be seeking about $100 million in compensation.

Countrywide anti-Guatemalan demonstrations have been staged by the increasingly powerful opposition parties in the colony. The Guatemalan Consulate in Belize City has been stoned.

The international odyssey of secret diplomacy undertaken by Belizean Premier George Price over the past seven years to obtain a defence guarantee against a post-independence Guatemalan invasion has been fruitless.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson recently ruled out a British defence guarantee, and the British ambassador to Mexico even hinted that Belize might like to be annexed by Guatemala. Canada and the United States have also turned a deaf ear.

Price also has failed to make a public dent in the solid sympathy for Guatemala by the rest of Central America. Venezuela has declared its support for Guatemala's right-wing rulers.

The only plus recently has been the formal renunciation earlier this month of the long-standing but inactive claim to Belize by President Luis Echeverria of Mexico.

Ironically, in spite of his tireless efforts, there is diminishing confidence at home in Price, whose long-entrenched Peoples United Party came within 17 votes of losing its parliamentary majority at last October's elections.

In spite of the premier's denials, the conservative opposition accuses him of being "soft" on Guatemala and alleged that he is prepared to give away part of southern Belize in exchange for a "make-believe settlement" and independence.

Price has carefully kept the opposition out of negotiations with Guatemala. The opposition leader, Dean Lindo, is campaigning against independence "for the time being" or at least before any settlement is reached with Guatemala.

He wants a referendum or new elections after a settlement and has been to Britain to drum up support. Price, however, with his support faltering, has predictably ignored this demand.

Arthritis Cure Claim 'Suspect'

TORONTO (CP) — Claims that a British physician has found the cause of arthritis and its cure are "highly suspect" and should not be allowed to raise false hopes among arthritis sufferers, the medical director of the Arthritis Foundation says.

Dr. Hugh Smythe, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, said the same doctor 11 years ago said he had found cancer's cause and cure, but this subsequently was rejected by other scientists.

Dr. Smythe spoke at a news conference called because "literally thousands" of arthritic patients have sought out Toronto physicians for the so-called cure, he said.

News reports last week from England said that Dr. Roger Wyburn-Mason of London had reported the cause of rheumatoid arthritis to be a protozoa parasite. Dr. Wyburn-Mason said a drug which combats parasite infections could stop the pain, swelling and inflammation of arthritis.

'Fatal' Radiation Doses Possible Leukemia Cure

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A new hope for curing leukemia and possibly other forms of cancer by bombarding patients with normally fatal doses of radiation was revealed Thursday by medical researchers of the University of California medical centre.

Dr. Robert Gale, assistant professor of medicine at the centre, said the radiation doses would normally kill the patient by destroying bone marrow, but the patient was saved by being given bone marrow transplants.

"The transplanted bone marrow multiplies in the bones and serves as a permanent source of blood cells for the remainder of the patient's life," he said.

He said that of the 12 gravely ill leukemia patients treated at the hospital with both massive radiation and chemotherapy drugs, 11 now are alive and free of the disease. Leukemia had recurred in the 12th patient.

"We don't know whether we have merely eradicated the disease for some time or whether this is a cure," Gale said. "We are just going to have to keep watching these patients closely."

Dr. John Fahey, professor of microbiology at the centre, said: "We are investigating how this method can be extended to other forms of tumor."

Formal inspection is part of the ceremony as R-Adm. Collier, insert, takes command

Naval Muscle's Need Stressed

The muscle of a strong navy is needed to back up Canada's maritime claims, Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier said Thursday.

Taking over as Commander Maritime Command Pacific in a colorful ceremony at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, Collier told his men:

"The maritime approaches are Canada's first line of defence," adding that the Pacific command's assignment was "unique in Canada and growing in responsibility."

Collier said one of the most contentious times at the Law of the Sea Conference was the bid of coastal countries to extend jurisdiction over their marine resources. Canada is seeking to extend limits to 200 miles and far enough to control the resources on the continental shelf off both coasts.

To make such legislation stick, Collier said the navy bears the responsibility of being strong enough to enforce the law.

He said it would be dangerous to ignore the continued buildup of Soviet forces.

Collier takes over from Rear-Admiral R. J. Pickford, who is retiring after 35 years in the navy.

In his farewell speech to his men, Pickford commended them on the number of convictions for violations by foreign fishing vessels that had been made possible through surveillance by ships and aircraft under his command.

"The word is out to foreign fishermen," he said.

He praised the crew of the destroyer HMCS Mackenzie for being the first Canadian ship in peace time to seize a foreign vessel (which was smuggling in drugs) and put a naval prize crew aboard.

He said the Mackenzie exploit was carried out "in foul weather and they (the Mackenzie) were expecting armed opposition".

Collier is a Kamloops man and has spent several tours of duty on this coast.

A graduate of Royal Roads Naval College, Collier was first appointed to HMCS Naden in 1949, becoming a member of the cruiser HMCS Ontario's ship's company later that year.

He served aboard HMCS Cayuga during the Korean campaign, earning the Distinguished Service Cross.

He became training commander at Naden in March 1957 and executive officer of HMCS Venture, Esquimalt's former junior officer training school in 1958. In 1960 he took over command of the Esquimalt-based destroyer HMCS Skeena.

He was promoted to his present rank on Oct. 1, 1974 and became chief of maritime operations at national headquarters in Ottawa on Nov. 12 of that year.

Fired Official Sues ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former Insurance Corp. of B.C. vice-president Doug Scrivener has filed a writ against the corporation suing for wrongful dismissal.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan fired Scrivener from his position of vice-president of claims in June after Strachan claimed Scrivener lied to him about outside business interests.

R. H. Guile, lawyer for Scrivener, alleges in a statement of claim that Scrivener forwarded information to Strachan's executive assistant about his holdings in the Saskatchewan insurance adjusting firm, D. A. Scrivener Co. Ltd.

Scrivener claims there was no conflict of interest in retaining shares in the Saskatchewan company as control of that company has passed to former employees through a management contract.

He claims Strachan was not truthful in claiming he (Scrivener) lied about the holdings and therefore the dismissal was without basis.

Before The Judge

The two-day preliminary hearing of a charge of attempted murder against James Ronald Page was unexpectly adjourned in Victoria provincial court Thursday when two key prosecution witnesses failed to appear.

An order prohibiting publication of evidence was issued by Judge William Ostler at the start of the preliminary hearing Wednesday at the request of defence lawyer Gordon Hayes of Vancouver.

Page was charge May 15 following a shooting incident earlier that day in which Vancouver resident Philip Brennan, 29, suffered a single wound.

A 25-year-old Calgary man who pleaded guilty to shoplifting $8.94 worth of groceries from Quonley's market, 1628 Government, early Thursday, was sentenced to one month in jail.

Legal aid duty counsel Bruce McConnan told the court Joseph James Severin was "very intoxicated" at the time of the theft and "didn't know what he was doing."

But Ostler said Severin must have had some idea, especially in view of "the way he hid the items throughout his clothing."

Prosecutor Nick Lang said police saw a Quonley em ployee chasing Severin at 2:45 a.m. Thursday. Police captured Severin on Government at Harold.

They found one poundof butter down one sleeve of his shirt, a pound of ground beef down the other sleeve, sirloin steak down the front of his pants, a package of tampons in one pocket of his pants, a package of mini pizzas in the other pant pocket and two plums in his coat pocket.

A one-month jail term was imposed on Detroit resident Bartley John Power, 18, who pleaded guilty to lodgings by fraud at the Chateau Victoria, 740 Burdette, Wednesday.

Lang said Powers had used a credit card to obtain lodgings, but the manager became suspicious and called police. Power admitted to police the card was stolen.

Power told Ostler he had been deported from Canada last February after convictions for a similar offence and for mischief, and had re-entered Canada without authority.

Serviceman Cashiered As Vandal

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — A young serviceman was dismissed from the Canadian Forces and sentenced to one year in prison Thursday after being convicted on two charges of wilfully damaging a British military aircraft.

Pvt. Clifford Collins, a 20-year-old native of Gander, Nfld., was sentenced following a three-day court martial here.

Collins was charged with throwing sand into an engine of a Nimrod aircraft, a sophisticated sub-hunting jet used by the Royal Air Force. He was also charged with breaking an antenna on the aircraft.

The offence occurred May 23 at the Canadian Forces Base here.

Also charged with wilful damage to the same aircraft is Pvt. Daniel W. Shears of the Summerside base. His court-martial is scheduled to begin Aug. 5.

Langford Petitions On Bikers

More than 150 Langford residents have signed a petition to be delivered to the provincial government, RCMP and other agencies today, demanding action against trail bike riders harassing the neighborhood.

Staff Sergeant Ted Foster of the RCMP's Colwood detachment says numerous complaints, especially from Leigh Road-Glen Lake residents, is forcing the detachment's hand.

Reluctant as the detachment is to interfere in neighborhood affairs, Foster said he and his men are prepared to prosecute owners of bikes without mufflers or licences.

Neil Knowlton, who lives on the lake, is one of those who have complained "many, many times to the Mounties" about cyclists riding without mufflers or licences behind Glen Lake school and on the roads, at high speed.

Knowlton says the problem is compounded by the fact the riders are using private property owned by B.C. Hydro, CP Rail and others.

He is skeptical of the RCMP's ability to enforce the law.

"The problem is no particular property owner is levelling any charges," Knowlton said. "One of the most troublesome areas belongs to the Glen Lake school board. They put up signs on the footpath that's being used by bikes and the police were supposed to be able to prosecute. I don't think the police are doing a great deal in that direction. We still see cars and bikes there. Bikes are still giving people a hard time on the footpath."

He said the patrol was ineffective because bike riders knew that the patrol car couldn't reach the area they use via Leigh Road. If the area was approached by Glen Lake, Knowlton added, the bike riders could elude the RCMP by dashing into the bush.

The provincial government's Municipal Act permits municipalities to prosecute for excessive noise by creating noise bylaws. Langford, being an unorganized area, comes under the Capital Regional District, which has no such authority.

Jim Campbell, CRD board chairman, will be one of the recipients of the Langford residents' petition.

Knowlton said he and the other residents welcomed an offer made by Vincent Capri, director of the Langford Boys' and Girls' Club, to spearhead a drive to find a suitable site for the trail bike riders and set up cycle instruction.

Trail around Beechey Head holds many scenic picnic spots

Beechey Head Shore Trail Now Open to Hikers

A new section of the shoreline of the Capital Regional District East Sooke Park is accessible to walkers with the completion last week of a two and a half mile waterfront trail to Beechey Head, one of the landmarks of the park

The trail starts at the end of the Aylard farm meadows in the park and skirts some rocky promotories. There are some excellent picnic sites on the way.

The footpath joins up with the main trail and it is now possible to walk the entire length of the park's waterfront—a distance of 4½-miles.

Beechey Head was named by Royal Navy Capt. Henry Kellett after Capt. Frederick William Beechey, an outstanding RN navigator and geographer who explored the Arctic in the mid-19th century.

Kellett's men were probably the first westerners to walk around Beechey Head in 1845. He was in command of the Herald and surveyed parts of the Pacific Northwest coast, as well as the harbors of Victoria, Esquimalt and Sooke.

Fit to be Tried

Leo Flemming Bedford, of Ganges, has been found fit to stand trial following a three-week psychiatric assessment at Riverview hospital.

Bedford, 22, was charged with murdering his father at their Kings Lane home in Ganges "on or about June 27."

Police said a body was found stored in makeshift coffin in the root cellar of the home.

Bedford was remanded in Victoria provincial court today to Tuesday for election of trial method and plea.

Lauk, Steel Firm Make Up

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk met Thursday with R. J. Fricker, executive vice-president of Dominion Bridge, and said a joint statement on the company's future in the lower mainland will be made within 10 days.

Lauk described the meeting as "very amicable and positive" following a fiery exchange between the two in the news media two months ago.

At that time, Fricker announced the closure of Dominion's fabricating operations in Burnaby, with the loss of 300 jobs. He said the company still intended to supply the province with fabricated steel from its Alberta plants.

Lauk reacted angrily to the announcement and said he would try to squeeze Dominion out of the market by giving special support to other B.C. fabricators.

"I hope we never see them again," said Lauk.

Fricker called the minister's statements irrational and bizarre.

But both men agreed Thursday's meeting cleared up "a lot of misunderstanding" although they would not reveal what kind of announcement will be made.

Dominion will definitely be moving out of the Burnaby plant next year, said Fricker, because the buildings and property were sold last year to B.C. Hydro.

But the company has other operations in the province and plans a warehouse distribution centre, to be built on Annacis Island and supply customers with fabricated steel from other company plants.

Lauk said the B.C. Development Corporation is still looking at financial aid for other provincial fabricating firms and it appears the BCDC may be involved with the upcoming joint announcement.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

While at a national tournament in Chicago a few years ago, Larry Weiss, the official American Contract Bridge League photographer, had to make a long distance call to New York. He dialed the operator at the hotel in which he was staying, and gave her the number he was calling. He then added: "I want the call charged to my Los Angeles residence. The number is registered to Larry Weiss, which is me." He then gave her his L. A. number.

After a few seconds, the operator came in: "Please repeat the number, sir. I was so bemused by your 'which is me' (instead of the grammatically correct 'which is I') that I didn't pay attention to the number."

On the matter of not paying attention to the predominant situation at hand, today's deal comes to mind. East-West vulnerable. South deals.

♣ K 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Dummy's queen of spades was played on West's opening spade lead, which East captured with the ace. East returned the queen of clubs, and the defenders promptly cashed three club tricks, to hand declarer a one-trick set.

It should have been apparent to declarer that East possessed the spade ace, for surely West, with some A-J-x combination, wouldn't be leading the jack at trick one; and that the predominant issue at hand was not to create an immediate spade trick, but to prevent East from returning a club through South's king. On the spade jack, dummy's four-spot should have been played.

With the spade jack winning, West would now be on led at trick two, and declarer would be home safely. If West played back another spade, the board queen would be covered by East's ace. South would ruff this lead, and after drawing trumps, he would discard one of his losing clubs on the now-high king of spades.

And if West led any other suit at trick two, the result would be the same. After drawing trumps (ending up in dummy), the queen of spades would be led. East's ace would now be ambushed; and, once again, a spade winner would be created in dummy, on which south would subsequently discard one of his losing clubs.

Seahawks Enjoy Early Support

SEATTLE (AP) — An estimated 13,000 applications for season tickets have been received by Seattle Seahawks for their inaugural National Football League season in 1976. Ticket manager Gordy Green said the office received 3100 envelopes on the first day, and he expects each order to average about four tickets, bringing the total to more than 12,000.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Saturday, Aug. 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Settle differences within family circle. Relative who made "wild claims" now is embarrassed. Provide face-saving device. If mature, you improve prospects for greater security. Gift of luxury item is in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Expenditures — of money and energy — are now seriously considered. You will grow up, see as is, determine what is of value and what should be discarded. Friend with money questions could test your patience and loyalty.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your position is stronger than might be apparent. Opposition is nebulous and temporary. See difference between hard news and illusion. Don't affix signature to any document without thorough understanding. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much that occurs is apt to be subdued. Tendency is to ask for too much, too quickly. Key is to finish one phase of activity at a time. Aries, Libra persons are in picture. Closed-door consultation is on agenda.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Direct involvement is featured. It is sink or swim, with no halfway. Creative resources come to fore; you imprint your own style. Your desire is fulfilled, despite false start. Cash flow is due to be restored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You're going to advance with one who aided and taught you in past. Your intuition works overtime. Have faith in your own "inner voice." Aquarius, Leo persons could figure prominently. Contract could settle question concerning property.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Message gets through despite delay. Know it and continue "pleasure plans." You need respite from daily grind. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals are likely to be in picture. Travel is featured and so is social event.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid basing actions solely on impulse. Give logic equal time — avoid needless extravagance. Verify details. Double-check. Revise and remodel. Review basics. Aquarius, Leo and another Scorpio could be in picture. Remember that "hard writing makes easy reading." You'll comprehend!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Plenty of opportunities now to communicate, to talk, decide, to sense signals, to decide who is best for you, and what you should do in lieu of committing yourself to definite course of action. Gemini, Virgo and another Sagittarian figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adjustment, light touch and diplomacy should be featured. Taurus, Libra persons figure in picture. You learn what is happening behind the scenes. A relative with a secret wants to confide in you. Be receptive but know that you have a life of your own to live.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See beyond the immediate; perceive your potential. Remember past resolutions. You will get proverbial "second chance." Friend who promises much may not be able to deliver. Know it and rely on yourself. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Practical affairs, basic issues dominate. You handle added responsibility. You commit yourself to a relationship — or business. One close to home will "draw the line." You either stay or leave, no middle ground.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of "fire and sensitivity." Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. December will be outstanding — March was one of your most significant months of 1975. You have digestive problems. You are loyal and have great desire for security. If single, this could be your marriage year. Travel is featured, whether married or single.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Harry drew two cards from the little pile on the table, and turned them face up. "Two reds," he declared. "But you don't have a complete deck here."

"I know, but it's the same for both of us. We do have more than half the deck, and no jokers," replied Ted. "As a matter of fact the odds were only 2 to 1 against you getting reds."

He knew what cards were missing. What would the odds have been against Harry drawing two blacks instead?

9 IN MEMORIAM

BLANDFORD—Weep, Oh willow,
Creep or cry,
Thy true soul, shall never die,
Once a rich man, once a poor,
Who knows what may lie in store,
Close to land, yet far from sea,
So uncertain of Humanity.
Oh! Tell me young one, what lies ahead,
I want my riches, before I'm dead.
Clean and Happy, yes my friend,
Then you will see, there is no end,
Slow the mountains, fast the stream,
It's in reverse, man's whole life's dream.
Written by Terry Wayne Blandford, March, 1974.

BLANDFORD—In loving memory of Terry Wayne, who passed away, August 1st, 1974.
Dear Terry you are not forgotten,
Though on the earth you are no more,
Still in memory, you are with me,
As you always were before.
Love Mother.

BLANDFORD—Thy day has come, not gone;
Thy sun has risen, not set.
Thy life is now beyond,
The reach of death or change,
Not ended—but begun
O noble soul!
O gentle heart!
Farewell till we meet again.
—The Family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Begonias Best in Damp Shade Spots

Perhaps because we seek the shady places in parks or gardens during sunny weather, we notice the plants which flower there or simply thrive with this condition.

If observant, we notice too, those which seem to do well in dry shade as opposed to damp shade; and which are in apparently rather hard soil and those enjoying a loose leafy compost deposited by leaf-losing shrubs or trees in the area.

In fairly damp shade even under trees where water can be given, the rich colors of tuberous begonias are a welcome sight and for brilliance with these conditions begonias are the best choice.

Where the soil is dry near the surface and large shrubs or trees take the moisture down below we need to look for plants to give summer interest even though there is a lack of bright flowers.

The family of hostas (the old name was funkia) does a good job though every book states that a rich moist soil is wanted. Hostas are however very adaptable, shade is not a necessity if ample moisture is supplied to the roots all summer. In dry shade, hostas grow and flower well with a minimum of watering.

The leaf color range gives blue-grey, dark green, yellow with green edges, or green mottled with yellow. Flowers are white bells or white tinged with mauve, not spectacular but pleasant enough. Some varieties are said to have fragrance, but this I have not come across. Small plants soon grow into large plants but never become a problem for they go on for 10 years or more without needing division.

Another ornamental perennial, for good effect in shade is Pulmonaria angustifolia (Lungwort or Bethlehem-sage) or P. saccharata. The pretty little flowers like blue forget-me-nots come in earliest spring but the leaves increase in size and beauty as summer advances.

In a shady place, their dark green with silver markings are handsome. Pulmonaria too does well in fairly dry shade.

The astilbes are feathery, bloomed perennials belonging to the spiraea family. In fact, they were grown 40 and 50 years ago in pots as the "florist's spiraea" for gift house plants in cold climates.

Here on the coast they thrive outdoors, needing fairly moist shade, though growing well enough in sun if the soil is loaded with leaf mould and other humus to hold a constant supply of summer moisture.

Foliage is feathery and in varying shades of green and bronze according to flower color which ranges from pure white to dark red. Some varieties are 15 inches tall while others reach three feet.

The least likely plants to give color to a shady summer border are some varieities of Day-lily, Hemerocallis, of which dozens of colors have been bred and introduced. This year a few have been tried in dappled light and shade with the result that the effect is delightful. The flowers gleam in the subdued light, and last well into the evening instead of getting tired around four in the afternoon.

Clear yellow varieties and fulvous crimson shades do very well, effectively lighting up darker green backgrounds.

Some nurseries and garden centres have been growing perennials again lately, so that seeking these plants should not be too difficult in later summer and fall when most can be planted.

Forty-five volunteers from the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will convey the greetings for Calgary's 100th birthday over the 632 miles. All the runners are from Calgary. First runner, Pte. William Yoen, received the scroll from Pollen this morning.

Fish Firms Request Arbitrator

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Fisheries Association of B.C., representing fish-packing companies on the west coast, asked Thursday that the provincial government set up an arbitration for the companies' dispute with 7,000 striking members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

In a message sent by telegram to Premier Dave Barrett, Labor Minister Bill King and Jack Radford, minister of recreation and conservation, the association said it has withdrawn offers made earlier and rejected by the union.

The association asked the government to require the resumption of the salmon fishery Sunday and to arbitrate both the minimum prices and employee agreements.

The UFAWU, representing fishermen, tendermen and shoreworkers at the 14 major fish packers on the coast, went on strike Monday. Wednesday it announced that its membership had rejected the companies' offer by 81 per cent.

The association said: "Losses to date to all concerned have been heavy, the Skeena runs are not being harvested and the Americans are 700,000 fish ahead of the Canadians on the Fraser River sockeye fishery."

If the strike continues "the prospects are for the loss of the entire salmon season," said the association.

The union has maintained that the loss would primarily be borne by the fishing companies since the union already has begun to sell its catch to the public at the rate of $6 per dressed sockeye with heads on and $3 a fish for smaller pinks.

At least 10,500 fish were sold by the union Wednesday at Richmond and Delta. The sale is to resume next week.

The Native Brotherhood of B.C. announced Thursday that it would begin its strike against fisheries association members Monday.

Lonnie Hindle, brotherhood spokesman, said native Indian fishermen have voted 71.2 per cent aainst accepting the latest price and wage offers from the companies.

The proposed price rejected by the fishermen would have given them 60 cents a pound for sockeye this year and 63 cents next year. Last year's price was 52 cents, and the UFAWU has asked for 80 cents a pound.

Shoreworkers were offered a wage increase of $1 an hour for 1975 and an additional 75 cents in 1976. Their most recent request was for a one-year increase of $2 an hour.

Jerry Spitz, association negotiator, said Thursday the companies considered their offer a final one and there were no plans for further meetings with either the brotherhood or the UFAWU.

"We have never had a strike this far into the peak runs before," said Spitz.

Hindle of the bortherhood said Indian fishermen will sell fish to the public today at Richmond, Nanaimo and Qualicum on Vancouver Island, and at Prince Rupert.

He said all fish will be weighed and then sold, dressed, for $1 a pound. He added that the brotherhood has more than 10,000 fish available for sale.

In a news release Thursday, the brotherhood said it has appealed to the UFAWU membership to end "provocation" or risk racial violence in the jurisdictional dispute between the two groups of fishermen. Each side has claimed it is threatened with destruction by the other.

Mayor's Fund Shuffle Detailed in Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — The judicial inquiry into the operation of the Calgary Convention Centre, which has been adjourned until September, was told Thursday that some of Mayor Rod Sykes' surplus campaign money was paid to two city companies before being returned.

Mike Horsey, former executive assistant to the mayor, said surplus campaign money in a trust fund was paid to two Calgary companies, and then returned by the companies to campaign workes.

The campaign workers then put it in a bank account which may have been used by Mayor Sykes to pay legal bills, the inquiry was told.

Horsey, who worked on all three of the mayor's campaigns and was responsible for the dispersement of donations in the 1971 race, identified his signature on two cheques authorizing payment of surplus campaign money to Tioga Signs Ltd. and Alberta Giftwares Ltd.

He said later he received cheques from both companies returning most of the money.

Horsey told the inquiry "I think the object was ultimately to disperse funds from the Bank of Montreal account" to pay expenses relating to a law suit in which Mayor Sykes was involved in at the time.

The inquiry before Mr. Justice Cameron Steer has heard 2½ months of testimony, and is to resume hearings next month.

Still to be considered is the mayor's use of almost 40 per cent of his 1971 election campaign contributions to pay for a personal lawsuit.

Other points of contention have included his close friendship with the chief developer of the convention centre, agreements with the Four Season Hotel which forms an integral part of the centre, and a campaign donation the hotel secretly gave Mayor Sykes in 1974.

Following the final week of hearings in September, Mr. Justice Steer will have nearly 5,000 pages of transcripts to review.

His report is expected to be ready early next year.

Sask. Strike Vote

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan government employees have voted 87 per cent in favor of strike action to support wage demands.

The 5,000 employees, members of the Saskatchewan Government Employees Association, are engaged in contract talks with the public service commission. They originally sought increases of up to 90 per cent based on the fact some of the workers earn as little as $2.64 an hour.

Two Dead in Fire

STOUGHTON, Sask. (CP) — Two elderly men are dead and the chimney is all that remains of the Stoughton Hotel after a fire destroyed the two-storey building. Ten other occupants of the hotel reached safety.

Drought Damage

WINNIPEG (CP) — United Grain Growers says hot, dry weather had done irreparable damage to the Prairie grain crop and 1975 production of spring wheat and barley will be drastically lower than first expected.

The Prairie-wide elevator company said the sharp deterioration occurred in the last week, mainly in Saskatchewan and central Alberta.

Rape Trial Remanded

Gerald Emile Rouleau, who appeared in Victoria provincial court Thursday on four charges including one of rape, was remanded by Judge William Ostler today for further psychiatric observation.

Rouleau, 26, of French Road, Sooke was arrested Monday and charged with forcibly confining three juvenile girls ages 14, 15, and 16, indecently assaulting the 15-year-old and raping the 14-year-old.

Ostler took the initiative in ordering a ban of publication after Rouleau advised the court he did not wish to be represented by legal counsel.

Police said the three girls were picked up hitchhiking Saturday and taken to an abandoned cabin near Shawnigan Lake where the offences were committed.

The girls were released 15 hours later, otherwise unharmed.

EVERYONE ASKS POLICE FOR HELP!

A 22-year-old man and a teenage boy reported to police Wednesday a theft that had just occurred at the back of the police station in Centennial Square.

The pair told officers two young men wearing sunglasses had assaulted them and stole a substance they were attempting to sell in the square that evening.

Police asked what the substance was. They replied . . . marijuana.

Cabinda Proclaims Self Free

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — The president of the Liberation Front of Cabinda (FLEC) has declared the oil-rich West African territory independent from Portugal and Angola.

Luis Ranque Franque made the proclamation at a news conference today after the conclusion of the summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) here.

Cabinda lies across the estuary of the Congo River north of the Portuguese territory of Angola, which is due to achieve independence in November.

Cabinda has great offshore oil wealth and still unexploited reserves of other minerals, including uranium.

The Cabindan enclave, which is only 2,800 square miles in area, is regarded as an integral part of Angola by Portugal, the three main Angolan liberation movements and most OAU member countries.

Given these factors and the known split within the ranks of FLEC, the force of Ranque Franque's proclamation could not be immediately assessed.

OAU Waters Ouster Bid Against Israel

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — The Organization of African Unity today rejected Arab resolutions calling for Israel's ouster from the United Nations and adopted a watered-down measure against the Jewish state.

The all-night debate on the Middle East produced the most heated exchange of the OAS summit conference, with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy cursing Egypt over the issue.

The 46-nation organization turned down a Lybyan resolution calling for Israel's expulsion from the world organization and an Egyptian demand for Israel's suspension.

The delegates then approved a weak resolution urging all nations to "reinforce pressure exerted on Israel at the U.N. and specialized agencies including the possibility of eventually depriving it of its membership in these institutions.

Some moderate delegates attending the conference criticized even the watered-down version. Zaire rejected the measure while Ghana, Sierra Leone, Senegal and Liberia expressed reservations.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli official said: "We are pleased to see that a number of African countries have displayed political maturity."

The resolution also expressed "solidarity" with the Palestinian cause, urged a trade boycott against Israel and encouraged the Palestine Liberation Organization to establish offices in member states.

In an effort to speed up a decision on the Middle East, the OAU organized a top-level meeting restricted to the heads of delegations.

Col. Khadafy postponed his trip home to argue for the expulsion of Israel. He was backed by Yarrer Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organiztion.

Egypt submitted a proposal calling for the suspension of Israel and insisted on unanimous approval "to reflect a united African stand against imperialism and zionism."

At the height of the heated talks, Khadafy asked the Egyptian delegation if it supported expulsion. He cursed the Egyptians when the answer was no.

The Middle East conflict was the last major issue to come before the conference. Ugandan president Idi Amin, the OAU chairman, closes the talks Saturday.

The conference adopted a resolution Thursday night calling for an immediate cease-fire in Angola. It urged Portugal, the colony's ruler, to "stop the wanton killing" between rival guerrilla groups.

The OAU also voted to explore the possibility of sending a peacekeeping force to put an end to months of bitter, post-independence fighting between Angola's black nationalist groups.

JOEY SUPPORTS 200-MILE LIMITS

SMALLWOOD

VANCOUVER (CP)—The social structure and economy of Newfoundland would inevitably collapse if the province's fishing industry is destroyed by fleets from the Soviet Union and other nations, Joey Smallwood, former premier of Newfoundland, said Thursday.

Speaking here as a member of a lobby to prevent destruction of Newfoundland's economy, Smallwood said about 30,000 people in 400 coastal villages—one-third of Newfoundland's population—are doomed if their only means of income and living is taken away by foreign fisheries.

He said at a news conference Canada should unilaterally impose a 200-mile fishing zone to protect the Newfoundland fishermen who "depend solely and exclusively on fishing."

The threat to these fishermen is increased, said Smallwood, because of the large fleets of factory ships with lights that "look like a city from the coast."

U.S. Fish Limit Law This Year?

WASHINGTON (AP) Backers of legislation establishing a 200-mile barrier in the United States against foreign fishing predict final congressional approval by Christmas.

The predictions came Thursday after such a bill was approved 33 to 2 by the House of Representatives merchant marine and fisheries committee..

The Canadian government is considering a similar expansion of its 12-mile limit and has banned Soviet fishing vessels from Atlantic ports following charges they exceeded fishing limits.

Half of the members in the U.S. House are backing various forms of legislation imposing a 200-mile limit. They feel that trawlers of such countries as the Soviet Union and Japan are picking clean historic U.S. fishing grounds.

The Senate passed a bill in the last session of Congress and its backers this year are awaiting House action first.

Essentially, the bill would:

—Establish several offshore zones, with fishery management priorities and plans to be drawn by representatives of the states, conservation and industry groups.

—Allow U.S. fishermen first chance at the catch. Foreign fishing would be allowed only under negotiated treaties, and then only if the fish population allows that scale of harvesting.

—Penalize violators with fines of up to $50,000 and seizure of the vessel and the catch.

The U.S. Coast Guard would enforce the law. It estimates enforcement costs at about $47 million annually.

Aid Urged For Private Schools

By LINDA HUGHES

Times Staff

Provincial government support for busing and library services for children attending private schools was recommended today by a cabinet committee.

The report of the seven-member committee studying provision of basic services to all children in the province does not mention any additional direct financing for independent schools.

It found that public health services and human resources services are already being provided "in varying degrees" to all school children; and makes only two recommendations:

—"That appropriate steps be taken by the government to facilitate the busing of school children requiring such service."

—"That the provincial secretary, through the Library Development Commission, investigate and facilitate supplementary library services to students in the non-public sector."

To implement the recommendation on busing, the cabinet committee said the government should initiate negotiations with local school boards to have them provide transportation facilities for private schools within their districts.

The provincial government, according to the report, would "contribute to any additional costs incurred in providing such transportation."

Textbooks are already provided to independent school students but the report says supplemental reading and learning materials are being used far more extensively in all schools, and these are not now provided to private school libraries.

The report brought an immediate sharp reaction from Mavis DeGirolamo, second vice-president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

"We're extremely disappointed that the NDP is capitulating to a pressure group," said DeGirolamo.

"The principle that we have always stood for as a federation is that the public schools are open to every child," she said.

Although helping financing private school busing would not be a large financial commitment by the government, she said, "it will inevitably lead to greater demands."

HUGE DEFICIT FACES AIRLINE

Air Canada to Cut Fares

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Air Canada, faced with a huge deficit this year, is planning a program of special discount fares to boost traffic, a spokesman for the airline said today.

The airline has projected a growth rate of eight per cent this year, the spokesman said. However, traffic volume in 1975 is actually down by two per cent and summer traffic is down 15 per cent.

Details of the program will be announced in the next few days.

The spokesman refused to confirm or deny a published report that the airline deficit for 1974 may hit $25 million. The lower traffic volume was reported to have cost the airline $70 million to $80 million in passenger revenue.

"There has been no hint within the airline that there will be any layoffs," he said.

The airline has blamed rising operating costs, particularly wages and rising fuel costs, for past losses.

Last year, the crown-owned carrier recorded a loss of $9.2 million, the second time in the last dozen years it has recorded a deficit.

Fare reductions are expected to include lower excursion fares and special weekend rates.

The spokesman denied that Air Canada has plans to sell a significant portion of its fleet. He said two or three of the airline's older DC-8s may be sold, but none of the carrier's newer planes are on the block.

The airline was recently the subject of a three-month inquiry into its financial operations. Chief Justice Willard Z. Estey of Ontario Supreme Court is expected to deliver this report to Transport Minister Jean Marchand this fall.

Downtown Crowds Warm To Chaplin's 'Ghost'

By SUSAN RUTTAN

Times Staff

The ghost of Charlie Chaplin and Buster Keaton has been haunting tourist-packed downtown streets this week.

He wears baggy pants, white shirt and bow tie, and a battered felt hat. His props are a twirling wicker cane, a wooden chair and a dilapidated brown satchel.

His face is painted white, like a mime or a silent-movie comic.

★ ★ ★

Amused tourists watch as he performs a variety of silent comedy stunts, like tripping over his own feet, aping the walk and mannerisms of passersby, stopping surprised matrons and gallantly kissing their hand.

From his satchel he produces a bottle hidden in a bag and begins to "drink", staggering around like a wino and twirling his cane.

The young performer is Richard Brenne, 19, of Portland, Oregon, who travels up and down the Pacific coast performing on city streets and living off donations he gets when he passes his battered hat after a performance.

★ ★ ★

"I'm not really a mime. I'm a visual comedian," said Brenne, who speaks with a slight stammer.

"My heroes are Chaplin and Keaton."

He began performing about a year ago after watching many silent movies, and now does a characterization of Chaplin, the little man who bumbles through life.

While in Victoria Brenne is staying with local performer Jerry Gosley. He said he really admires Gosley and would like to produce a show like the Smile Show when he returns to Portland.

ICBC Talks Break Down

As protesting ICBC employees from Vancouver Island surrounded the legislative building in their cars Thursday, negotiations in Vancouver broke down, again postponing an end to the 10-week dispute.

The negotiating committee of the Office and Technical Employees Union Local 378 Thursday rejected the latest offer from the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and announced that it will recommend that the union apply for the services of a government-appointed industrial inquiry commission.

The rejected offer provided for raises of about 30 per cent over a 27-month contract.

Union president Fred Trotter said the offer was "totally inadequate."

As the negotiation committee was rejecting the offer, about 100 Vancouver Island employees in a 65-car cavalcade converged on the legislature, honking horns and driving slowly past the front steps.

Purpose of the demonstration was to bring the strike to public attention and to protest government interference in the bargaining process and the hiring of strikebreakers, local shop steward Wayne Koski said.

The cavalcade started off early Thursday in Campbell River, and went to Courtenay, Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Duncan and Victoria, picking up cars along the way.

The protest parade got together outside Victoria to make the trek down Douglas Street, but by the time it got to the legislative buildings, many of the protesters had straggled behind, caught by traffic lights on Douglas.

The cavalcade also gained a

Hoffa: Abducted or Dead?

DETROIT (UPI) — Former teamsters president James Hoffa officially was a missing person today, and speculation he was kidnapped or slain swept the union he once ruled with an iron fist. Michigan's governor said he was told Hoffa disappeared after planning to meet a reputed Mafia leader.

"I know the police suspect foul play," said L. Brooks Patterson, prosecutor in Oakland county, where the 62-year old Hoffa lives and where he vanished more than 24 hours before his family notified authorities.

Some union sources said they feared Hoffa's disappearance would intensify rivalries that already have spilled over into beatings and bombings.

Other reports said the Hoffa family feared he was dead.

Hoffa's car was found abandoned in a shopping centre lot outside a fashionable Bloomfield Township restaurant where Hoffa apparently made a luncheon date.

Police were led to the car by an anonymous telephone caller.

Gov. William Milliken said Thursday night he understood Hoffa planned to meet Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a reputed kingpin of the Detroit Mafia.

Milliken did not elabaorate.

One of Hoffa's sons, James P. Hoffa, signed a missing persons report Thursday night and said his father was expected home at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Helsinki Charter Seals Europe Borders

HELSINKI (AP) — Concluding the biggest conclave of world leaders in 160 years, delegates of 35 countries today put their signatures to a charter aimed at guiding their conduct on the European continent and treatment of their own citizens.

One by one, the leaders of Europe and North America signed the 100-page leather-bound document as it was passed along a table on the stage of the ultramodern Finlandia Hall.

The controversial document, hammered out during 30 months of arduous negotiations here and in Geneva, tacitly accepts the post-war map of Europe — including Soviet conquests there — with a clause that says national frontiers shall be "inviolable" unless changed by peaceful means.

This was in exchange for Western-backed clauses pledging the participating countries to further the civil rights and ease the daily lives of their citizens and promote a freer flow of information across the ideological divide.

Before signing the document, U.S. President Ford warned delegates "peace is not a piece of paper." He urged large cuts in east and west bloc military forces and challenged the Communists to honor the Summit pledge of respect for human rights.

In a 20-minute address near the conclusion of the three-day security summit Ford repeatedly shook his finger for emphasis and warned his colleagues they must carry out the document's grand humanitarian pledges or risk bitter popular backlash at home.

"The people of all Europe and, I assure you, the people of North America are thoroughly tired of having their hopes raised and then shattered by empty words and unfulfilled pledges," Ford said.

"We had better say what we mean and mean what we say, or we will have the anger of our citiizens to answer."

The Finlandia hall audience heard Ford out in silence and then gave him a 40-second final ovation—perhaps the longest salute of the three-day conference. Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party chief, clapped heartily even though the thrust and tone of Ford's remarks ran counter to his own call Thursday for each nation to mind its own political business.

A Soviet delegation source said the Russians considered Ford's remarks "positive and realistic."

The president himself told UPI, "I'm glad it's over, but it went very well."

Mindful of criticism that the summit document ratifies Soviet domination of Eastern Europe in return for vague promises of respect for human rights, Ford put heavy stress on the need for practical followup action.

"Peace is not a piece of paper," he said. "detente . . .

SHARK-MAULED COUPLE DEAD

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A California man and his wife clinging to the debris of their fishing boat were mauled by sharks and died, the Oregon medical examiner said Thursday.

The bodies of Oliver Conger, 64, and Grace Conger, 62, of Morro Bay, Calif., were recovered from the Pacific Ocean Wednesday and were taken to Astoria, Ore.

Dr. William Brady, the Oregon medical-examiner, attributed Mrs. Conger's death primarily to shark bites. He said her husband died of drowning.

An autopsy was conducted Thursday.

Dr. Brady said Conger lost most of his right arm to sharks. He said Mrs. Conger's arms and legs were badly bitten.

Neither Dr. Brady nor the Coast Guard were able to determine what caused the boat to come apart.

"This is the first case like this I've seen in 10 years as medical examiner," Dr. Brady said.

The deadly white shark featured in the movie, "Jaws", is common in the Pacific Ocean north and south of Oregon, but is seldom seen off the Oregon coast, said a spokesman for the Oregon Fish commission in Newport.

Fish Firms Ask For Arbitrator

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Fisheries Association of B.C., representing fish-packing companies on the west coast, asked Thursday that the provincial government set up an arbitration for the companies' dispute with 7,000 striking members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

In a message sent by telegram to Premier Dave Barrett, Labor Minister Bill King and Jack Radford, minister of recreation and conservation, the association said it has withdrawn offers made earlier and rejected by the union.

The association asked the government to require the resumption of the salmon fishery Sunday and to arbitrate both the minimum prices and employee agreements.

The UFAWU, representing fishermen, tendermen and shoreworkers at the 14 major fish packers on the coast, went on strike Monday. Wednesday it announced that its membership had rejected the companies' offer by 81 per cent.

The association said: "Losses to date to all concerned have been heavy, the Skeena runs are not being harvested and the Americans are 700,000 fish ahead of the Canadians on the Fraser River sockeye fishery."

If the strike continues "the prospects are for the loss of the entire salmon season," said the association.

The union has maintained that the loss would primarily be borne by the fishing companies since the union already has begun to sell its catch to the public at the rate of $6 per dressed sockeeye with heads on and $3 a fish for smaller pinks.

At least 10,500 fish were sold by the union Wednesday at Richmond and Delta. The sale is to resume next week.

The Native Brotherhood of B.C. announced Thursday that it would begin its strike against fisheries association members Monday.

Lonnie Hindle, brotherhood spokesman, said native Indian fishermen have voted 71.2 per cent aainst accepting the latest price and wage offers from the companies.

Forest Mediator's Term Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Bill King Thursday extended the term of the special mediator in the British Columbia forest industry dispute to Aug. 12. The appointment of Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court was for 21 days and would have expired Saturday.

King said the extension was made at Mr. Justice Hutcheon's request and it was hoped 10 extra days would give the mediator "enough time to bring about a resolution of this very important labor-management dispute."

New York

The market drifted steadily downward today, beset by continuing inflation and interest rate worries.

Trading was light.

Losers opened up a lead of better than 2 to 1 at New York.

At the opening, the government reported that the unemployment rate eased to 8.4 per cent in July from 8.6 the month before.

But analysts said it appeared investors' attention was fixed on inflation and the interest rate outlook.

The primtry subject of concern in the inflation picture was the pontential impact of Soviet grain purchases and dry weather in some farming areas on food prices.

Brokers also noted uneasiness about weekly Federal Reserve statistics issued after Thursday's close, which were taken as evidence of further tightening by the Fed in its monetary policy.

Montreal

Prices were lower in most sectors in moderate trading today at Montreal.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. (EDT) was 153,400 shares, compared with 326,600 shares traded up to the same time Thursday.

Chrysler Omits Dividend For Third Straight Time

DETROIT (UPI) — Directors of Chrysler Corp., faced with a fifth straight record deficit this fall, voted Thursday to omit paying stockholders a dividend for the third straight quarter.

The action by the auto manufacturer followed a second quarter financial report that revealed a $58.7 million loss and a projection of an even greater deficit in the fall quarter. The vote to omit the first quarter dividend in February was the first time since 1938 that a shareholder payment had been eliminated.

Despite the Ford turnaround and a $333 million profit at General Motors—up nearly 9 per cent from the previous year — the automakers are expected to continue paying their reduced dividends to provide funds to completely retool for smaller and more fuel-efficient cars.

GM and Ford are spending close to $3 billion apiece to meet the demand for new cars while Chrysler has earmarked $1.5 billion.

Each of the four U.S. auto companies has either cut or eliminated dividends in the wake of poor financial results. GM trimmed its regular 85 cents dividend to 60 cents for two quarters, Ford cut 20 cents from its regular 80-cent dividend for two quarters and American Motors eliminated its 10-cent semi-annual dividend.

Chrysler and GM announced production plans that will further reduce the industry's long-term layoffs that peaked at nearly 212,000 in March. Layoffs this week are at 109,300, the lowest since before Christmas, and will drop even further next week.

Chrysler said it was resuming a second shift on one assembly line at its small car plant at Hamtramck, Mich., resulting in the callback of 1,800 workers. Its ong-term layoffs, at 16,900 this week, will be at 13,100 by Monday and below 10,000 by September, a spokesman said.

GM, which will have 14 assembly plants closed and 34,250 workers idled during new model changeover next week, said its long-term layoffs will drop from about 75,000 at the end of July to 63,000 by mid-September. In late March, 137,500 of GM's 400,000 hourly workers were on long-term layoffs.

Manitoba Hikes Forest Royalty

WINNIPEG (CP) — Royalty rates paid by Abitibi Paper Co. for softwoods taken from Crown land have been increased sharply under a new five-year agreement with the Manitoba government.

The new agreement boosts royalties on softwoods taken from the east side of Lake Winnipeg to $9 a cord from $1.84, and for other areas to $7.30 a cord from $1.47. It is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975.

The comany now will take wood on a volume basis from designated areas. It will no longer have to pay a fireguard charge of $12.80 per square mile, or a $2 "ground rent" fee.

Harvey Bostrom, Manitoba minister of lands and forests said the two charges have been abandoned because Abitibi will not have exclusive control of the areas. The fireguard costs will be assumed by the provincial government.

The new rate structure is subject to adjustments during the contract, in line with transportation costs borne by the company and with the price Abitibi gets for its pulp mill products.

A six-member committee, responsible for forest-management planning and timber utilization, is to be established. Three members are to be named by Abitibi and three by the government.

Firefighters Present 'Final Demand'

The Victoria firefighters' union presented its final contract demands to city officials at a negotiation meeting Thursday and will find out next week whether the proposals have been accepted.

Victoria firefighters' president Ross Cameron said today the city's personnel committee will consider the proposals at its meeting Thursday.

If the committee approves the proposals, the negotiating committee will recommend ratification of the contract at a membership meeting already scheduled for that night, Cameron said.

But, if the proposals are rejected, the membership will vote either to take a strike vote or to apply for binding arbitration.

The minimum wage proposal by the firefighters, who have been without a contract since last December, is parity with the Lower Mainland firemen.

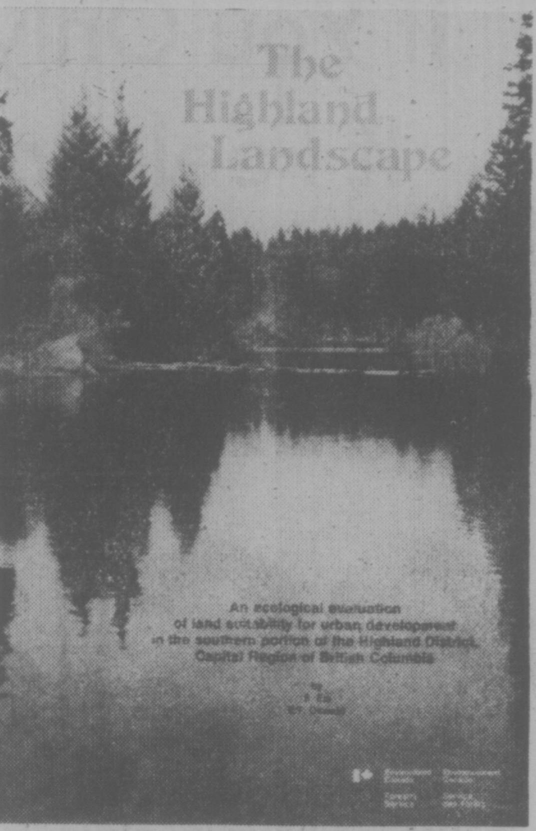
Lower Mainland salaries are based on Vancouver police salaries, plus three per cent. A key classification fireman on the Lower Mainland would receive $16,512, the rate for a first class constable, plus three per cent.

Meanwhile, Victoria police union negotiations, which were thought to have broken off Wednesday, are continuing.

A membership meeting was held Thursday night, and Sgt. Pat Braiden, local president, said today negotiations will be continuing.

"The door is still open," Braiden said.

Victoria police are asking for parity with Vancouver policemen.



The Highland Landscape
An ecological evaluation of land suitability for urban development in the southern portion of the Highland District, Capital Region of British Columbia

Hard look at housing possibilities

60% of Highlands 'Suitable for Houses'

A detailed study of 3,500 acres in the southern Highlands by Environment Canada shows about 60 per cent of it — hillside slopes and flatlands — is suitable for housing.

But it warns that pockets of fragile land in the area must be protected and notes that fog in the lowlands and fire on the steep slopes are among hazards.

The 35-page report, titled The Highland Landscape, was prepared at the request of the Capital Regional Board to provide the environmental background for planning a future community in the rugged area 10 miles west of Victoria.

The provincial government has already bought about 1,200 acres in the region and is negotiating for more in a housing development plan to unfold over the next few years.

The report, written by Drs. Slavoj Eis and Edward Oswald, research scientists with the Pacific Forest Research Centre, says high and constantly rising land values forecast population growth in the Capital District.

"Uncontrolled growth would assume the same form it has in the past, spreading without discrimination and slowly but surely obliterating the beautiful landscape of the region."

Eight varieties of landscape in the southern Highlands are described by the scientists together with explanations of what each is most suitable for.

They conclude that the deep soil landscape found in flat lowlands and the lower slopes of hills is best suited for housing but it comprises only 9 per cent of the area.

However, shallow soil land on moderate slopes covers more than half the study area and, combined with the flatlands, forms blocks large enough for the proposed development.

In general, the researchers see housing located on the Highland slopes, with roads and services concentrated on the lower flatlands.

Excavations and construction is cheapest on the flat terrain, but this land provides "a rather unattractive environment for permanent living," with poor view, subject to fog and unseasonal frost because cold air from the slopes will settle there.

Channelling and concentration of air currents in the valley may result in wind damage, they say.

Moderate slopes constitute the most common landscape unit in the Highlands and loss of a small area will be insignificant, the report says. This kind of land will provide an aesthetic setting for housing, with variable topography and attractive views.

"Ideally, the remaining landscape units, because of their limitations, should form the open space and be excluded from urban development. If located within the development area, they should be used to break up the residential development into smaller clusters."

While human traffic on moss-carpeted slopes will cause erosion . . . "far more serious is the danger of fire.

"Dry mosses and grasses are highly inflammable during the summer and the spread of fire on steep topography is rapid. An accidental fire could cause more damage than heavy trampling over many years."

Wet forest land, bogs and marshes, all subject to periodic flooding, should be exempted from all development. Among their assets: they provide important wildlife habitat.

Close to settlement, marshlands could be flooded to form recreational lakes or partially drained and developed into parks or flower gardens.

Motor-powered boats should be excluded from all lakes in the area.

The report is available free from the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside.

Diesel Hoot Distressing

A complaint to Victoria city council claims that early morning hooting of the E & N Dayliner, with a horn "designed to be heard clear across three prairie townships," is disturbing the sleep of Victoria West residents.

B. G. Brown, a resident of the Princess Patrica apartments on Esquimalt Road, says in a letter to City Hall that noise is to be expected in a commercial area, but the problem is caused by "the unthinking and careless use of this noise."

As an example, he mentions the loudly and frequently hooting locomotives plying the CPR tracks, creating a noise nuisance to hundreds of families.

"There are five street crossings between Viewfield Road and the Roundhouse," he states in his letter. "The daily 5 a.m. freight train is apparently required to hoot 20 times in the space of half a mile in order to cross five empty streets.

"The yard engine starts work as the freight arrives. It hoots its way across these same empty streets with complete unconcern for the multitude of erstwhile sleepers.

"To take a boxcar to, say, Standard Furniture, it must cross these same five streets and return all in 10 minutes. Forty hoots in 10 minutes at 6 a.m!"

When the public works committee considers Brown's letter on Tuesday, it will be informed by city solicitor Jakob de Villiers that the cit's noise abatement bylaw can be amended to ban engine whistles and bells, but that this might involve "a risk to life and property."

De Villiers' report notes that the Railway Act requires any train approaching a highway crossing to sound its engine whistle "at least 80 rods before approaching such crossing," and to ring its bell continuously from the time of the first hoot until the train has crossed.

A municipal bylaw banning such sounds, if approved by the Canadian Transport Commission, would relieve the company of its duty to provide any warnings to road users.

Ferries Jammed For Weekend

If you don't want the hassle of long lineups at B.C. ferry terminals this weekend stay home or be a foot passenger.

This was the advice of a ferry spokesman today as cars had a three-hour wait at Swartz Bay this morning and recreational vehicles, four hours.

There were 100 campers waiting in line for the 6 a.m. sailing. The spokesman said that 50 of them were unable to get aboard the 10 p.m. sailing on Thursday. The remainder kept arriving at the terminal during the night hours.

No extra sailings have been scheduled for the weekend traffic. Final sailings for both the Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen terminals will be 10 p.m. each day.

Pleasure boaters will be faced with brisk winds in both the Gulf of Georgia and the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Weather conditions are expected to remain sunny with cloudy periods and temperatures around 20.

STUDENTS FLOOD UVIC

Student applications to the University of Victoria for the coming school year have risen some 1,800 over bids made last year, officials of UVic's admissions office said today.

Registration supervisor Fred Bennett and admissions director Esme Ford both said they don't expect to take any more applications beyond the July 31 deadline.

Last week, UVic president Howard Petch said the deadline would be adhered to more strictly than usual because lack of building expansion does not allow much of an increase in over-all enrolment.

An unofficial count today pct registration of new students at 3,600, which is about 800 more than last year. Re-registrations and applications were about 960 over last year's figure of 3,919.

"Because there are these increased numbers, we are going to hold fast to the deadline," said Ford. She also said earlier deadlines were observed for students transferring from other colleges and universities.

Some drop in actual registration is expected because some students will not qualify or will have made bids to more than one university.

Forgotten Forbears In Museum Display

British Columbia's forgotten forebears—the women who shaped the province—will be remembered this fall in special museum display to mark International Women's Year.

"Our Hidden Heritage—The Women in B.C.'s History" is a project of Victoria's Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) and will go on display September 1.

Funded by a $5,000 federal grant and a $25,000 provincial donation, the project is designed to portray the half of B.C. history ignored by traditional textbooks.

Linda Gilligan, co-ordinator and only full-time worker on the exhibit, said the disply will feature the lives and achievements of various B.C. women in the last 100 years.

Interspersed with the individual displays will be huge photographs of anonymous women throughout history, working and living in non-stereotyped roles.

The modular-style display will be set up on the second floor of the provincial museum but Gilligan hopes the exhibit will travel around the province later in the year.

Featured in the display are seven B.C. women plus the "Flying Seven," a group of women at Vancouver airport who formed the first female flying club in Canada in 1936.

The women flyers were involved in stunt flying and contributed to the war effort through pamphlet distribution and teaching at the airport.

Other figures in the display will be:

—Helen Gregory MacGill, the first woman in Canada to obtain a university degree and the first female provincial court judge, who worked in the field of law reform.

—Mary Ellen Smith, the first woman MLA in B.C.

—Dr. Helen Gordon Stewart, a prominent librarian who promoted open-shelf programs and bookmobiles.

—Alice H. Berry, a widow who became involved in the Vancouver World shortly after the turn of the century and eventually became the first female managing editor of a daily newspaper in Canada.

The exhibit will run until Oct. 10.

Charge Laid In Hoax Call

Two 17-year-old youths were charged in Victoria provincial court this morning with making a threatening phone call.

Prosecutor Nick Lang alleged Steven Michael Trim of 3702 Duke and Kevin John Cooper of Sooke Road phoned Dunsmuir junior secondary school on March 19 to say they had hidden a bomb in the school. The call proved a hoax.

The pair pleaded not guilty and Judge William Ostler remanded them to Oct. 13 for trial.

Detective's Last Shift

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Illness has forced the early retirement of one of Saanich police department's best liked and most respected members.

Detective-Sergeant Norman Baker turned in his last shift Thursday, ending a 21-year career with the force.

In an interview the 52-year-old veteran police officer and former professional basketball star said he was retiring on doctor's orders.

Baker had a stroke three-and-a-half years ago which resulted in the temporary loss of speech and paralysis in his right arm. He was off work for nearly a year and tried to make a come-back but other health problems developed.

"Finally my doctor told me to get out while I still could," he said. "But I feel I'm too young to retire."

He will be on disability pension limited to light activities.

Saanich police chief Robert Peterson said he regretted Baker's leaving.

"He has always been well-liked around here and was one of those rare individuals who always bore a smile on his face. We'll miss him."

Born in Victoria in 1923 Baker was raised in Nanaimo. He returned to the capital city in 1938 and started to play basketball.

As a strapping, six-foot, two-inch tall youth he excelled in the sport. He played in the senior amateur division. His team won five Canada titles and he was the youngest player, at age 16, to play on a Canadian championship team.

Following the war, during which he served as an airplane mechanic in Canada, he went to Chicago and then ended up on the west coast playing in the Pacific Coast Basketball league first for Vancouver and later for Portland.

BAKER
. . . retires

He earned $900 a month, a lot of money in those days but a pittance compared to current professional athlete pay standards.

He was spotted by a scout for the Boston Celtics, signed up and played four years as a guard with the National Basketball League team.

In his second year with the Celtics he was selected to the league's All Star team and went on a 13-country tour of Europe, playing against the Harlem Globetrotters.

"We beat them the odd time," he recalled. "But we weren't supposed to"

He retired from basketball in 1951.

The reason: "I got married and to continue playing would have meant keeping two homes."

He and his wife Nancy, a former Vancouver girl, returned west. After a couple of years doing various jobs Baker joined the Saanich police force.

"I knew some of the fellows on the force and it seemed a good place to work," he said.

Promoted to detective sergeant in 1964 he was the investigator in a number of notable cases. On one—the $250,000 Chateau Victoria fraud case—he worked steadily a full year before it ended successfully in a conviction. Towards the end of the 60s he spent a year on the Greater Victoria drug squad.

During this period he remained active in amateur sport, particularly lacrosse, basketball and soccer.

Retirement poses a difficult adjustment, Baker reflected, for he will be restricted to such activities as fishing and gardening.

But he hopes to be able to spend more time following lacrosse, a sport in which his only son, Norman, 21, has shown considerable promise playing with the Victoria Shamrocks.

Baker said a scout from Philadelphia indicated interest in Norman junior, However, he added, it's unlikely his son will take the bait.

The reason is the same one that brought an abrupt end to his own professional athlete career:

"He's planning to get married this October."

Convict On Pass Escapes

Police with a tracking dog are searching the area around Matheson Lake today for a 26-year-old inmate of William Head federal prison who escaped while on a pass to the lake Thursday evening.

Colwood RCMP said Frank Kandrnal was with a group of seven prisoners and failed to show up as escorts rounded up the men at 8:20 p.m. to return them to the prison at William Head spit after an evening's swim.

A search for the missing man was mounted immediately and a tracking dog brought in. But all searchers found was Kandrnal's bathing suit hidden in a bush. Police presume he made off wearing his beige prison clothing.

Kandrnal was sentenced last year to 11 years in prison for a robbery in Kitimat. His probable release date would have been Sept. 23, 1981.

Police described the man as 5 feet 9 inches tall, 160 pounds, grey green eyes, light brown hair, fair complexion, and has a vaccination scar on his left arm.

Rentals Hearing Aug. 14

Hearings on the problems of rental accommodation in B.C. will be held in Victoria Aug. 14 at the Newcombe Auditorium.

Both oral and written submissions will be accepted by the members of the provincial committee studying "the cost of rent, rental controls and the availability of rental accommodation in B.C."

The interdepartmental committee, headed by former Toronto alderman Karl Jaffrey, was struck earlier this year and will submit recommendations to the government this fall.

It is holding five public hearings around the province this month, in Kelowna, Prince George, Vancouver, and Burnaby as well as Victoria.

Written submissions should be sent to the Rent Review Commission, PO Box 9600, Vancouver, before Aug. 15.

One Man's Journey to Far Cape Scott

JIM WILLIAMS IS A friendly, outgoing man, but when he sets off on one of his extended rambles in the Cape Scott country, he would just as soon travel alone. That way, Jim explains, he's free to wander and observe, to think about what he sees and to linger where he chooses.

On his last trip, he observed that the ancient Singer sewing machine had been toppled from its spot on Fisherman River bank.

"There'd been a house by the river once," says Jim, "and it seemed to me the old foot-pedal sewing machine was a kind of memorial to those people who'd come and gone. If anyone else had been with me, though, I'd have worried about taking the time to put it back where it belonged."

Unencumbered, Jim made a wet job of retrieving the machine from the water. Then he wrung out his socks, swung up his pack-frame, and moseyed on along the Cape Scott trail.

Jim Williams, a 42-year-old family man and pulpmill worker, lives a few miles south of Ladysmith.

In earlier years, he sometimes went hunting with his father. But he has always preferred studying wild creatures to shooting them. He has a feeling for the woods and the wild beaches.

Once, in company, he hiked a considerable stretch of the West Coast trail. The notion of heading north for a look at Vancouver Island's tip-top wasn't sparked overnight. Jim is a methodical man, not inclined to act in haste.

Occasionally in his reading, he came on references to the Cape Scott area. He learned about the Danish settlers who established farms near Hansen's Lagoon soon after the turn of the century, only to be defeated by the distance between their crops and the southern market. What he learned whetted Jim's interest. He decided to go up for a look around. But first, he would add to his information.

In the provincial archives at Victoria, he expanded his file. Then, in August of 1973, he scrambled an outfit together and loaded it in a packsack.

Jim's mother-in-law urged him to take the family dog along for company. So when he set out, he wasn't quite alone. Jocko, a black miniature poodle with the heart of a lion, was with him when he parked his car at the end of a logging road near San Josef Bay and took to the Cape Scott trail.

"I wasn't sure how Jocko would stand up to it," Jim remembers. "In fact, I thought we might end the day with me carrying him. But he did fine — he was out front all the way."

They crossed Fisherman River on a log, and saw the sewing machine which had been a pioneer woman's pride.

They left the mud of the earlier trail behind, though not before Jim's soaked feet were painfully blistered.

They came to abandoned farms, their fences long gone but fence posts still standing, and the earth dykes that shielded them from marshlands still sound.

They arrived at the tip of the Island by a route that took them over three swinging bridges and down 324 steps, to gaze on the open Pacific.

The Cape Scott lightkeeper warned Jim to keep an eye on Jocko. His own dog had almost been nabbed by a cougar a day or two before, and another dog had been less lucky. That night, his camp a plastic tarp spread over a sleeping bag, Jim slept with a hatchet beside him and Jocko secured to his wrist by a yard of rope.

With four days to spend in country that was everything he'd hoped it would be, Jim wandered by trail and beach. He took pictures, sketched maps, and kept a detailed and careful log. In it is recorded the inscription on an eight-foot stone obelisk which he happened on near Nissen Bight.

The stone, raised in 1906, marks the passing of William Christensen, aged 12.

'The sun went down while it was yet day,' the chiselled words run.

Jim copied them, while Jocko squatted beside him.

Jocko is gone now — disappeared without trace on his early-morning run a year ago — and Jim was altogether alone when he returned to Cape Scott for another four-day walkabout last June.

Thanks to birthday and Christmas presents from wife Charlotte and daughters Sherri, Wendy and Jeanene, Jim was better equipped for his second trip. His new pack-frame rode easier than the old packsack of his first venture. He had a lightweight sleeping bag and a compact little trail tent, also a variety of dehydrated foods in wet-proof packages.

Except for the sewing machine tumbled into the river and a wheel missing from the old buggy that sits on an overgrown farm lane, all was as he'd remembered it. Jim saw deer in herds. He watched a bear heave beach rocks aside to feast on little shore crabs. His log records that pioneers Earle Lincoln, 86, and Jim Cordy, 87, were still well and hearty in the neighboring homes they built six miles from Holberg most of 50 years ago.

It was a good trip, even though Jim missed Jocko. But the family's new black miniature poodle may go with him when he next returns to an area that still has much to offer the wide-eyed traveller.

50-Cent Hike For Haircut

A haircut in Victoria's union barbershops now costs $4, raised from $3.50 at a meeting of the barbers' union.

Union secretary-treasurer Hugh Ross said the 50-cent increase was ratified by the barbers Thursday.

The $4 rate is the minimum charge for a haircut. A cut involving complicated cutting or styling will cost more, Ross said.

Clifford Irving Still Cocky

By JURATE KAZICKAS

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Clifford Irving, "Con Man of the Year" in 1972, strolls barefoot on the lawn overlooking a sunny inlet of this seaside resort. He affectionately nuzzles a pretty German woman friend and says: "Life is good. It always was."

Fine spirits for a man who a few days later declared himself bankrupt and for one still up to his neck in legal proceedings from the 1972 fracas that erupted from his fake autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes.

After serving 17 months in prison on charges of conspiracy and fraud, Irving, 44, moved here last July. He passes the time playing tennis, dining with friends and dabbling at pure fiction—a new novel he describes as an "erotic romance" about three women and a man living in the Hamptons.

"I'm sorry I got caught. And I'm sorry I involved my wife Edith, and I'm sorry I put my children into such jeopardy," said Irving, referring to emotional difficulties he says his young sons, Barnaby and Nedsky, now 5 and 7, experienced when both parents were in jail.

"But I feel better and more experienced for having gone through it all. It was exciting. And there's a certain satisfaction from meeting difficulties, conquering them and coming out relatively whole."

He said he has tried to block out the whole experience of prison life, where, by his own estimation, he was a "troublemaker." He said he was placed in solitary confinement a few times and was accused of being the ringleader of a prisoner's strike.

But he ruefully admits he's forced to think about the Hughes book all the time.

"The Autobiography of Howard Hughes" with the prefix "Auto" crossed out, was recently published in Spain. But Irving is being sued by Rosemont, a Hughes organization which owns the rights to Hughes' name, to stop publication of the book in the United States.

He says he is flattered that people on the street still recognize him and indicated a certain sentimental fondness for the book which friends say he is anxious to see published.

Irving and his fourth wife, Edith, are separated. She lives on the Spanish island of Ibiza with the two children. He doubts they will bother with divorce since neither wants to marry again. Irving has arranged for a showing of her paintings in Southampton this summer.

He was asked whether he was still in touch with Nina Van Pallandt, the blonde beauty who was instrumental in unravelling the hoax and whose sudden fame launched a short-lived singing and acting career.

"I don't know whatever happened to her, but I hear she came upon a patch of bad luck," he said. "I felt good when I heard that. I think she behaved in very poor taste."

Irving exudes that same cocky air that he mustered right up to the last days of his trial. But he says he was near tears when he heard himself described by the judge as "the biggest loser I know."

His book-about-the-book, What Really Happened, failed to make money. He says legal fees are eating up whatever resources he has from a few lectures and magazine pieces.

A few days later, his lawyers filed an application for voluntary bankruptcy in Brooklyn Federal Court. They listed his assets at $410. His debts were a bit more than that: $55,884,248.01 to be exact.

The bulk of that debt, they said, represents a $55-million libel suit pending in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. The suit was filed by Fernand Legros, an artist who was the subject of an earlier and ironically-titled Irving book called Fake.

Has all this turned life sour for Irving?

"It's fruitless to worry about the future," he says. "I have always been easy-going and irresponsible and things have always worked out."

Mayor's Fund Shuffle Detailed in Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — The judicial inquiry into the operation of the Calgary Convention Centre, which has been adjourned until September, was told Thursday that some of Mayor Rod Sykes' surplus campaign money was paid to two city companies before being returned.

Mike Horsey, former executive assistant to the mayor, said surplus campaign money in a trust fund was paid to two Calgary companies, and then returned by the companies to campaign workes.

The campaign workers then put it in a bank account which may have been used by Mayor Sykes to pay legal bills, the inquiry was told.

Horsey, who worked on all three of the mayor's campaigns and was responsible for the dispersement of donations in the 1971 race, identified his signature on two cheques authorizing payment of surplus campaign money to Tioga Signs Ltd. and Alberta Giftwares Ltd.

He said later he received cheques from both companies returning most of the money.

Horsey told the inquiry "I think the object was ultimately to disperse funds from the Bank of Montreal account" to pay expenses relating to a law suit in which Mayor Sykes was involved in at the time.

The inquiry before Mr. Justice Cameron Steer has heard 2½ months of testimony, and is to resume hearings next month.

Still to be considered is the mayor's use of almost 40 per cent of his 1971 election campaign contributions to pay for a personal lawsuit.

Other points of contention have included his close friendship with the chief developer of the convention centre, agreements with the Four Season Hotel which forms an integral part of the centre, and a campaign donation the hotel secretly gave Mayor Sykes in 1974.

Following the final week of hearings in September, Mr. Justice Steer will have nearly 5,000 pages of transcripts to review.

His report is expected to be ready early next year.

Rape Trial Remanded

Gerald Emile Rouleau, who appeared in Victoria provincial court Thursday on four charges including one of rape, was remanded by Judge William Ostler today for further psychiatric observation.

Rouleau, 26, of French Road, Sooke was arrested Monday and charged with forcibly confining three juvenile girls ages 14, 15, and 16, indecently assaulting the 15-year-old and raping the 14-year-old.

Ostler took the initiative in ordering a ban of publication after Rouleau advised the court he did not wish to be represented by legal counsel.

Police said the three girls were picked up hitchhiking Saturday and taken to an abandoned cabin near Shawnigan Lake where the offences were committed.

The girls were released 15 hours later, otherwise unharmed.

EVERYONE ASKS POLICE FOR HELP!

A 22-year-old man and a teenage boy reported to police Wednesday a theft that had just occurred at the back of the police station in Centennial Square.

The pair told officers two young men wearing sunglasses had assaulted them and stole a substance they were attempting to sell in the square that evening.

Police asked what the substance was. They replied . . . marijuana.

Cabinda Proclaims Self Free

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — The president of the Liberation Front of Cabinda (FLEC) has declared the oil-rich West African territory independent from Portugal and Angola.

Luis Ranque Franque made the proclamation at a news conference today after the conclusion of the summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) here.

Cabinda lies across the estuary of the Congo River north of the Portuguese territory of Angola, which is due to achieve independence in November.

Cabinda has great offshore oil wealth and still unexploited reserves of other minerals, including uranium.

The Cabindan enclave, which is only 2,800 square miles in area, is regarded as an integral part of Angola by Portugal, the three main Angolan liberation movements and most OAU member countries.

Given these factors and the known split within the ranks of FLEC, the force of Ranque Franque's proclamation could not be immediately assessed.

The FLEC leader asserted that Cabinda is a separate territory from Angola and condemned the Portuguese decree of 1956 which placed Cabinda under the administration of the governor-general in Luanda.

Aid Urged For Private Schools

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial government support for busing and library services for children attending private schools was recommended today by a cabinet committee.

The report of the seven-member committee studying provision of basic services to all children in the province does not mention any additional direct financing for independent schools.

It found that public health services and human resources services are already being provided "in varying degrees" to all school children, and makes only two recommendations:

—"That appropriate steps be taken by the government to facilitate the busing of school children requiring such service."

—"That the provincial secretary, through the Library Development Commission, investigate and facilitate supplementary library services to students in the non-public sector."

To implement the recommendation on busing, the cabinet committee said the government should initiate negotiations with local school boards to have them provide transportation facilities for private schools within their districts.

The provincial government, according to the report, would "contribute to any additional costs incurred in providing such transportation."

Textbooks are already provided to independent school students but the report says supplemental reading and learning materials are being used far more extensively in all schools, and these are not now provided to private school libraries.

The report brought an immediate sharp reaction from Mavis DeGirolamo, second vice-president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

"We're extremely disappointed that the NDP is capitulating to a pressure group," said DeGirolamo.

"The principle that we have always stood for as a federation is that the public schools are open to every child," she said.

Although helping financing private school busing would not be a large financial commitment by the government, she said, "it will inevitably lead to greater demands."

HUGE DEFICIT FACES AIRLINE

Air Canada to Cut Fares

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Air Canada, faced with a huge deficit this year, is planning a program of special discount fares to boost traffic, a spokesman for the airline said today.

The airline has projected a growth rate of eight per cent this year, the spokesman said. However, traffic volume in 1975 is actually down by two per cent and summer traffic is down 15 per cent.

Details of the program will be announced in the next few days.

The spokesman refused to confirm or deny a published report that the airline deficit for 1974 may hit $25 million. The lower traffic volume was reported to have cost the airline $70 million to $80 million in passenger revenue.

"There has been no hint within the airline that there will be any layoffs," he said.

The airline has blamed rising operating costs, particularly wages and rising fuel costs, for past losses.

Last year, the crown-owned carrier recorded a loss of $9.2 million, the second time in the last dozen years it has recorded a deficit.

Fare reductions are expected to include lower excursion fares and special weekend rates.

The spokesman denied that Air Canada has plans to sell a significant portion of its fleet. He said two or three of the airline's older DC-8s may be sold, but none of the carrier's newer planes are on the block.

The airline was recently the subject of a three-month inquiry into its financial operations. Chief Justice Willard Z. Estey of Ontario Supreme Court is expected to deliver this report to Transport Minister Jean Marchand this fall.

SHARK-MAULED COUPLE DEAD

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A California man and his wife clinging to the debris of their fishing boat were mauled by sharks and died, the Oregon medical examiner said Thursday.

The bodies of Oliver Conger, 64, and Grace Conger, 62, of Morro Bay, Calif., were recovered from the Pacific Ocean Wednesday and were taken to Astoria, Ore.

Dr. William Brady, the Oregon medical examiner, attributed Mrs. Conger's death primarily to shark bites. He said her husband died of drowning.

An autopsy was conducted Thursday.

Dr. Brady said Conger lost most of his right arm to sharks. He said Mrs. Conger's arms and legs were badly bitten.

Neither Dr. Brady nor the Coast Guard were able to determine what caused the boat to come apart.

"This is the first case like this I've seen in 10 years as medical examiner," Dr. Brady said.

The deadly white shark featured in the movie, "Jaws", is common in the Pacific Ocean north and south of Oregon, but is seldom seen off the Oregon coast, said a spokesman for the Oregon Fish commission in Newport.

Downtown Crowds Warm To Chaplin's 'Ghost'

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

The ghost of Charlie Chaplin and Buster Keaton has been haunting tourist-packed downtown streets this week.

He wears baggy pants, white shirt and bow tie, and a battered felt hat. His props are a twirling wicker cane, a wooden chair and a dilapidated brown satchel.

His face is painted white, like a mime or a silent movie comic.

* * *

Amused tourists watch as he performs a variety of silent comedy stunts, like tripping over his own feet, aping the walk and mannerisms of passersby, stopping surprised matrons and gallantly kissing their hand.

From his satchel he produces a bottle hidden in a bag and begins to "drink", staggering around like a wino and twirling his cane.

The young performer is Richard Brenne, 19, of Portland, Oregon, who travels up and down the Pacific coast performing on city streets and living off donations he gets when he passes his battered hat after a performance.

* * *

"I'm not really a mime. I'm a visual comedian," said Brenne, who speaks with a slight stammer.

"My heroes are Chaplin and Keaton."

He began performing about a year ago after watching many silent movies, and now does a characterization of Chaplin, the little man who bumbles through life.

While in Victoria Brenne is staying with local performer Jerry Gosley. He said he really admires Gosley and would like to produce a show like the Smile Show when he returns to Portland.

Man Leaps From Blaze

Fire destroyed a two-storey rooming house at 679 Battery this morning forcing five people to flee for their lives, including an elderly woman confined to a wheelchair and a young man who had to jump from a second floor window.

Fire broke out at about 11:15 a.m. in a first floor room occupied by Mrs. J. I. Mckenzie.

By the time Victoria firemen reached the scene, flames were coming out of the doorways and windows in the building, but firemen had the blaze under control in a half hour.

Assistant Chief Robert Cherneff said the fire gutted the first and second floors and spread into the attic and broke through the roof.

He estimated damage at several thousand dollars.

A resident of the rooming house said Mrs. Mckenzie's sister, vacationing from Florida, had attempted to light the gas stove when it exploded into flames.

The two women were forced out of the room, the sister pushing Mrs. Mckenzie in her wheelchair, one of them crying out "Fire!"

The cry alerted other residents in the eight-suite wood frame building.

Mark Shaffer, who has lived in a second-floor apartment for the last year, said he heard a woman yelling that there was a fire in the building, rushed to the back of the building, saw smoke and phoned in the fire alarm.

When he tried to run for the exit the second time, flames forced him back and he was forced to escape through a kitchen building in an adjacent suite, swinging down onto the front porch and falling to the ground. He was not hurt.

Shaffer said he then banged on the window of the basement suite occupied by David Dressler, a young man who had moved into the building only a month ago.

Dressler said he was asleep and wearing ear plugs at the time but heard the loud knocks and made his escape through the only window in his room.

The rooming house is owned by a Mr. Raeder.

Strong Quake In Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The California state capital city was shaken at 1:30 p.m. PDT today by a strong earthquake.

At the University of California seismographic station in Berkeley, scientists said it was "a good sized quake" but a Richter magnitude was not immediately available. Buildings near the State Capitol shook and trembled for more than a minute.

Term Extended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Bill King Thursday extended the term of the special mediator in the British Columbia forest industry dispute to Aug. 12. The appointment of Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court was for 21 days and would have expired Saturday.

King said the extension was made at Mr. Justice Hutcheon's request and it was hoped 10 extra days would give the mediator "enough time to bring about a resolution of this very important labor-management dispute."

Gowon Off To Togo

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Deposed Nigerian leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon left Uganda today for the West African country of Togo, reliable sources said. They said Gowon flew in Ugandan President Idi Amin's personal Grumman executive jet.

Pen Strike Still On

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoners at Millhaven institution remained in their cells today on the second day of a proposed 11-day sit-in in support of demands made by British Columbia penitentiary prisoners for a union. The prisoners began the sit-in about 8 a.m. Thursday when they returned to their cells after breakfast and refused to leave them.

Floggings Ordered

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Four men who pleaded guilty to a long series of burglaries and armed robberies were sentenced Thursday to the most severe floggings ever assessed by a Singapore court. The men — who also received stiff prison sentences — were each sentenced to 36 strikes of the rattan cane, unprecedented in Singapore history.

ICBC Talks Break Down

As protesting ICBC employees from Vancouver Island surrounded the legislative building in their cars Thursday, negotiations in Vancouver broke down, again postponing an end to the 10-week dispute.

The negotiating committee of the Office and Technical Employees Union Local 378 Thursday rejected the latest offer from the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and announced that it will recommend that the union apply for the services of a government-appointed industrial inquiry commission.

The rejected offer provided for raises of about 30 per cent over a 27-month contract.

Union president Fred Trotter said the offer was "totally inadequate."

As the negotiation committee was rejecting the offer, about 100 Vancouver Island employees in a 65-car cavalcade converged on the legislature, honking horns and driving slowly past the front steps.

Purpose of the demonstration was to bring the strike to public attention and to protest government interference in the bargaining process and the hiring of strikebreakers, local shop steward Wayne Koski said.

The cavalcade started off early Thursday in Campbell River, and went to Courtenay, Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Duncan and Victoria, picking up cars along the way.

The protest parade got together outside Victoria to make the trek down Douglas Street, but by the time it got to the legislative buildings, many of the protesters had straggled behind, caught by traffic lights on Douglas.

The cavalcade also gained a

Hoffa: Abducted or Dead?

DETROIT (UPI) — Former teamsters president James Hoffa officially was a missing person today, and speculation he was kidnapped or slain swept the union he once ruled with an iron fist. Michigan's governor said he was told Hoffa disappeared after planning to meet a reputed Mafia leader.

"I know the police suspect foul play," said L. Brooks Patterson, prosecutor in Oakland county, where the 62-year old Hoffa lives and where he vanished more than 24 hours before his family notified authorities.

Some union sources said they feared Hoffa's disappearance would intensify rivalries that already have spilled over into beatings and bombings.

Other reports said the Hoffa family feared he was dead.

Hoffa's car was found abandoned in a shopping centre lot outside a fashionable Bloomfield Township restaurant where Hoffa apparently made a luncheon date.

Police were led to the car by an anonymous telephone caller.

Gov. William Milliken said Thursday night he understood Hoffa planned to meet Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a reputed kingpin of the Detroit Mafia.

Milliken did not elabaorate.

One of Hoffa's sons, James P. Hoffa, signed a missing persons report Thursday night and said his father was expected home at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Helsinki Charter Seals Europe Borders

HELSINKI (AP) — Concluding the biggest conclave of world leaders in 160 years, delegates of 35 countries today put their signatures to a charter aimed at guiding their conduct on the European continent and treatment of their own citizens.

One by one, the leaders of Europe and North America signed the 100-page leather-bound document as it was passed along a table on the stage of the ultramodern Finlandia Hall.

The controversial document, hammered out during 30 months of arduous negotiations here and in Geneva, tacitly accepts the post-war map of Europe — including Soviet conquests there — with a clause that says national frontiers shall be "inviolable" unless changed by peaceful means.

This was in exchange for Western-backed clauses pledging the participating countries to further the civil rights and ease the daily lives of their citizens and promote a freer flow of information across the ideological divide.

Before signing the document, U.S. President Ford, warned delegates "peace is not a piece of paper." He urged large cuts in east and west bloc military forces and challenged the Communists to honor the Summit pledge of respect for human rights.

In a 20-minute address near the conclusion of the three-day security summit Ford repeatedly shook his finger for emphasis and warned his colleagues they must carry out the document's grand humanitarian pledges or risk bitter popular backlash at home.

"The people of all Europe and, I assure you, the people of North America are thoroughly tired of having their hopes raised and then shattered by empty words and unfulfilled pledges," Ford said.

"We had better say what we mean and mean what we say, or we will have the anger of our citizens to answer."

The Finlandia hall audience heard Ford out in silence and then gave him a 40-second final ovation—perhaps the longest salute of the three-day conference. Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party chief, clapped heartily even though the thrust and tone of Ford's remarks ran counter to his own call Thursday for each nation to mind its own political business.

A Soviet delegation source said the Russians considered Ford's remarks "positive and realistic."

The president himself told UPI, "I'm glad it's over, but it went very well."

Mindful of criticism that the summit document ratifies Soviet domination of Eastern Europe in return for vague promises of respect for human rights, Ford put heavy stress on the need for practical followup action.

"Peace is not a piece of paper," he said. "detente . . .

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm futures prices closed higher on the Board of Trade today.

A rally carried the prices above the marginal gains that they had shown through most of the day.

Some of the support came from speculative buying in wheat and short covering and corn.

Much of the trading showed an uneasiness as traders awaited word on the prospects of relief from the serious dry spell in the western corn and soybean belt.

There also was uncertainty about how much grain the Soviet Union ultimately will buy from the United States.

Soybeans were the biggest gainers with advances up to 11 cents at the close. Soybean oil closed 20 to 60 points higher and meal was up slightly.

Trading remained halted in Western Supplies A for the second day pending disclosure of the company's reaction to an offer announced Thursday by Inter-City Gas Ltd. New York

The market drifted steadily downward today, beset by continuing inflation and interest rate worries.

Trading was light.

Losers opened up a lead of better than 2 to 1 at New York.

At the opening, the government reported that the unemployment rate eased to 8.4 per cent in July from 8.6 the month before.

But analysts said it appeared investors' attention was fixed on inflation and the interest rate outlook.

The primary subject of concern in the inflation picture was the potential impact of Soviet grain purchases and dry weather in some farming areas on food prices.

Brokers also noted uneasiness about weekly Federal Reserve statistics issued after Thursday's close, which were taken as evidence of further tightening by the Fed in its monetary policy.

Montreal

Prices were lower in most sectors in moderate trading today at Montreal.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. (EDT) was 153,400 shares, compared with 326,600 shares traded up to the same time Thursday.

International Nickel A was off ¾ to $27¼, Imperial Oil A ⅜ to $27⅜, Dofasco A ⅜ to $26⅜, IAC ⅜ to $18¾, Imperial Bank of Commerce ½ to $25¾, Domtar ⅛ to $23¾ and Chrysler Corp. ¼ to $12⅞, while Abitibi Paper was up ⅛ to $11⅛.

The Financial Times index was off 1.8 to 281.5 in mid-session trading.

Prices of Canadian issues also slipped in light trading.

Manitoba Hikes Forest Royalty

WINNIPEG (CP) — Royalty rates paid by Abitibi Paper Co. for softwoods taken from Crown land have been increased sharply under a new five-year agreement with the Manitoba government.

The new agreement boosts royalties on softwoods taken from the east side of Lake Winnipeg to $9 a cord from $1.84, and for other areas to $7.30 a cord from $1.47. It is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975.

The company now will take wood on a volume basis from designated areas. It will no longer have to pay a fire-guard charge of $12.80 per square mile, or a $2 "ground rent" fee.

Harvey Bostrom, Manitoba minister of lands and forests said the two charges have been abandoned because Abitibi will not have exclusive control of the areas. The fire-guard costs will be assumed by the provincial government.

The new rate structure is subject to adjustments during the contract, in line with transportation costs borne by the company and with the price Abitibi gets for its pulp mill products.

A six-member committee, responsible for forest-management planning and timber utilization, is to be established. Three members are to be named by Abitibi and three by the government.

RIDING THE RAILS – Just one of the thousands of desperate men who criss-crossed Canada in search of a living. (Photo courtesy of Glenbow-Alberta Institute, Calgary.)

Four Half-Hour Documentaries Recalling The Great Depression Of The 1930s In Canada, For Telecast On CBC-TV In Prime Time

Hard Times, a four-part series of half-hour documentaries presents "memories of the 1930s in Canada", combining newsreel footage from the era, archival stills, and the reminiscences of some Canadians to whom the Great Depression is living history. They lived through it, and survived.

Written, produced and directed by David Rabinovitch, and edited from the original eight-part series which drew enthusiastic audience response when telecast on Take 30 during the season just past, Hard Times will be telecast on CBC-TV in prime time, starting Monday, August 4, at 10:30 p.m. Ed Reid is on-camera host-interviewer.

Fascination with the thirties is a relatively recent phenomenon, but the nostalgic reminiscences of these four outstanding films focus not only on the hard times, but on the personal bonds forged by common hardships and economic disaster.

Monday, August 4, 10:30
Part 1 – The Dust Bowl

The Great Depression was signalled not only by the collapse of the stock market, but by such unpredictable factors as adverse weather conditions. In Saskatchewan, one of the hardest hit areas in Canada, the bottom fell out of the wheat trade, and then came a drought of biblical intensity. In Manitoba and Alberta as well, the dust storms drove people to the cities in a fruitless search for work. Recalling what it was like are George Shepherd, a Saskatchewan rancher during the "dirty thirties"; Ed Russenholt, a conservationist; Abe Kanee, who was a miller in Weyburn during the depression; Dr. Moe Pearce, then a country doctor in Stoughton, Sask.; and John Pott, a Saskatoon blacksmith. Russenholt, Kanee and Pearce now all live in Winnipeg.

Monday, August 11, 10:30
Part 2 – Riding the Rails

With unemployment in the thirties soaring above 25 per cent of the Canadian population, hundreds of thousands of men took to "riding the rails" – criss-crossing the country in search of work. They rode on top of freight cars, inside freight cars, and clinging to the rods underneath. Mrs. Grace Shaen of Thunder Bay recalls seeing them off the trains in front of her parents' home – "they were hungry people". Retired Winnipeg police chief John Webster remembers the despair of the jobless: ". . . It's a wonder there wasn't a revolution in the country at that time." But the thirties had frivolities, too. Miss Toronto of 1937, the former Billie Hallam (now Mrs. Billie Maeda of Oakville) recalls the way it was to be a beauty contest winner during the depression. Others interviewed on this program: Michael Fenwick, now a union organizer in Toronto; Ed Russenholt, Winnipeg; Beatrice Brigden, a Winnipeg school teacher.

Tuesday, August 26, 10:30
Part 3 – On To Ottawa

The third program in the four-part Hard Times series focuses on the social ferment of the thirties, particularly the "on to Ottawa" trek of the unemployed emanating from government-run work camps. Its goal was Ottawa, and its slogan, "Work and Wages". It began in Vancouver on June 4, 1935, when 1,000 men boarded freights headed east. Prime Minister R.B. Bennett sent two cabinet ministers to meet the trekkers in Regina. Eight leaders were chosen to proceed to Ottawa, and on Dominion Day, 1935, 3,000 people gathered in Regina to mark their return from the capital. The R.C.M.P. also met them, and a riot broke out. One policeman was killed, and over 100 people were injured. In this program, some people who participated in or witnessed these events are interviewed: Homer Stevens, a B.C. fisherman; Ed Russenholt; John Ediger, now a Winnipeg businessman, who was wounded in the Regina riot; Beatrice Brigden; Winnipeg alderman Joseph Zuken, who helped organize the Winnipeg contingent of trekkers; and retired Winnipeg police chief John Webster.

Tuesday, September 2, 10:30
Part 4 – of "Hard Times"

Conclusion of this nostalgic look at "living history" – memories of the 1930s in Canada.

Ed Reid Is Host of "Hard Times"

Host-interviewer for "Hard Times" Ed Reid hardly recalls the era himself, but after talking to people who lived through the Great Depression he feels like an expert. Born in Toronto, Reid had a creative childhood, was an amateur cartoonist and once studied art under Arthur Lismer. He made his first 8mm film at the age of 13, and grew up in Montreal to become cartoonist for the McGill University daily and attain a B.A. there in English and history. Then he moved to Ottawa to work for Crawley Films.

After winning a clutch of film awards, he joined CBC in 1960 as a radio producer, and while working on Matineé began to contribute to CBC-TV's Take 30. In the early seventies he became a regular co-host and producer of that series.

Flap (xxx), on 8 at 9, and 6 at 11:15. Anthony Quinn is excellent in this 1970 mixture of comedy and social comment about a rambunctious American Indian determined to draw attention to the plight of his tribe.

The Family Kovack, on 7 at 11. A 1974 pilot for a proposed series about a closely knit family, featuring a cast of unknowns. The drama surrounds the efforts of the family to prove the oldest son innocent of bribery.

Klondike Annie (xxx), on 11 at 11. Mae West is excellent in this 1936 comedy set in the Gay Ninties, about a San Francisco saloon entertainer who commits a crime, and then flees to the Yukon disguised as a lady evangelist.

The President's Analyst (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. An original and entertaining 1967 satire which benefits greatly from a smooth performance by James Coburn as a psychiatrist with the delicate assignment as secret headshrinker to the U.S. President. Highlighted by wild chase sequences and some amusing lampoons of the telephone company and the FBI.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (xxxx), on 5 at 11:35. Maggie Smith won an Oscar for her brilliant performance in this 1969 comedy-drama about an extrordinary teacher at an exclusive girls' school, circa the late 1930s. The story ends on an unhappy note but Miss Brodie's contagious joie de vivre and final defeat, as interpreted by Miss Smith, remains long after the film is over. Recommended.

Nevada Smith (xx), on 8 at midnight. The character who appeared in Harold Robbins' The Carpetbaggers gets a film of his own in this 1966 western drama, that finds Nevada tracking down the killers of his parents. Steve McQueen, Suzanne Pleshette and Karl Malden star.

Catholics (xxxx), on 7 at 12:30. Trevor Howard, Martin Sheen and Cyril Cusack star in this acclaimed 1973 made-for-television movie set in the future, at a time when the Catholic Church is undergoing a great change. The drama focuses on a monastic community off the Irish coast, that defies Vatican policy by continuing to celebrate the Mass in Latin instead of English.

Plaza Suite (xxx), on 6 at 1:15. An excellent cast (Walter Matthau, Lee Grant, Maureen Stapleton) stars in this 1970 film rendering of a Neil Simon comedy play set in New York's Plaza Hotel. Matthau plays three separate roles in as many stories.

In Cold Blood (xxxx), on 8 at 1:55. Richard Brooks directed this skillful and difficult 1967 film adaptation of Truman Capote's searing novel about two young ex-cons who slaughtered a Kansas farmer and his family in cold blood. Gripping scenes, played in stark documentary style, build to the actual multiple murders. Cast includes Robert Blake (Baretta), Scott Wilson and John Forsythe.

Live Coverage Of NFL Classic

The 1975 Pro Football Hall of Fame Game will be covered live and exclusively by ABC Sports on a special expanded three-hour version of "ABC's Wide World of Sports," airing Saturday, August 2 (1:00-4:00 p.m.,), on the ABC Television Network.

ABC Sportscasters for the Pro Football Hall of Fame Game will be the broadcasting team for ABC Sports NFL Monday Night Football, Frank Gifford, Howard Cosell and Alex Karras.

This year's Hall of Fame Game will pit the AFC Cincinnati Bengals, who finished last season with a 7-7 record, against the Washington Redskins, who ended up with a 10-4 mark, equal to the record of the NFC Eastern Division Champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The Bengals should be considerably improved this year. Last year, the team was plagued by a series of injuries. They'll be counting heavily on quarterback Ken Anderson, 1974's league-leading passer with a 64.9 per cent completion record and 8.13 yards per attempt in 1974. Wide receiver Isaac Curtis and running back Boobie Clark should also play important roles.

For the Redskins, quarterback Billy Kilmer will be aiming frequently for wide receiver Charley Taylor. The backfield roster includes Larry Brown, coming off knee surgery and a poor season, Moses Denson, Duane Thomas and Charlie Evans, the former New York Giants player.

In the four inter-conference contests held since the merger of the American and National Football Leagues, the National Conference has won the Hall of Fame Game three times to the American conference's one victory.

Battle Brewing In Golf Tourney

The final two rounds of the Westchester Classic from Harrison, N.Y., will be televised live and in color on KSTW-TV, Channel Eleven, at 2:00 p.m. on both Saturday, August 2, and Sunday, August 3.

The incredible Johnny Miller, valiantly trying to replace Jack Nicklaus as the golden boy of golf, was spectacular in winning the $250,000 Westchester Classic last year, one of his eight tournament triumphs for 1974.

Not only did Miller leave Nicklaus back in the pack on the ~~final round~~, but he wound up with a tourney record of 269, 19-under par, after shooting what he called "a near-perfect round" of 65 the third day.

Don Bies was second, two strokes off the pace while Tom Weiskopf, who finished third at 272, had the further satisfaction of becoming golf's seventh million-dollar winner.

Will Miller collect the $50,000 first prize again? With the kind of field attracted annually by the purse and prestige of the Westchester Classic, it might well take another record performance to win the 1975 edition.

PBS PROFILE IN MUSIC

Charles Ives, one of America's most controversial and outstanding composers, is celebrated in a one-hour special, CHARLES IVES: AN AMERICAN ORIGINAL, August 2 at 9:00 p.m. on KCTS-9. The words and music of this genius combine with the beauty of Concord, Massachusetts on a fall day for a unique musical experience.

The program, which marks the centennial of Ives' birth, features selections performed by Harvey Hinshaw, a professor of music at the University of Nebraska and a student of Ives' music. Miami performer William Hindman reads and interprets Ives' revealing notes about his Sonatas, and their portrayal of the Concord Transcendentalists, Emerson, Thoreau, Alcott and Hawthorne.

Through the use of a variety of striking color scenes, the program also evokes the mood and spirit of historical Concord. The beauty of Walden Pond, the warmth and intimacy of the Alcott home, and the majestic sweep of the Concord countryside are all captured.

Charles Ives: An American Original is produced by WPBT-Miami as part of Miami's continuing Charles Ives Centennial Festival. Jeanne Wolf is producer.

New Kids Series Tries to Top Sesame Street

By JOEL DREYFUSS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Consider Scoop's Place, a neighborhood candy store frozen in time with revolving soda fountain stools, candy dispensers, rack of potato chip bags, banana splits with double scoops of ice cream and a door that bangs open and shut constantly, with a stream of customers on a first-name basis with the owner.

Innovative

The store is just one of the settings for an innovative program expected to air in January on the PBS network with the aim of "making math relevant, entertaining and not frightening" to children between the ages of 3 an 11.

The two most influential children's television programs to date have been Sesame Street and Electric Company, produced by The Children's Television Workshop for public television.

Producer of the new show is the Educational Development Centre, which has no connection with Children's Televison Workshop. It was set up by a group of Harvard and MIT professors in Newton, Mass., which obtained a $4 million grant for the federal Office of Education to develop the math program. The Scoop's Place segment is being produced for EDC by Family of Man, Ltd., a young New York production group.

Most discussions of school achievement focus on reading levels and the ability of children to make meaning of words, but an equally serious problem is mathematical "illiteracy," the inability to use numbers in a world that is increasingly technological and numerical.

"Essentially," says EDC executive producer Jesus Trevino, "we feel the old math taught a lot of rote processes that are important to know but get superceded by computers."

The new math, Trevino said, went to the other extreme of abstract concepts that weren't always practical.

To get its ideas across, the math show will also use a Hispanic segment being produced in Los Angeles as well as animation and documentary film techniques.

"We are trying to draw from the child's own experiences," said Trevino, "from his everyday use of mathematics. We are trying to combat this whole mathophobia." The targeted audience is primarily, but not exclusively, black and Hispanic children.

From the kind of conceptual problems EDC has run into, getting ideas such as estimation, averaging and probability across the phosphorescent screen is at least as difficult as it sounds.

Amorality

A pilot prepared last March was withdrawn and a new one is being prepared for showing in August. Even the original name of the overall program, Count Us In, is being reconsidered.

The Scoop's Place segment, however, continues to roll out its projected 65 segments for the math show. Scoop is Arnold Johnson, who starred in the film Putney Shope, and the store is peopled by youngsters with names like Pretty Boy, Sugar Pie and Miss Marie.

The setting and the store are the responsibility of Gregory Brown and his partner Michael Johnson, partners in Family of Man. Brown remembered working in neighborhood stores like Scoop's. The company found a gutted drugstore and built the candy store from scratch.

In addition to the mathematical concepts required in their contract with EDC, they have added something they consider just as important: moral values for everyday living.

"The amorality of children's television disturbed us," Johnson said during an interview in his offices on New York's West 57th Street. "We grew up with Sky King, Superman and Mickey Mouse. They had their problems but they were also little passion plays."

"We felt that 'Sesame Street' was essentially harmful," Johnson said with youthful disregard about what many would consider the almost-sacrilegious content of his statement. He said that the short "bits" of Sesame Street, for example, were based on studies of the effectiveness of televison commercials in holding children's attention.

Communication

"We effectively broke what we called the five-minute barrier," Johnson explained. "While 60 seconds might get a message across (to children) it might also condition them to expect 30-to-60-second messages."

As a result, some of the Scoop segments run from three to seven or eight minutes. And beyond the math concepts, the moral message rings through quite clearly.

The language and style of the characters in Scoop's Place are definitely from an urban ghetto. "We're primarily interested in communication," said Johnson, anticipating some flap about the program's use of language. "The very first conflict for kids is language. That establishes a polarity between school and a child's real-life experiences."

Some of the language in the segments (none of it obscene) is at first jarring but soon becomes natural.

Each of the 30-minute math shows will emphasize a particular concept. A segment on the use of maps, for exampe, will illustrate different aspects of the problem through animation as well as dramatic segments.

The Scoop's Place vignette on maps has a youth group planning a march to City Hall and discussing ways of avoiding confusion. A map of the streets leading to City Hall is produced, showing the route that will be followed and the locations for picking up different organizations.

Another segment shows the captain of the high school track team resisting a girl's effort to join. She pulls out a graph of her running times to refute his contention that she isn't fast enough. When he switches to a sexist argument, Scoop comes to the rescue with a lecture about equality that illustrates the two-pronged approach of Johnson and Brown.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE — Shirley Jones and James Stewart star in the 1970 western comedy, The Cheyenne Social Club, about a Texas cowboy who inherits a bordello in a small post-Civil War town. The movie also stars Henry Fonda and will be telecast on Channel 8 at 8 p.m.

FRIENDLY GIANT COMES OF AGE

Television's Friendly Giant has turned 21 years of age.

The children's morning weekday series has been continuously on CBC-TV since 1958 and for the four years prior to that the series originated from the University of Wisconsin in Madison, to the U.S. National Educational Television network.

Bob Homme has been the Friendly Giant for those 21 years, and looks forward to another 21 years.

"It's been a pleasing, gratifying and exciting time," he says. "As they say, I've combined my vocation with my avocation. I do what I like to do."

And he adds that 21 is a good age for a "giant."

But to the pre-schoolers who watch him, Friendly Giant is ageless.

The format has changed little since that time. He has an intimate rapport with his young audience, captivating them in the telling of stories. There's also the loving relationship with the puppets, Jerome the giraffe and Rusty the rooster. The voices of Jerome and Rusty are supplied by Rod Coneybeare.

Homme always writes his own material, and he has never tired of his role, though he has avoided publicity for himself, preferring to maintain the illusion of the "friendly giant."

The series is seen Mondays through Fridays at 9:45 a.m. on CBC-TV.

EFREM ZIMBALIST JR.

JOANNE WOODWARD
. . . on 7 at midnight

The Great Ice Rip-Off (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A 1974 made-for-television crime-drama about a diamond robbery, starring Gig Young and Lee J. Cobb.

The Flying Saucer (xx), on 11 at 1. Alberto Sordi, playing four different roles, stars in this Italian-made science-fiction account of what happens when an invasion from Mars is threatened. Filmed in 1965 and co-starring Silvano Mangano and Monica Vitti.

When the Boys Meet the Girls (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A 1965 re-make of the Judy Garland-Mickey Rooney musical, Girl Crazy, this one starring Connie Stevens, Harve Presnell and Herman's Hermits.

A Fever in the Blood (xxx), on 11 at 9. A competent cast (Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Angie Dickinson, Don Ameche and Jack Kelly) highlights this compact 1961 drama about political corruption and courtroom tensions, revolving around a judge, a D.A. and a senator — all with their eye on the governor's chair — who use a murder trail to further their political ambitions.

Murder By Proxy, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this recently-made-for-television mystery drama about a legacy of death left by a electronics-firm president who promised all potential successors that they would join him in the grave. Cast includes Lawrence Pressman and John Randolph.

Thank You All Very Much (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Sandy Dennis gives an excellent performance in this 1969 drama about an American student in London, facing unwed motherhood. The film does not moralize or patronize, but provides a touching, unsentimental portrait of a vulnerable, but refreshingly independent young woman.

The War of the Worlds (xxx), on 2 at midnight. A fascinating 1953 science-fiction thriller, highlighted by magnificent special effects. A must for fantasy fans, starring Gene Barry and Ann Robinson.

The Southern Star (xx), on 6 at midnight. George Segal, Ursula Andress and Orson Welles star in this lively 1969 adventure based on the Jules Verne story about the ups and downs of jewel thieves in the wilds of Africa, circa 1900. The cast plays it for fun but the on-location scenery of Senegal, West Africa, is the film's best feature.

Count Three and Pray (xxx), on 7 at midnight. A first-rate 1955 western drama about a Civil War veteran and his influence on a small town when he becomes a self-ordained minister. Cast includes Van Heflin, Raymond Burr and Joanne Woodward (who is excellent in her first major role).

Upstairs and Downstairs (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Anne Heywood and Michael Craig star in this charming 1960 British-made domestic comedy about a young married couple and their problems in obtaining the right servant girl.

Privilege (xxx), on 7 at 2. Peter Watkins (The War Game) directed this unusual 1967 English-made drama, which looks into a future society in which a pop singer works a Svengali influence over British youth.

The Happy Time (xxx), on 8 at 2:05. A charming 1952 comedy about the ups and downs in the daily lives of an eccentric family headed by Charles Boyer. Others in an excellent cast include Louis Jourdan and Linda Christian.

Wilson (xxxx), on 6 at 2:10. Alexander Knox is superb in this excellent 1944 biography of the U.S. First World War President Woodrow Wilson. The story begins with Wilson at Princeton and follows him all the way to his futile attempts to make the U.S. part of the League of Nations. Geraldine Fitzgerald is excellent in a supporting role.

Carol Survives A Tough Medium

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

WASHINGTON (WP) — Carol Burnett at 40 is preparing for a ninth season of headlining her own television variety show and, without a doubt, qualifies as the most durable comedienne around.

She has survived in a medium that devoured the likes of Julie Andrews in one season; that frustrated a Judy Garland, and that sent Dinah Shore into the relative security of daytime television.

Television has always been difficult for the woman who headlines a show, a point that Carol once summarized this way: "I think it's necessary for a comedienne to maintain her femininity, but I'm afraid I lose it. I'm not a stand-up comedian. I think I'd die if I had to just stand there and tell jokes."

She almost never tells jokes, and when she does, they are supplied by a 10-person writing staff that works under executive producer Joe Hamilton, who happens to be the husband of Carol Burnett. The weekly production budget averages $260,000.

CAROL BURNETT
. . . never stale

The femininity that Burnett worries about losing is insured against loss by the work of clothes designer Guy Aghayan, whose gowns cost from $2,000 upward, and which are never worn off-camera. The clothes and three daughfers — Carrie Louise, 11; Joday Ann, 8, and Erin Kate, 7 — assure that Carol never has that insecure stridency that ruins so many long-running TV performers.

With her Mortimer Snerd smile and an incredible discipline, she has never become the stale kind of performer who never provides surprises.

She has been on public view, off and on, since 1954, when she worked 13 weeks with ventriloquist Paul Winchell on his TV show. She learned a few things about timing and pacing from Winchell and, better for her, it resolved some doubts about herself; "When I came to New York, I thought I was too loud for TV. But I got a job working on The Paul Winchell Show."

She also worked with a rising professional comic named Buddy Hackett, and while that 1956 series lasted only one season, it did provide a showcase for Burnett's comedic skills.

Hackett, who can be just about the funniest man in the world, has never tried another television series. He doesn't have to, for the simple reason that he's a highly paid headliner in the nation's top night clubs. Carol, however, has rarely been out of TV.

Much of the audience overlooks her work with Winchell and Hackett and remembers only the attention-grabbing comedy song she sang three times in one week on national tevevision in 1957.

Carol was working at the Blue Angel in New York and stopping the show almost every performance with a song written by Ken Welch. It was a parody on the youngsters, who, even then, were going wild over rock 'n' roll music performers.

Welch did a switch and had Carol referring to the Secretary of State with "I Made a Fool of Myself Over John Foster Dulles." She sang it for Jack Paar on a Tuesday night Tonight program and was invited back to repeat the number for Paar the following Friday. She did it again the following Sunday on The Ed Sullivan Show. Carol Burnett has been a star ever since.

She became a regular on The Garry Moore Show, went on Broadway in Once Upon a Mattress and, inevitably, wound up back in California with her own TV series.

She may have been over-extended in 1974 when she went on the road with Rock Hudson in I Do! I Do! and appeared as a prostitute in the latest film version of The Front Page.

Whatever the reason, her Saturday night (CBS) television series showed some slippage in the ratings. An analysis of the weekly audience estimates from the A. C. Nielsen Company shows that Carol's program, which had rarely been out of the top 20, dipped several times into the bottom half of the ratings.

Sometimes the slip was understandable. For example, when NBC's Saturday Night at the Movies played the first half of The Godfather, Carol's rating was cut in half, and that week her show skidded to 56th place among the 62 prime-time shows. Her ratings were also hurt when NBC's movie was something such as an all-Disney schedule, a Charlie Varrick, an Oklahoma Crude or when ABC-TV offered The Summer of '42.

The slippage hasn't gone unnoticed at CBS-TV, and with the new season, the viewer may find stronger guest performers and not quite so many, so frequent, appearances by Steve Lawrence and Tim Conway.

There isn't much left for Carol to win. She has awards galore. With those awards, the problems of The Carol Burnett Show seem minor, and the great probability is that at the end of the ninth season the biggest problem will be, "What do we do for a 10th season?"

Switzer Hosts Noon Show

Bob Switzer is becoming an increasingly familiar face on CBC-TV this summer.

The busy Vancouver-based broadcaster has just finished taking viewers of World Aquarium on a seven-week undersea tour. And now, hardly pausing to catch his breath, Switzer is again about to surface — this time as the host of his own noonday talk series, The Bob Switzer Show, starting Monday, August 4, on Channel 2.

The hour-long show, which is to be seen each weeekday until the end of August, is a regular season feature of CBUT, Vancouver, but this marks its debut on CBC owned-and-operated stations and affiliates elsewhere in the country. The programs are all new and of general as well as local audience appeal, producer Doug Gillingham having lined-up an interesting assortment of guests ranging from botanists to bellydancers.

Age 47, Bob Switzer has two decades of experience as a CBC broadcaster. He has stumped the country coast-to-coast to do radio and TV commentary on everything from royal tours to the Quebec Winter Carnival, and has travelled through the U.S., Mexico, Hawaii and England for other programs. Before getting into broadcasting he also held jobs as varied as the people he now interviews, working as a seaman, lifeguard, cook, carwasher and, says Switzer, a "very bad, shoe salesman."

CANADIAN ALL-STAR SONG PARADE—A one-hour musical special, hosted by Alex Trebek (above), featuring hit songs by Canadian writers from the 1800s to the present day, will be telecast on Tuesday at 7 p.m. on Channel 8. Highlights include a sequence of war-time songs and a medley of Gordon Lightfoot-Joni Mitchell hits.

Tribute to Our Song Writers

Most Canadians are probably not aware that the song, I'll Never Smile Again, was written in ten minutes, by a Toronto widow in memory of her late husband. This pop standard and many more familiar favorites, are featured in The Canadian All Star Song Parade, a 60-minute special on the CTV Television Network, Tuesday, August 5, 7:00-8:00 p.m.

Host Alex Trebek takes the audience back to the 1800's and The Darktown Strutters Ball, written by Shelton Brooks, a native of Amherstberg, Ontario, then continues with a musical journey through time to the present, and the Bachman Turner Overdrive hit called Let It Ride.

A potpourri of 40 songs written by Canadians are performed by Alex, Doug Crossley, Chad Allan and a group of young Winnipeg singers. Songwriter Chad Allan was one of the originators of Canada's first internationally successful rock group, The Guess Who.

Highlights include a sequence of war-time songs, a Gordon Lightfoot-Joni Mitchell medley, a country music segment, and numerous hit parade songs such as Swinging Shepherd Blues, K-K-K-Katy, Suzanne, Snowbird, Diana, Mon Pays, The World Is Waiting For The Sunrise, and many more all-time favorites.

Series Takes a Film Tour Of Famed National Parks

Legacy, a series produced in recognition of the U.S. National Parks Centennial, returns to Channel 9 with its studies of six of America's most magnificent parks — ranging from Florida's Everglades to Washington's Olympic National Park.

Each program in this series — which will be seen Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. beginning August 5 — deals with a different park, and the people who have created and maintained them. Each show reflects the character of the land and people being described.

Fittingly enough, the series starts with Yellowstone National Park, the grandfather of all the parks, and the first of its kind to be placed under federal management. After some difficult years, its success as a form of land management became apparent, and in 1892 it inspired the establishment of other national parks, and the development of the national park system itself. Rock formations and geyser activity make Yellowstone one of the wonders of the world of nature and a place of unique geology.

Program number two features Acadia National Park, located mostly on Mount Desert Island — the largest island off the coast of Maine. Acadia is a remarkable combination of bold granite mountains, coastal headlands, cliffs, lakes, streams, bay peninsulas, islands and ocean. It is unequaled in topographical variety and scenic beauty along the entire Atlantic shoreline.

The Everglades National Park, established in 1947 to preserve the sprawling subtropical wilderness, is the focus of the third program. A complex of unique plant and animal communities the Everglades boasts crocodiles, manatees, roseate spoonbills, reddish egrets, wood storks and bald eagles. But despite its rare offerings, the Evergaldes is being threatened.

An entirely different atmospere is captured in program four, a view of the lofty peaks of the Grand Tetons. This park encompasses pyramids of 2½ billion year old glacier carved rock, forested lower slopes, and a basin known as Jackson Hole. Discussion at the park revolves around the feeling of inspiration that the park offers to climbers and tourists alike.

The newest of the National Parks — Arches National Park in Utah — was created in 1971. A national monument since 1929, the subject of the fifth pogram lies in the heart of red rock country in southeastern Utah. In its 137 square miles, there are more natural stone arches, windows, spires and pinnacles than in any other known section of the United States.

Olympic National Park closes the series. The peninsula's 1,400 square miles contains a unique wilderness of rugged mountains, rain forests, wildlife, glaciers, lakes, streams and seascapes.

SHAW PLAY ON CBC RADIO

In more than one instance, George Bernard Shaw was ahead of his time. In his 1929 political comedy, The Apple Cart, Shaw created two women cabinet ministers, a notion unheard of at that time. In act II, the American Ambassador, Vanhattan, declares that the United States has decided to rejoin the British Empire, a suggestion echoed recently when a society in Virginia made a similar recommendation on the eve of the bicentennial of the Declaration of Independence, no less.

The uncanny timeliness of The Apple Cart will be demonstrated in a CBC Tuesday Night production, August 5 at 8:03 p.m. on CBC Radio. This 90-minute political extravaganza, minus the interlude (which is little more than a wrestling match between King Magnus and his mistress Orinthia) will be repeated on CBC-GM's Encore, Thurs., Aug. 7 at 7:03 p.m.

Producer Peter Donkin has directed two other Shaw plays for CBC Tuesday Night, You Never Can Tell and Caesar and Cleopatra, all adapted by actor-writer John Bethune. And once again, Lucio Agostini has created the background music.

One of Canada's most accomplished actors, Chris Wiggins, plays the charming and canny King Magnus, who refuses to become a mere puppet subject to the whims of the cabinet, headed by Prime Minister Proteus. The drama begins with a confrontation with Boanerges, president of the board of trade (Budd Knapp), who also demands that the king yield to his ministers.

The Apple Cart was written for the First Malvern Festival in 1929, but Shaw, as always unpredictable as to who would win the rights to first perform his plays, gave the honor to the Teatr Polski in Warsaw. It was presented there on June 14, 1929, and later at Malvern, on August 19 it received its English premiere. In that production, Cedric Hardwicke played Magnus, and Edith Evans, Orinthia.

Fat City (xxxx), on 8 at 9. A deeply moving 1972 drama, directed by John Houston, about a washed-up 31-year-old boxer, brilliantly portrayed by Stacy Keach. Not essentially about the fight game, the literate and heartbreaking script zeroes in on the lonely, empty life of some of the urban poor and their limited expectations. The film also boasts a remarkable supporting performance by newcomer Susan Tyrell, who earned an Oscar nomination for her portrayal of a sherry-drinking, alcoholic floozie.

Honeymoon (xxx), on 11 at 9. Classical dance and music lovers will enjoy this 1959 English-made drama about a newly-wed former ballerina who is persuaded to return to the dance, displeasing her new husband. Sir Thoma Beecham conducted the music to which famed ballerina Ludmilla Tcherina dances to.

Gunn (xx), on 12 at 11:30. Craig Stevens repeats his Peter Gunn TV role in this 1967 crime-drama about a private eye investigating the murder of a gangland boss.

Just For You (xxx), on 2 at midnight. An entertaining 1952 comedy-drama about a successful Broadway producer who sets out to win the affection of his family after a long period of concentrating on his career, starring Bing Crosby, Jane Wyman and Natalie Wood.

Assignment: Munich (xx), on 6 at midnight. A 1972 pilot for the now-defunct TV series, Assignment: Vienna, about an American agent operating out of Munich. Cast includes Roy Schneider, Richard Basehart, Robert Reed and Parnell Roberts.

Smoky (xx), on 7 at midnight. Fess Parker and Diana Hyland star in this sentimental 1966 film rendering of Will James, classic story of a cowboy and his horse.

De Sade, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1969 movie version of the life of the notorious 18th-century marquis who became an expert on debauchery, starring Keir Dullea, Senta Berger and Lilli Palmer. (Frankly, I am surprised to find this film listed, as several years ago I saw some stills from it, and it's pretty raunchy. I suspect it will be heavily edited for television, and will not be the least bit surprised if the network pulls it at the last minute — Ed.)

The Hunters (xx), on 7 at 2. A 1958 Korean War drama, directed by the late Dick Powell and starring Robert Mitchum, Robert Wagner, Richard Egan and May Britt.

I Sailed to Tahiti with an All-Girl Crew (x), on 6 at 2:06. Lightweight 1968 comedy-adventure with a self-explanatory title.

Fire Down Below (xx), on 8 at 2:25. Robert Mitchum, Rita Hayworth and Jack Lemmon star in this 1957 drama about a shady lady who comes between two fishing boat partners.

Actor Recalls His Days as A Steel Worker

"Who said you can't go home again?"

So asked Karl Malden, starring as Det. Lt. Mike Stone on the ABC Television Network's The Streets of San Francisco.

Before embarking upon an acting career, Malden had worked in the steel mills in Gary, Indiana. One day, on his hiatus from the series, Malden took time to go back "home" — to the Kaiser Steel Corporation located in Fontana, a Los Angeles suburb.

"I quit college during my freshman year when I got clobbered in football and ran out of money at the same time. I returned to Gary in the midst of the Depression. I found a job — after two years — in a steel mill. I worked for two years as a 'cinder snapper' on U.S. Steels' No. 2 open hearth. It was the roughest job on the floor — cracking the brick to let the liquid flow through. I was damned lucky to have the job," Malden related.

"When the mill in Fontana was started, more than 3,000 men were hired from Gary. Most of the men were Serbian and they dubbed the new town in California 'Little Gary.'

"Going to Fontana was such an enjoyable experience," said Malden. "It was marvelous reliving a part of my life. And what a thrill to see 255 tons of molten steel being tapped from an open hearth furnace. And watching a crane pull a white-hot steel ingot from a soaking pit for delivery to a rolling mill. (Temperatures for this procedure vary from 2,800 to 3,000 degrees.) I enjoyed recapturing the days I spent in the mill again and talking to the guys. Things, of course, have changed. For instance, when the cinders would get stuck in our throats in Gary, there were always barrels of lemons around to suck on to help clear our throats. Now, the men are given a special kind of lozenge to alleviate this condition.

"Yes, sir, you can go home again," Malden concluded.

Television Couple Host Fifties Nostalgia Series

Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy return to the screen with memories of their fifteen years on live television on When Television Was Live!, a new seven part series to be shown Tuesdays at 8:00 p.m. on KCTS-9 beginning August 5. (Each show will be rebroadcast Saturdays at 6:30 p.m. commencing August 8.)

Peter and Mary come to the series — which Peter wrote — with their own collection of film clips of memorable moments of early television, and with background information and anecdotes about each glorious black and white episode. Clips from programs such as Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town and Peter and Mary include 1950s views of celebrities Frank Sinatra, Ethel Merman, John Bubbles, Arthur Godfrey, Edward R. Murrow, Perry Como and Gordon MacRae.

From their Las Vegas home, Peter and Mary reminisce — in the back-and-forth comic rapport characteristic of their earlier act — about their personal experiences: their son Michael's reaction to the intrusion of a "Person to Person" crew; their "security search" for their "straight from the White House performance" for President Eisenhower; their guest co-hosting of the "Toast of the Town;" and many other hunumerous incidents from their careers.

Minimata: A Tragedy

The husband and wife photojournalist team of Eugene and Aileen Smith join Robert Cromie on Book Beat, August 6 at 7:30 p.m. (rebroadcast August 11 at 7:00 p.m.) to share their story of the inhabitants of the Japanese fishing village of Minimata.

These villagers fell victim to "Minimata's Disease" — with its ominous symptoms of numbness, slurred speech, cessation of motor functions and, often, death. It was soon recognized that the disease was a result of mercury poisoning from the industrial wastes of the giant Chisso Corporation. The residents of Minimata ate — and still eat — the fish contaminated by the mercury, just as Americans still eat chemical preservatives and breathe smoggy air: it is their way of life. Doctors estimate that as many as 10,000 people suffer from "Minimata's Diesase."

CHORAL CONCERTS ON CBC RADIO

CBC Radio offers a feast of choral music in August as it broadcasts performances from the 1975 Vancouver Choirs Festival.

The concerts, all recorded at St. John's Church (Shaughnessy) in Vancouver, are heard on part two of Themes and Variations for four weeks, Thursdays at 8:03 p.m., starting August 7. CBC-FM listeners can hear the programs in stereo Wednesdays at 7:03 p.m. starting August 6.

Many of the works heard are by Brahms, although the music ranges Vaughan Williams and Harry Somers in the 20th century.

Hosts Karen Kieser nd Harry Mannis start off the month August 7 by introducing the Gallery Singers of Vancouver, a choir which in 1972 reached the semi-finals in the international choral competiton, Let the Peoples Sing, a series broadcast annually on CBC Radio.

The 120 - voice Vancouver Bach Choir is heard with organist Edward Norman and pianist Joyce McGuire Aug. 14. Conductors are Simon Streatfield and Jon Washburn. The following week, the Vancouver Chamber Choir performs Brahms' Liebeslieder Waltzes with pianists Linda-Lee Thomas and Robert Rogers. Under it conductor Jan Washburn, the Choir captured the mixed voices trophy in the 1973 edition of Let the Peoples Sing.

Aug. 28, the Vancouver Cantata Singers are heard under the direction of James Fankhauser.

The Four Choirs Festival was recorded by Don Kowalchuk, Don Mowatt and George Laverock. Co-ordinating producer of Themes and Variations is Diana Brown.

Movies

The Pursuit of Happiness, on 8 at 12:45. No rating available on this 1971 drama, set in Manhattan, about youth versus the Establishment, starring Michael Sarrazin and Arthur Hill.

Kimberley Jim (xx), on 11 at 1. A 1965 South African-made adventure about two gamblers who win a diamond mine in a poker game and try to keep it running. Jim Reeves and Clive Parnell star.

Quentin Durward (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Robert Taylor, Kay Kendall and Robert Morely star in this entertaining 1955 English-made costume adventure, based on Sir Walter Scott's tale of action and intrigue in 15th-century France.

The Caretakers (x), on 5 at 9. The delicate subject to mental illness has been crudely and insensitively handled in this 1963 melodrama about a young woman who suffers a mental breakdown, and is treated at a mental hospital. The cast (Polly Bergen, Robert Stack, Joan Crawford) is hampered by a bad script, with the exception of an excellent performance by Janis Paige as an inmate of the institution.

Innocents in Paris (xx), on 12 at 9:30. An overlong but amusing 1953 English-made comedy about a group of Londoners who travel to Paris for the first time, starring Alastair Sim and Margaret Rutherford.

Bluebeard, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1963 French-made melodrama about the man who murdered lonely women during the First World War, starring Charles Denner, Danielle Darrieux, Michele Morgan and Hildegarde Neff.

Rocco and His Brothers (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. An absorbing, award-winning 1960 Italian-made drama, directed by Luchino Visconte, that provides a realistic look at the bitter fortunes of an impoverished peasant family that moves to the bustling city of Milan. European cast is dubbed into English.

Encore (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Nigel Patrick, Glynis Johns, Roland Culver and Kay Walsh star in this 1951 English-made trio of Somerset Maugham stories. They are: The Ant and the Grasshopper; Winter Cruise; and Gigolo and Gigolette.

Mackenna's Gold (x), on 6 at midnight. A good cast (Gregory Peck, Omar Sharif, Lee J. Cobb and Anthony Quayle) is completely wasted in this overproduced 1969 western about the search for a fortune in gold. Peck plays a marshal who knows where the fortune is hidden and Sharif plays the villain who wants to get his hands on it, and for two boring hours the two battle it out until the inevitable shoot-out.

The Cavern (xx), on 7 at midnight. A 1965 Second World War adventure about six men and a woman trapped in a German munitions dump, starring John Saxon, Brian Aherne and Rosanna Schiaffino.

Synanon (xxx), on 7 at 2. A candid 1965 look at a real-life drug rehabilitation community in California, starring Alex Cord, Chuck Connors and Stella Stevens.

The Last Posse (xxx), on 6 at 2:40. Broderick Crawford, John Derek and Charles Bickford star in this better-than-average 1953 western about a ruthless cattle baron who forms a posse to regain a large amount of money stolen from him.

TV Ladies Outshine the Movie Queens

By LEE MARGULIES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What does television have that motion pictures don't? A flock of female superstars.

Women like Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Burnett, Valerie Harper, Cher, Beatrice Arthur, Angie Dickinson, Elizabeth Montgomery, Lucille Ball. They draw huge TV audiences.

LUCILLE BALL

. . . huge TV audience

There are star actresses in films, certainly: Faye Dunaway, Liza Minnelli, Elizabeth Taylor, Liv Ullman, Jane Fonda, Ellen Burstyn, Glenda Jackson, Julie Christie, Pam Grier.

But only one, Barbra Streisand, is considered a heavyweight today in terms of box-office drawing power.

Why the disparity?

There are several reasons, including the number and type of films being made these days, but the main reason arises from a basic difference between the two mediums: movies, for most people, tend to be special events while television is a daily fixture.

Movies, with their enormous screens, tend to be bigger than life in both stories and characters. Television material, both in subject matter and treatment, tends to be scaled down to a much more "ordinary" level for the small screen.

The result, contends Ethel Winant, head of casting and talent for CBS, is that women on television can emphasize warmth and vivaciousness rather than glamour and eccentricity, which the big screen seems to demand.

Of the female powerhouses on television, she observes:

"They're all easy to know. They come into your living room as guests and you could conceive of meeting them and sitting down to coffee."

What it boils down to, she believes, is that these women are not threatening to the viewers at home — women or men. She illustrates the difference between female movie stars and female television stars for the average woman in the audience this way:

"If Elizabeth Taylor or Barbra Streisand was coming over for dinner, she'd feel like she had to go out and buy a new dress, get her hair done, run next door to borrow a friend's jewelry and get someone else to cook dinner.

BARBRA STREISAND

. . . an exception

"But if Mary or Carol or Bea were coming over, she'd say, 'Well, I'm serving coffee and cheesecake and they'll understand.'"

And while men might fantasize about affairs with Faye Dunaway or Julie Christie, says Miss Winant, they also worry aobut what they would say to such a beautiful women if they were ever really alone with her.

Not so with the TV stars, she says.

"They're like friends, they're nice; they're enjoyable. You wouldn't have to try to impress them. They're like the girls you might have married, except they're on television.

Film actresses face another disadvantage.

While all of the TV superstars have or have had their own shows, told from their character's point of view, there just aren't many good roles around for women in today's movies.

The emphasis on action and violence has left them in the background. Carol Burnett says of today's movies: "They're all blood and guts — or most of them are. And you're not going to have women doing that because it would look silly. So where else are we going to go but to television?"

MARY TYLER MOORE

. . . a best friend

BLUEBEARD — One of history's most legendary lady killers, is the subject of a 1963 Franch-made drama, starring Charles Denner and Danielle Darrieux (above), to be telecast on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 11. Bluebeard enticed his victims through lonely hearts ads.

SUMMER SERIES FOR AD SINGERS

The Arbors, a Chicago based vocal quartet offers entertainment and information on their new six part series, beginning August 7 at 10:30 p.m. on KCTS-9.

Although nightclub performers, The Arbors get most of their income from singing commercials, such as The Jolly Green Giant, United Airlies, and MacDonald's Hamburgers. However, on this series which will be seen Thursday evening at 10:30 (rebroadcast Sunday afternoons at 3:00 p.m.), the group shows many of their other talents.

On Program number 1, The Arbors perform the Beatles' Golden Slumbers, Neil Diamond's Sweet Caroline — Brother Love, a spiritual version of Bridge Over Troubled Waters, and a rousing medley of the group's favorite tunes.

For ther second show, The Arbors switch to a frank discussion of "What It's Really Like" to be a professional entertainer. Twins Fred and Ed Farran, and Scott and Tom Herrick discuss their careers as recording artists and jingle singers. They wind up the session with their version of "He Ain't Heavy."

The staging of a nightclub performance is the focus of the third program of the series. The Arbors discuss their approach to staging, and how they handle their special problems. Wildflower and a medley of "golden oldies from the 50's" close the set.

On Program four, the audio equipment is featured, with explanations of the technical difficulties encountered on the road. The Arbors also sing their version of Three Dog Night's Celebrate, and perform a medley of songs from The Graduate.

Success in commercials is the subject of the fifth show. The Arbors work as a group and as individual voices in advertisements, while Ed also produces and writes jingles. The Arbors end their discussion with Good Day Sunshine, and Will You Still Love Me Tomorrow.

Award-Winning NFB Feature Highlights CBC Movie Series

One of the most endearing films ever presented about youth and coming of age, the National Film Board's Mon Oncle Antoine will be telecast this summer on the CBC television network. As well, the CBC will debut two other NFB feature productions: The Heatwave Lasted Four Days and Once Upon a Hunt.

The Heatwave Lasted Four Days will be telecast on Sunday August 10 at 9:00 p.m. When this intriguing mystery-thriller recently premiered on ABC-TV's Wide World Mystery series it received higher ratings than both NBC's Johnny Carson Show and the CBS Movie.

Directed by Doug Jackson, Heatwave concerns a TV news cameraman who becomes dangerously involved with the Montreal underworld because of something he accidently films during his television coverage of the city's first heatwave of the year. Gordon Pinsent, Alexandra Stewart and Lawrence Dane star.

The most honored Canadian feature of all time, Mon Oncle Antoine, will be shown on Sunday, August 24 at 9:00 p.m. Based on author Clement Perron's boyhood experiences in a small Quebec asbestos mining-town in the 1940s and directed by Claude Jutra, the film's overwhelming critical praise has been world-wide.

Here is what some critics had to say about Mon Oncle Antoine at the time of its release.

"The best Canadian feature-length movie ever made," wrote the Toronto Star's Clyde Gilmore. Bosley Crowther of the New York Times described it as "a beautiful film, full of acute observation and macabre humor." Robert Ebert in the Chicago Sun-Times said: "It is a Canadian masterpiece." And New Yorker Magazine film critic Pauline Kael stated, Mon Oncle Antoine is easily the best Canadian film I've ever seen."

Once Upon a Hunt, winner of a special critics prize at the 1972 Venice Film Festival will be aired on Sunday, August 31 at 9:00 p.m. Directed by Francis Mankiewicz, the film stars Guy L'Ecuyer, Marcel Saborin, Pierre Dufresne and Oliver L'Ecuyer.

The film tells the story of three city men and a boy who go off to enjoy a weekend hunting trip, only to experience a holiday that combines reality with dreams, nightmares, unrealized ambitions and — death.

Frenchy Riviere was a rough-and-tumble, hard drinking poaching, bootlegging buzzard, who left an impression on four songs that the 20th century couldn't erase. This is a documentary mainly about Frenchy, as told by his four songs. The stories are plainly about him, but at the same time, they are about themselves, and their incredible experiences with him and others of his ilk. The stories are told by these scratching, rambling, laughing old-timers who are still capable of "breaking" a wild horse, clipping a bulldog's ear, or bull-whipping a six-foot man.

Its members, many of them chemists, architects and engineers, share a mystical, "animistic" approach to existence that allows them to talk about the consciousness of plants and objects. Findhorn follows Catholic philosopher Teilhard de Chardin's notion of a sphere of consciousness around the earth. Produced in stereo by Tim Wilson.
